1. PRELIMINARY INSTRUCTIONS

INTRODUCTORY COMMENT

Preliminary instructions, while not a substitute for final instructions given after closing argument, can be helpful in orienting the jury toward that which is to come. "A court may," said the Court in State v. Mata, 71 Haw. 319, 330, 789 P.2d 1122 (1990), "to facilitate the jury's understanding of a case, make an appropriate and accurate general statement to the jury of what the case is all about."

The trial court should not, however, give "detailed instructions on the law in advance of trial." State v. Mata, 71 Haw. at 330. "[G]iving detailed instructions on the law with respect to the anticipated legal substantive issues to be raised at trial does not fit within the procedural framework contemplated by HRPP Rule 30." State v. Mata, 71 Haw. at 330. "Counsel had no opportunity to request the pre-trial instructions before they were given," observed the State v. Mata Court, "and there was no settlement procedure as is required by HRPP Rule 30(b)." State v. Mata, 71 Haw. at 330.

Judge Barrett Prettyman has observed:

> What manner of mind can go back over a stream of conflicting statements of alleged facts, recall the intonations, the demeanor, or even the existence of the witnesses, and retrospectively fit all of these recollections into a pattern of evaluation and > judgment given him for the first time after the events?

Prettyman, Jury Instructions -- First or Last?, 46 A.B.A.J. 1066, 1066 (1960), quoted in Manual of Model Criminal Jury Instructions for the Ninth Circuit at 1 (1989).

Finally, it has been suggested by the Office of Equality and Access to the Courts ("OEAC") that wherever in these Pattern Jury Instructions the use of pronouns is indicated, e.g., "he/she," that the court substitute instead the pronouns "they/their" as appropriate. The Committee believes that the trial court will always be in the best position to decide the appropriate course of action in this regard in any individual case. However, the Committee also considers it appropriate to inform all parties and the court of the OEAC suggestion on this matter.

1.01 Preliminary Instructions to the Jury

(To be given after clerk administers oath to jury)

Members of the jury, now that you have been selected as jurors in this case, the court will give you some preliminary instructions about this trial so that you may have a better understanding of how this trial will be conducted and your responsibilities as jurors.

It will be helpful to understand the order in which a criminal trial proceeds. First, each lawyer will have an opportunity to give you an opening statement. The defense may decide not to give an opening statement, or it may give its opening statement either before or after the prosecution presents its case. An opening statement is not evidence. Its only purpose is to give you an overview of what the lawyers expect the evidence will show.

Next, the prosecution will present its evidence. Evidence usually includes the sworn testimony of witnesses and exhibits, such as photographs or documents. After the prosecution presents its evidence, the defense may choose to present evidence but is not required to do so. If the defense presents evidence, the prosecution may then present rebuttal evidence.

After all the evidence has been presented, I will instruct you on the law you must apply in this case.

The lawyers will then make their final arguments in which they talk about what facts have been or have not been proven by the evidence. Closing arguments are not evidence. The prosecution makes its closing argument first. The defense may then give a closing argument, and the prosecutor may give a rebuttal argument.

After closing arguments, you will go to the jury room to begin your deliberations.

As the judge in this case, I have three main duties: (1) I will make sure that the court proceedings are kept orderly; (2) I will determine what evidence may be received during this trial; and (3) I will instruct you on the law that you must apply in this case.

You will be the judges of the facts. You will decide what facts have been proven by the evidence. A very important part of your job will be deciding whether a witness is truthful, whether the witness' testimony is accurate, and how much weight or importance to give to the testimony.

Let me explain to you what is and is not evidence. The evidence in this case will come from the sworn testimony of witnesses and any exhibits received into evidence. A question asked by a lawyer is not evidence. Objections made by a lawyer are not evidence. Questions asked and responses of jurors given during voir dire are not evidence. Opening statements and closing arguments of lawyers are not evidence. In addition, testimony I have excluded or stricken is not evidence.

During the course of this trial you may hear the lawyers make objections. It is a lawyer's duty to object when he or she believes it is appropriate or necessary. Objections help the court to keep out matters that are not relevant to the issues in this trial.

I will rule on objections according to the law. When I rule on objections or motions do not be concerned with the reasons for my rulings.

If I sustain an objection to a question and do not allow it to be answered, you must not speculate about what the answer might have been, nor draw any conclusion from the question itself. An unanswered question is not evidence.

At times you may be excused from the courtroom so that the lawyers can discuss legal matters with me. Under the law, some matters must be heard outside of your presence. At other times, the lawyers may approach me at the bench and hold a whispered discussion about legal matters. This is called a bench conference. Please do not be offended by our whispering and do not guess or speculate about the reasons for having the bench conference.

During this trial, you must not discuss this case with anyone, not even your friends, co-workers, family or household members. Do not allow anyone to discuss this case with you. If anyone asks you about this case, tell that person that you cannot discuss it. Do not talk to the defendant(s), the lawyers, the witnesses or anyone else connected with this case.

Throughout the course of this trial, including recesses during the day and when you are excused at the end of each day of trial, do not share information, opinions, or anything else about this case with others, personally or in writing, or through computers, cell phone messaging, personal electronic and media devices, or other forms of wireless communications. This includes, for example, communicating about this case through e-mail, instant messaging, text messaging, posting or looking at information about this case on a blog, forum, social network site, chat room, discussion board, or using the Internet or any electronic means in any other way.

You must not discuss this case, even among yourselves, until I instruct you to begin your deliberations. During your deliberations, you may discuss the case only in the jury room, and only when all jurors are present.

You must not investigate the case in any way. This means that you must not visit any places mentioned during this trial, conduct experiments, consult any dictionaries, encyclopedias, or other reference materials.

Also, do not read, listen to, or watch anything about this case from any source, such as a television or radio broadcast, newspaper article or internet transmission. Your decision must be based only on the evidence you receive in this courtroom and the court's instructions on the law.

If you receive any information about this case from any source outside of this trial, even unintentionally, do not share that information with any other juror. If you do receive such information, or if anyone tries to influence you or any other juror, you must immediately tell the bailiff.

Keep an open mind throughout this trial. Do not make up your mind about the verdict or about any issue until after you have discussed the case with the other jurors during deliberations. Do not conclude from my rulings or from anything that I say or do during this trial that I favor one side over the other.

Each one of us has biases about or certain perceptions or stereotypes of other people. We may be aware of some of our biases, though we may not share them with others. We may not be fully aware of some of our other biases.

Our biases often affect how we act, favorably or unfavorably, toward someone. Bias can affect our thoughts, what we see, hear and remember, whom we believe or disbelieve, and how we make important decisions.

As jurors you are being asked to make very important decisions in this case. You must not let bias, prejudice, or public opinion influence your decision. You must not be biased in favor of or against any party or witness because of the person's actual or perceived race, color, ancestry, national origin, ethnicity, sex, gender, gender identity, sexual orientation, marital status, age, disability, religion, socioeconomic status, or political affiliation.

Your verdict must be based solely on the evidence presented. You must carefully evaluate the evidence and resist any urge to reach a verdict that is influenced by bias for or against any party or witness.

If you have a cell phone or other electronic device, keep it turned off while you are in the courtroom. Turned off means that the phone or other device is actually off and not in a silent or vibrating mode. After each recess, please double check to make sure your device is turned off. If someone needs to contact you in an emergency, the court can receive messages and deliver them to you without delay. The court's phone number will be provided to you. It is important that you do not use your cell phone or other device in the courtroom during these proceedings.

1.02 USE OF INTERPRETER

No matter what language people speak, they have the right to have their testimony heard and understood. You are about to hear a trial in which an interpreter will translate for one or more of the participants. The interpreter is required to remain neutral. The interpreter is required to translate between English and (specify other language), accurately and impartially to the best of the interpreter's skill and judgment.

You must evaluate interpreted testimony as you would any other testimony. That is, you must not give interpreted testimony any greater or lesser weight than you would if the witness had spoken English.

Keep in mind that a person might speak some English without speaking it fluently. That person has the right to the services of an interpreter. Therefore, you shall not give greater or lesser weight to a person's interpreted testimony based on your conclusions, if any, regarding the extent to which that person speaks English.

Commentary

Oregon Uniform Criminal Jury Instruction No. 1001A. This instruction should be given to the jury at the commencement of trial when an interpreter is being used for one or more of the participants at trial.

1.02A JUROR NOTETAKING

(To be given prior to evidence being presented.)

You have been given notebooks and pens. Some jurors prefer to take notes as evidence is presented. Other jurors prefer not to do so. It is up to you to decide whether or not you wish to take notes. Notes are not evidence, and may be used only as a memory aid for yourself and not as a substitute for your recollection of the evidence.

If you take notes, do not let note-taking interfere with your duty to listen carefully to all the testimony and observe the witnesses as they testify. Your observations of a witness may be considered in determining whether a witness is truthful and the weight to be given to the testimony.

Each time you leave the courtroom, leave your notebook face down on your chair. Note-taking is not permitted during recesses. At the end of the day, your notes will be kept by my clerk until the next court session and will not be read by anyone. When you begin your deliberations, you may take your notes with you into the jury room.

1.02B JUROR NOTETAKING

(To be given prior to deliberations.)

You have been allowed to take notes during this trial. When you leave the courtroom to begin deliberations, you must follow some important rules with regard to notes:

1. Notes may be used only by you to assist in refreshing your memory of the evidence. Notes are not a substitute for your own independent memory of the evidence.

2. Keep your notes to yourself and do not show or read them to any other juror.

3. You must not give certain evidence more weight simply because it appears in your notes. Do not assume that your notes are accurate or complete.

4. Some of you may not have taken notes. If you have not taken notes, you should rely on your memory of the evidence and should not be influenced by the fact that another juror took notes. Notes are not entitled to any greater weight than the memory of each juror as to what the testimony may have been.

5. Anytime you leave the jury room during deliberations, leave your notes face down on the table.

6. If you go home overnight without reaching a verdict, the bailiff will collect your notes and return them to you at the start of the next day. Your notes will not be read by anyone.

7. After you have reached a verdict, your notes will be collected by the bailiff and destroyed.

2. INSTRUCTIONS IN THE COURSE OF TRIAL

[4] The original instructions approved and published in Volume I in December, 1991 are not dated. New or amended instructions in Volumes I and II reflect the Supreme Court's approval date in parentheses.

[5] A few instructions have been published which were not originally published in 1991 and for which no Supreme Court approval date could be verified.

2. INSTRUCTIONS IN THE COURSE OF TRIAL

INTRODUCTORY COMMENT

Many cautionary instructions used in mid-trial are repeated in substance in the final charge. These Pattern Jury Instructions do not contain separate mid-trial instructions for material covered in the charge. An immediate cautionary instruction can sometimes avoid the need for a mistrial. See State v. Miyazaki, 64 Haw. 611, 621-22, 645 P.2d 1340 (1982) (immediate cautionary instruction to disregard reference to "earlier trial" adequate to cure any prejudice the statement may have had); see also A. Bowman, Hawai`i Rules of Evidence Manual at 22 (Michie 1990) ("[l]imiting instruction should be delivered at the point of receipt of the evidence and, if necessary or desirable, they can be repeated in the court's general charge").

The trial judge may give cautionary instructions at the time the jury is instructed on the law of the case rather than immediately following receipt of testimony, where the rights of the accused are adequately protected. State v. Perez, 64 Haw. 232, 638 P.2d 335 (1981).

2.01 CAUTIONARY INSTRUCTION - RECESS

Members of the jury, we are about to take [our first] [a] recess and I want to remind you about a few things that are very important. A requirement of our judicial system is that you must reach your verdict based only on the evidence that you receive in the courtroom.

In order to ensure that both sides receive a fair trial, I will now explain some basic rules of law and procedure that you must follow throughout this trial, including during recesses, when you leave the court building at the end of the day, and at all other times until a verdict is received or you are otherwise excused from jury service.

1. Do not talk to anyone, including your fellow jurors, friends or members of your family about anything having to do with this trial, except to speak to court staff. This means that you must not discuss this case with anyone until the verdict is received or you are excused from jury service. No discussion also means no e-mailing, text messaging, tweeting, blogging or any other form of communication.
2. Do not speak with any person who is involved in the trial--even about something that has nothing to do with the trial. It is often difficult to determine who is involved in a trial, as persons waiting outside the courtroom or using the elevators or hallways may be witnesses or may have an interest in the outcome of this trial. Be very cautious with whom you have conversations.

3. If anyone tries to talk to you about this case, I instruct you to tell that person the judge ordered you not to discuss this trial and excuse yourself. You must immediately tell my bailiff about any such contact.

4. Avoid contact with the parties or lawyers. They are instructed not to speak with you, except for brief greetings, such as good morning or good afternoon.

5. As jurors, you may discuss the case together only after all the evidence is presented, I instruct you on the law, and the attorneys complete their final arguments. After I tell you to begin your deliberations, you may discuss the case only in the jury room, and only when all jurors are present.

6. Because of the requirement that your verdict must be based only on the evidence received in the courtroom and instructions on the law, you must not read, listen to or watch any news reports about this trial, if there are any, regardless of whether the report is from the newspaper, radio, television, internet or any other source.

7. Do not research this case on your own or as a group by using a dictionary, encyclopedia, map, or reference materials, including online or other electronic sources. You are not permitted to search the Internet, for example, using Google, or any other search engine or web site to look for information about this case or about the participants in the trial. The participants in a trial include the judge, lawyers, witnesses and the defendant. The Court understands that in your daily life it may be a common occurrence for you to look for more information about a product or an event, but the moment you try to gather information about this case or the participants, is the moment you contaminate the process you promised to uphold.

8. Do not share information, opinions, or anything else about this case with others, personally or in writing, or through computers, cell phone messaging, personal electronic and media devices or other forms of wireless communications. This includes, for example, communicating about this case through e-mail, instant messaging, tweeting, text messaging, or using the Internet in any way. Also, do not post or look at information about this case on a blog, forum, social network site, chat room, discussion board or any other web site.

9. If you have a cell phone or other electronic device, keep it turned off while you are in the courtroom. Turned off means that the phone or other device is actually off and not in a silent or vibrating mode. After each recess, please double check to make sure your device is turned off. If someone needs to contact you in an emergency, the court can receive messages and deliver them to you without delay. The court's phone number will be provided to you.

10. If you see or hear anyone, including another juror, violate any of these rules, you must immediately tell the bailiff.

11. Finally, keep an open mind until all the evidence has been presented, the Court has instructed you on the law that applies in this case and final arguments have been given.

I may not repeat these rules to you before every recess, but keep them in mind throughout this trial.

2.02 DISCHARGE OF DEFENSE COUNSEL DURING TRIAL

Even though Defendant, (defendant's name), was at first represented by a lawyer, he/she has decided to continue this trial representing himself/herself [and not use the services of a lawyer]. He/She has a constitutional right to self-representation. The Defendant's decision to represent himself/herself has no bearing on whether he/she is guilty or not guilty of the charge[s], and it must have no effect on your consideration of the case.

Notes

The final phrase of the first sentence of the instruction is bracketed in the event that stand-by counsel is appointed to assist the Defendant.

COMMENTARY

An accused "has the constitutional right to appear pro se and defend himself." State v. Dickson, 4 Haw. App. 614, 619, 673 P.2d 1036, 1041 (1983)(citing Faretta v. California, 422 U.S. 806 (1975)). The record must affirmatively reflect that the accused "was offered counsel but that he voluntarily, knowingly, and intelligently rejected the offer and waived that right." Dickson, 4 Haw. App. at 619, 673 P.2d at 1041 ("specific waiver inquiry" factors set out). Although the waiver of a minor's right to counsel should be reviewed with great care, the right may nevertheless be waived if, based upon the totality of the circumstances, the waiver is knowing and voluntary. In the Interest of Doe, 77 Hawai'i 46, 50, 881 P.2d 533, 537 (1994) (citing Medeiros v. State, 63 Haw. 162, 163, 623 P.2d 86, 86 (1981)).

A defendant for whom counsel has been appointed has no per se right to change counsel, particularly when trial is underway. See State v. Ahlo, 2 Haw. App. 462, 634 P.2d 421 (1981); State v. Torres, 54 Haw. 502, 510 P.2d 494 (1973); see also State v. Soto, 60 Haw. 493, 495, 591 P.2d 119, 121 (1979) (preparation time for counsel should be sufficient to "assure the defendant of effective assistance of counsel").

Rule 10.1 of the Hawai'i Rules of the Circuit Courts provides that "withdrawal of counsel in cases pending before the circuit courts shall be effective only upon the approval of the court and shall be subject to the guidelines of Rule 1.16 of the Hawai'i Rules of Professional Conduct and other applicable law."

2.03 OTHER CRIMES, WRONGS OR ACTS

You [are about to hear] [have heard] evidence that the Defendant at another time, may have [engaged in] [committed] other [crimes] [wrongs] [acts]. This evidence, if believed by you*, may be considered only on the issue of Defendant's [motive to commit the offense charged] [opportunity to commit the offense charged] [intent to commit the offense charged] [preparation to commit the offense charged] [plan to commit the offense charged] [knowledge (specify knowledge required to commit the offense charged] [identity as the person who committed the offense charged] [modus operandi] [alleged conduct having resulted from a mistake or accident]. Do not consider this evidence for any other purpose. You must not use this evidence to conclude that because the Defendant at another time may have [engaged in] [committed] other [crimes] [wrongs] [acts] that he/she is a person of bad character and therefore must have committed the offense[s] charged in this case.

In considering the evidence for the limited purpose for which it has been received, you must weigh it in the same manner as you would all other evidence in this case, and consider it along with all other evidence in this case.

Notes

* Where the other crime, wrong or act evidence is stipulated to have occurred by defense counsel, then the clause "if believed by you" should be omitted. The clause may also be subject to deletion where the evidence is adduced by proof of a prior conviction.

Commentary

This instruction is to be given at the time evidence of other crimes, wrongs or acts is admitted unless the defense objects on the record to the giving of the instruction. When given, Instruction No. 4.01 should be given at the end of the case, as appropriate.

2.04 CAUTIONARY INSTRUCTION DURING TRIAL REGARDING TRANSCRIPT OF A RECORDING

[A video] [An audio] recording of the statement of (name of person) has been received in evidence and is about to be played for you. A written transcript of this recorded statement is being provided to you solely for your convenience to help you follow the conversation in the recording.

The recording itself is the evidence in this case. The transcript is not evidence. Therefore, what you hear on the recording is evidence. What you read in the transcript is not evidence, and the transcript will not be provided to you during your deliberations. If you believe that there is any difference between the recording and the transcript, you must be guided only by the recording and not by the transcript.

For example, if you cannot determine from the recording what particular words were spoken or who said a particular word or words, you must disregard the transcript with respect to those words or the transcript's identification of the speaker. It is for you to decide, based upon the recording, what words were spoken and the identity of the speaker.

[You will notice that portions of the recording and the transcript have been deleted. Do not concern yourself with these deletions and do not speculate about them.]

Notes

O'Malley, Genig, and Lee, Federal Jury Practice and Instructions, Criminal (5th Ed.) §§ 11.09, 14.09 (as modified).

"The decision whether to allow the use of transcripts to assist jurors in listening to a tape recording lies within the sound discretion of the trial judge." United States v. Bentley, 706 F.2d 1498, 1507-1508 (8th Cir. 1983). If the instruction is also to be given as part of the closing instructions, it should be modified appropriately.

This instruction does not address the situation when the transcript is otherwise admissible.

3. INSTRUCTIONS AT THE END OF THE CASE

[6] The original instructions approved and published in Volume I in December, 1991 are not dated. New or amended instructions in Volumes I and II reflect the Supreme Court's approval date in parentheses.

3. INSTRUCTIONS AT END OF CASE

INTRODUCTORY COMMENT

HRPP 30(e) provides that the court shall instruct the jury after closing arguments are completed. The defendant has a constitutional and statutory right to be present when the Court instructs the jury. HRPP 43; State v. Pokini, 55 Haw. 640, 642, 526 P.2d 94 (1974) (defendant "has a procedural and constitutional right to be present whenever the court communicates with the jury").

HRPP 30 provides specific procedures whereby counsel and the court settle final instructions. See State v. Mata, 71 Haw. 319, 330, 789 P.2d 1122 (1990). HRPP 30(d) mandates that once instructions have been settled, the court "shall in no case orally qualify, modify or explain to the jury any instruction." Objections to the instructions must be made before the jury retires to deliberate. HRPP 30(e); HRS § 641-16; see also State v. Iaukea, 56 Haw. 343, 537 P.2d 724 (1975). Jury instructions, as a whole, must correctly instruct the jury on the law. State v. Estrada, 69 Haw. 204, 738 P.2d 812 (1987); see also State v. Nakamura, 65 Haw. 74, 648 P.2d 183 (1982); State v. Feliciano, 62 Haw. 637, 618 P.2d 306 (1980). Instructions need not merely "parrot the language of the statute." State v. Nakamura, 65 Haw. at 79; see also State v. Nuetzel, 61 Haw. 531, 551, 606 P.2d 920 (1980) ("[c]larity is the true virtue of effective communication"); State v. Apao, 59 Haw. 625, 645, 586 P.2d 250 (1978) ("the trial court is not required to instruct the jury in the exact words of the applicable statute"). Instructions should be "easily understandable," and present the jury with an instruction that aids the jury in applying the law to the facts of the case. State v. Nakamura, 65 Haw. at 79; see also State v. Nuetzel, 61 Haw. at 550 (instructions should be "flexible with wide discretion vested in the trial judge to clarify the terms of the definition"). It is not error for the court to refuse ambiguous and misleading instructions. State v. Chang, 46 Haw. 22, 374 P.2d 5 (1962). If the jury is fully and adequately instructed on a given proposition of law, a request for another instruction restating the same proposition in different terms may properly be refused. State v. Nakamura, supra; see also State v. Bush, 58 Haw. 340, 569 P.2d 349 (1977); State v. Faafiti, 54 Haw. 637, 513 P.2d 697 (1973); State v. Johnson, 3 Haw. App. 472, 653 P.2d 428 (1982); State v. Le Vasseur, 1 Haw.App. 19, 613 P.2d 1328 (1980), cert. denied, 449 U.S. 1018 (1981). The court may refuse an instruction that is not supported by the evidence. State v. Apao, 59 Haw. 625, 586 P.2d 250 (1978); see also State v. Horn, 58 Haw. 252, 566 P.2d 1378 (1977); State v. Lincoln, 3 Haw. App. 107, 643 P.2d 807 (1982); State v. Le Vasseur, 1 Haw. App. 19, 29, 613 P.2d 1328 (1980). The court may not, however, refuse an instruction simply because there is only slight evidence on the point, or because the evidence against the point appears overwhelming. State v. Lira, 70 Haw. 23, 759 P.2d 869 (1988); State v. Warner, 58 Haw. 492, 496-98, 573 P.2d 959 (1977). As long as there is some evidence on the point, the credibility and weight of that evidence is for the jury. Id.; State v. Irebaria, 55 Haw. 353, 519 P.2d 1246 (1974); see cases cited in the Introductory Comment to Section 7. Specific Defenses, infra. "Erroneous instructions are presumptively harmful and are a grounds for reversal unless it affirmatively appears from the record as a whole that the error was not prejudicial." State v. Pinero, 70 Haw. at 527, quoting, Turner v. Willis, 59 Haw. 319, 326, 582 P.2d 710 (1978); see also State v. Pemberton, 71 Haw. 466, 796 P.2d 80 (1990). The court may correct erroneous instructions by withdrawal, explanation, or correction. State v. O'Keefe, 45 Haw. 368, 371, 367 P.2d 91 (1961). The court must clearly inform the jury, however, that the withdrawal of an erroneous instruction is absolute, to preclude any inference that the jury might be influenced by the erroneous instruction previously given. Id. "A clearly prejudicial instruction, however, cannot be cured by other proper instructions which do not call attention to the error." State v. Estrada, 69 Haw. 204, 223, 738 P.2d 812 (1987); see also State v. Villeza, 72 Haw. 327, 817 P.2d 1054 (1991); State v. Napeahi, 57 Haw. 365, 377, 556 P.2d 569 (1976). When the court has withdrawn, explained, or corrected an instruction, the reviewing court will presume that the jury accepted the correction. State v. O'Keefe, supra.

3.01 Consider Instructions as a Whole

I will now instruct you on the law that you must follow in reaching your verdict.

You are the judges of the facts of this case. You will decide what facts were proved by the evidence. However, you must follow these instructions even if you disagree with them.

You must consider all the instructions as a whole and consider each instruction in the light of all the others. Do not single out any word, phrase, sentence or instruction and ignore the others. No word, phrase, sentence or instruction is more important just because it is repeated in these instructions.

In the event that a statement or argument made by a lawyer contradicts or misstates these instructions, you must disregard that statement or argument and follow these instructions.

Commentary

HRE 1102 provides, the "court shall instruct the jury regarding the law applicable to the facts of the case, but shall not comment on the evidence."

Further, HRE 1102 provides the court shall also "inform the jury that they are the exclusive judges to all questions of fact and credibility of witnesses."

Notes

See State v. Espiritu, 117 Hawai`i 127, 142-144, 176 P.3d 885, 900-902 (2008), regarding a misstatement of law made by counsel.

The court may also consider giving a curative instruction.

3.02. PRESUMPTION OF INNONCENCE; REASONABLE DOUBT

You must presume the defendant is innocent of the charge against him/her. This presumption remains with the defendant throughout the trial of the case, unless and until the prosecution proves the defendant guilty beyond a reasonable doubt.

The presumption of innocence is not a mere slogan but an essential part of the law that is binding upon you. It places upon the prosecution the duty of proving every material element of the offense charged against the defendant beyond a reasonable doubt.

You must not find the defendant guilty upon mere suspicion or upon evidence which only shows that the defendant is probably guilty. What the law requires before the defendant can be found guilty is not suspicion, not probabilities, but proof of the defendant's guilt beyond a reasonable doubt.

What is a reasonable doubt?

It is a doubt in your mind about the defendant's guilt which arises from the evidence presented or from the lack of evidence and which is based upon reason and common sense.

Each of you must decide, individually, whether there is or is not such a doubt in your mind after careful and impartial consideration of the evidence.

Be mindful, however, that a doubt which has no basis in the evidence presented, or the lack of evidence, or reasonable inferences therefrom, or a doubt which is based upon imagination, suspicion or mere speculation or guesswork is not a reasonable doubt.

What is proof beyond a reasonable doubt?

If, after consideration of the evidence and the law, you have a reasonable doubt of the defendant's guilt, then the prosecution has not proved the defendant's guilt beyond a reasonable doubt and it is your duty to find the defendant not guilty.

If, after consideration of the evidence and the law, you do not have a reasonable doubt of the defendant's guilt, then the prosecution has proved the defendant's guilt beyond a reasonable doubt and it is your duty to find the defendant guilty.

Commentary

The Hawai`i Supreme Court has approved various formulations of the reasonable doubt instruction. See, e.g. State v. Bush, 58 Haw. 340, 342 n.4, 569 P.2d 349, 350 n.4 (1977); State v. Olivera, 57 Haw. 339, 341, 555 P.2d 1199, 1201 (1976); State v. Stuart, 51 Haw. 656, 660-61, 466 P.2d 444, (1970); Territory v. Honda, 31 Haw. 913, 914-15 (1931); see also State v. Norton, 72 Haw. 296, 815 P.2d 1025 (1991) (discussion of reasonable doubt in context of a bench trial).

"The difficulties faced in formulating a satisfactory definition of 'reasonable doubt' have led to the growth of a respectable body of opinion which holds that it is better to leave the term undefined in charging the jury." Olivera, 57 Haw. at 341- 42, 555 P.2d at 1201; see also United States v. Moss, 756 F.2d 329, 333 (4th Cir. 1985) ("[t]he practice of defining reasonable doubt in the charge to the jury has been widely condemned"); Holland v. United States, 348 U.S. 121, 140 (1954) ("[a]ttempts to explain the term 'reasonable doubt' do not usually result in making it any clearer to the minds of the jury"). The Olivera court, however, held that it was "not persuaded that it should be held to be error" for Hawai`i courts to attempt to define reasonable doubt. 57 Haw. at 342, 555 P.2d at 1201. The court concluded that "[w]hatever doubts may be entertained as to the necessity or advisability of attempting to explain the term to the jury, the question on appeal is whether 'the instructions correctly conveyed the concept of reasonable doubt to the jury.'" Id., (quoting Holland, 348 U.S. at 140).

A jury instruction that shifts the burden of proof to the defendant on a material element of the offense charged violates due process. State v. Pimental, 61 Haw. 308, 603 P.2d 141 (1979); see also State v. Fabio, 1 Haw.App. 544, 622 P.2d 619 (1981). Under prior statues, the Hawai`i Supreme Court ruled that to instruct a jury to presume the existence of malice aforethought from proof of a killing violates a defendant's right to have every element of the offense proved beyond a reasonable doubt. State v. Santiago, 53 Haw. 254, 492 P.2d 657 (1971); see also State v. Cuevas, 53 Haw. 110, 113, 488 P.2d 322, 324 (1971) ("[u]nder our legal system, the burden is always upon the prosecution to establish every element of crime by proof beyond a reasonable doubt, never upon the accused to disprove the existence of any necessary element").

A refusal to give an instruction on presumption of innocence (in addition to an instruction on reasonable doubt) can violate a defendant's due process right to a fair trial; the failure to give such an instruction must be evaluated in light of the totality of the circumstances. State v. Iosefa, 77 Hawai`i 177, 880 P.2d 1224 (App. 1994) (based on the totality of the circumstances, defendant's federal constitutional rights to due process and a fair trial were seriously jeopardized by the trial court's failure to read the requested instruction on presumption of innocence and burden of proof.) Compare Kentucky v. Whorton, 441 U.S. 786 (1979), and Taylor v. Kentucky, 436 U.S. 478 (1978).

3.03 CONSIDER ONLY THE EVIDENCE

You must consider only the evidence that has been presented to you in this case and inferences drawn from the evidence which are justified by reason and common sense.

The indictment/complaint/information is a mere formal accusation, and it is not evidence of the defendant's guilt. You must not be influenced at all because the defendant has been charged with an offense(s).

Trial procedures are governed by rules. When a lawyer believes that the rules require it, it is his or her duty to raise an objection. It is my responsibility to rule on such objections. You must not consider objections made by lawyers in your deliberations.

Statements or arguments made by lawyers are not evidence. You should consider their arguments to you, but you are not bound by their memory or interpretation of the evidence.

If I have said or done anything that has suggested to you that I favor either side, or if any of my statements or facial expressions has seemed to indicate an opinion as to which witnesses are, or are not, worthy of belief or what facts are or are not proved, or what inferences should be drawn from the evidence, I instruct you to disregard it. You must also disregard any remark I may have made, unless the remark was an instruction to you.

You must not be influenced by pity for the defendant or by passion or prejudice against the defendant. Both the prosecution and the defendant have a right to demand, and they do demand and expect, that you will carefully and impartially consider and weigh all of the evidence and follow these instructions, and that you will reach a just verdict.

HAWJIC 3.03 (Revised 9/4/09)

3.04 DISREGARD STRICKEN EVIDENCE

You must disregard entirely any matter which the court has ordered stricken.

Commentary

An immediate cautionary instruction can sometimes avoid the need for a mistrial. See State v. Miyazaki, 64 Haw. 611, 621-22, 645 P.2d 1340 (1982); see also A. Bowman, Hawai`i Rules of Evidence Manual at 22 (Michie 1990) ("[l]imiting instruction should be delivered at the point of receipt of the evidence and, if necessary or desirable, they can be repeated in the court's general charge").

The trial court may give a cautionary instruction during the general jury charge rather than immediately following receipt of affected testimony, where the rights of the accused are adequately protected thereby. State v. Perez, 64 Haw. 232, 638 P.2d 335 (1981).

3.05 JUDICIAL NOTICE

You may but are not required to accept, as conclusively proved, any fact or event which the court has judicially notice.

Commentary

See HRE 201. A judicially noticed fact must be one not subjectto reasonable dispute that is either generally known within the territorial jurisdiction of the trial court or is capable of accurate and ready determination by resort to sources whose accuracy cannot reasonably be questioned. In a criminal case the jury may, but is not required to, accept as conclusive any fact judicially noticed. HRE 201(g). The court must take notice of its own court records in another criminal case. State v. Akana, 68 Haw. 164, 706 P.2d 1300 (1985) (trial court mandated under HRE 201(d) to take judicial notice of its own records of another case where a party so requested, the file was in the court's immediate possession, and the same court had recently taken action in that case).

The Hawai`i courts have taken judicial notice that under ordinary circumstances an automobile traveling at 35 miles per hour can be stopped well within a distance of 135 feet, State v. Arena, 46 Haw. 315, 379 P.2 594 (1963); the exact time of sunrise on a particular day, Territory v. Makaena, 39 Haw. 270 (1952); the occurrence of a territory wide sugar strike, Territory v. Kaholokua, 37 Haw. 625 (1947); the Hawaiian language, Bishop v. Mahiko, 35 Haw. 608 (1940); the date of the King's birthday celebration, Kapiolani v. Mahelona, 9 Haw. 676 (1895); the announcement of a political candidate for office, Application of Pioneer Mills Co., 53 Haw. 496, 497 P.2d 549 (1972); and the fact that banana trees hold water, Territory v. Araujo, 21 Haw. 56 (1912); see generally 1980 Commentary to HRE 201.

3.06 STIPULATIONS

You must accept, as conclusively proved, any fact to which the parties have stipulated.

Commentary

See, e.g., United States v. Houston, 547 F.2d 104, 107 (9th Cir. 1976) ("when parties have entered into stipulations as to material facts, those facts will be deemed to have been conclusively established").

3.07. DIRECT AND CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE

In addition to facts which counsel have stipulated to be true] [Facts which the court has taken judicial notice of], there are two types of evidence--direct evidence, such as the testimony of witnesses who assert actual knowledge of a fact, and circumstantial evidence, which permits a reasonable inference of the existence of another fact.

Facts may be proved by direct or circumstantial evidence, or by a combination of both direct evidence and circumstantial evidence.

Commentary

Where evidence in a case is circumstantial, "instructions on circumstantial evidence [are] necessary," although a reasonable doubt instruction may suffice. State v. Bush, 58 Haw. 340, 341, 569 P.2d 349 (1977).

Guilt may be proved beyond a reasonable doubt on the basis of reasonable inferences drawn from circumstantial evidence. State v. Simpson, 64 Haw. 363, 373 n. 7, 641 P.2d 320 (1982); see also State v. Bright, 64 Haw. 226, 228, 638 P.2d 330 (1981); State v. Murphy, 59 Haw. 1, 19, 575 P.2d 448 (1978); State v. O'Daniel, 62 Haw. 518, 528, 616 P.2d 1383 (1980). "No greater degree of certainty is required where a conviction is based solely on circumstantial evidence rather than on direct evidence." State v. Simpson, 64 Haw. at 373 n. 7, citing State v. Smith, 63 Haw. 51, 54, 621 P.2d 343 (1980). "Both direct evidence and circumstantial evidence are acceptable as means of proof. Neither is entitled to any greater weight than the other." State v. Bush, 58 Haw. at 341 n. 3 (jury instruction approved by court).

3.08. WEIGHT OF THE EVIDENCE

While you must consider all of the evidence in determining the facts in this case, this does not mean that you are bound to give every bit of evidence the same weight. You are the sole and exclusive judges of the effect and value of the evidence and of the credibility of the witnesses.

Commentary

See HRE 1102 (court must "inform the jury that they are the exclusive judges of all questions of fact and the credibility of witnesses").

3.09. CREDIBILITY AND WEIGHT OF TESTIMONY

It is your exclusive right to determine whether and to what extent a witness should be believed and to give weight to his or her testimony accordingly. In evaluating the weight and credibility of a witness's testimony, you may consider the witness's appearance and demeanor; the witness's manner of testifying; the witness's intelligence; the witness's candor or frankness, or lack thereof; the witness's interest, if any, in the result of this case; the witness's relation, if any, to a party; the witness's temper, feeling, or bias, if any has been shown; the witness's means and opportunity of acquiring information; the probability or improbability of the witness's testimony; the extent to which the witness is supported or contradicted by other evidence; the extent to which the witness has made contradictory statements, whether in trial or at other times; and all other circumstances surrounding the witness and bearing upon his or her credibility.

Inconsistencies or discrepancies in the testimony of a witness, or between the testimony of different witnesses, may or may not cause you to discredit such testimony. In weighing the effect of inconsistencies or discrepancies, whether they occur within one witness's testimony or as between different witnesses, consider whether they concern matters of importance or only matters of unimportant detail, and whether they result from innocent error or deliberate falsehood.

Commentary

See HRE 1102 (jury must be instructed they are the "exclusive judges of . . . the credibility of witnesses"). This proposition is also established by a venerable line of caselaw. See State v. Gabrillo, 10 Haw.App. 448, 877 P.2d 891 (1994) (evidence that another person confessed to the offense or evidence that defendant was not present at the crime scene raises issues going to reasonable doubt and, like other issues going to reasonable doubt, is generally a matter for the finder of fact to determine); State v. Estrada, 69 Haw. 204, 218, 738 P.2d 812, 823 (1987) (jury is "sole judge of witness credibility and weight of the evidence"), appeal after remand, 71 Haw. 260, 787 P.2d 692 (1990); State v. Kim, 64 Haw. 598, 645 P.2d 1330 (1982); State v. Tamura, 63 Haw. 636, 633 P.2d 1115 (1981); State v. Masaniai, 63 Haw. 354, 628 F.2d 1018 (1981) (lineup identification); State v. Summers, 62 Haw. 325, 614 P.2d 925 (1980); State v. Bogdanoff, 59 Haw. 603, 609-10, 585 P.2d 602, 606-07 (1978) (trial court should exercise restraint when presented with testimony it is tempted to find incredible or improbable as a matter of law; credibility is for the jury and even though a "witness may be inaccurate, contradictory and even untruthful in some respects[,]" the witness may "yet be entirely credible in the essentials of his testimony"); State v. Johnston, 51 Haw. 195, 456 P.2d 805 (1969); State v. Kekaualua, 50 Haw. 130, 433 P.2d 131 (1967); State v. Kahunahana, 48 Haw. 384, 402 P.2d 679 (1965); State v. Dizon, 47 Haw. 444, 390 P.2d 759 (1964); State v. Hashimoto, 47 Haw. 185, 389 P.2d 146 (1963); State v. Hassard, 45 Haw. 221, 365 P.2d 202 (1961) (competency of infant complaining witness was for court and weight and credibility of the testimony were for the jury); Territory v. Kimbrel, 31 Haw. 81 (1929); Territory v. Buick, 27 Haw. 28 (1923); Territory v. Pong Chong, 20 Haw. 229 (1910); Territory v. Nakamura, 20 Haw. 222 (1910); Territory v. Sing Kee, 14 Haw. 586 (1903) (motive and interest of witness always to be considered by jury in determining weight to give testimony, but general credibility instruction sufficient for informant's testimony); see also Young Ah Chor v. Dulles, 270 F.2d 338 (9th Cir. 1959) (list of factors a trier of fact may consider in determining witness credibility).

Sexual Assault Cases: The trial court is not required to give special cautionary instructions regarding the uncorroborated testimony of a complainant in sexual assault cases. An instruction on general witness credibility is sufficient. State v. Jones, 62 Haw. 572, 617 P.2d 1214 (1980); State v. Dizon, 47 Haw. 444, 390 P.2d 759.

Accomplice Testimony: An accomplice instruction which advises the jury that such testimony should be viewed with caution or suspicion is not required in every case where the accomplice substantially aids the prosecution's proof. State v. Okumura, 78 Hawai`i 383, 894 P.2d 80 (1995) (overruling State v. Chang, 46 Haw. 22, 374 P.2d 5 (1962)). A court in its discretion may give such an instruction, considering whether the jury's attention was adequately drawn to the possible motives that the accomplice witness may have had to testify falsely. Okumura, 78 Hawai`i at 409, 894 P.2d at 105. See HAWJIC 6.01A.

Identification: The giving of special instructions on identification testimony is within the discretion of the trial court; a defendant has no due process right to the giving of an identification instruction. State v. Pahio, 58 Haw. 323, 568 P.2d 1200 (1977); see also State v. Padilla, 57 Haw. 150, 162, 552 P.2d 357, 365 (1976) (refusal to give requested instructions relating to eyewitness testimony was not an abuse of discretion where the cross examination of the prosecution witnesses, the arguments to the jury, and the instructions that the court gave to the jury had adequately directed the jury's attention to the identification evidence); but see State v. Lira, 70 Haw. 23, 29, 759 P.2d 869, 873 (1988) (defendant entitled to an instruction on every defense or theory of defense having any support in the evidence).

3.10 REJECTING TESTIMONY

If you find that a witness has deliberately testified falsely to an important fact or deliberately exaggerated or suppressed any important fact, then you may reject the testimony of that witness except for those parts which you nevertheless believe to be true.

Commentary

This is a version of the traditional "falsus in uno, falsus in omnibus" instruction. See, generally, 81 Am. Jur. 2d Witnesses § 669 (1976).

3.11 NUMBER OF WITNESSES

You are not bound to decide a fact one way or another just because more witnesses testify on one side than the other. It is testimony that has a convincing force upon you that counts, and the testimony of even a single witness, if believed, can be sufficient to prove a fact.

Commentary

Courts have criticized the giving of this instruction when the defendant presents no witnesses, without finding reversible error. See, e.g., United States v. Moss, 756 F.2d 329, 335 (4th Cir. 1985) ("[d]istrict courts should refrain from giving such a number of witnesses instruction when the defendant has no witnesses").

3.12 PROSECUTION NOT REQUIRED TO CALL ALL WITNESSES

The prosecution is not required to call as witnesses all persons who may have been present at any of the events disclosed by the evidence or who may appear to have some knowledge of these events, or to produce all objects or documents mentioned or suggested by the evidence.

3.13 DEFENDANT NOT REQUIRED TO CALL ANY WITNESSES

The defendant has no duty or obligation to call any witnesses or produce any evidence.

Commentary

Where the trial court instructed the jury that reasonable doubt may arise not only from the evidence but also from a lack of evidence, "the possibility that the jury might, under this instruction, have considered [defendant's] failure to produce evidence as erasing any reasonable doubt which might otherwise have been seen by the jury appears . . . insubstantial at most." State v. Olivera, 57 Haw. 339, 343, 555 P.2d 1199 (1976).

3.14 DEFENDANT NOT REQUIRED TO TESTIFY

The defendant has no duty or obligation to testify, and you must not draw any inference unfavorable to the defendant because he/she did not testify in this case, or consider this in any way in your deliberations.

Commentary

An admonitory instruction that no inference shall be drawn prejudicial to the accused by reason of his failure to testify is required, if such instruction is requested by the defense. Carter v. Kentucky, 450 U.S. 288, 300, 67 L.Ed.2d 241, 101 S.Ct. 1112 (1981) ("the Fifth Amendment requires that a criminal trial judge must give a 'no adverse inference' jury instruction when requested by a defendant to do so"). Where the defense objects to the giving of an admonitory instruction, the trial court may well be advised not to give such instruction, but the giving of such instruction over defense objection is not error. State v. Baxter, 51 Haw. 157, 454 P.2d 366 (1969). Some defendants object to this instruction because it "highlights to the jury [their] failure to testify." State v. Baxter, 51 Haw. at 158. The Court upheld the giving of such an instruction over the defendant's objection, however, because it is "far from clear that such an instruction is prejudicial to a defendant." State v. Baxter, 51 Haw. at 159; see also Lakeside v. Oregon, 435 U.S. 333, 339 (1972) ("[i]t would be very strange indeed to conclude that this instruction violates the very constitutional provision it is intended to protect").

3.15 DEFENDANT AS A WITNESS

The defendant in this case has testified. When a defendant testifies, his/her credibility is to be tested in the same manner as any other witness. The defendant has a constitutional right [and a legal duty] to be present throughout the trial and while other witnesses testify. You must not draw any unfavorable inference regarding the credibility of the defendant's testimony on the basis that he/she was present during the trial.

Commentary

In Territory v. Awana, 28 Haw. 546, 567 (1925), the Court approved language in a similar instruction that "when a defendant does testify in his own behalf, then you have no right to disregard his testimony merely because he is accused of crime[.]" When he does so testify, instructed the Awana Court, "he at once becomes the same as any other witness and his credibility is to be tested by and subjected to the same tests as are legally applied to any other witness[.]"

The Awana Court also approved an instruction, however, that, "in determining the degree of credibility that shall be accorded to [a defendant's] testimony the jury ha[s] a right to take into consideration the fact that he is interested in the result of the prosecution[.]" Id.; see also Territory v. Oneha, 29 Haw. 150, 158-59 (1926) (noting that "while such an instruction has been upheld in many jurisdictions, it is not looked upon with favor"). The committee declined to place this additional language in the instruction because 1) it unnecessarily singles out the defendant for comment about his or her interest in the prosecution, and 2) a generic statement about witness interest in the prosecution is addressed in pattern instruction No. 3.09 ("you may consider ... the witness's interest, if any, in the result of this case"). See also People v. Hankin, 179 Colo. 70, 498 P.2d 1116, 1119 (1972) ("while it is unnecessary and poor practice to give the jury a separate instruction on the credibility of the defendant as a witness, the giving of such an instruction does not constitute reversible error").

Notes

State v. Walsh, 125 Hawai`i 271, 260 P.3d 360 (2011), ("the jury should be instructed that a defendant has a constitutional right to be present throughout trial and while other witnesses are testifying, and that the jury must not draw any unfavorable inference regarding the credibility of the defendant's testimony simply on the basis of the defendant's presence at trial); and citing Portuondo v. Agard, 529 U.S. 61 (2000), "instructions that explain the necessity, and the justifications, for the defendant's attendance at trial" should be given whenever the defendant testifies to inform the jury that the defendant had a right and legal duty to be present at trial, id. at 76 (Stevens, J. concurring, joined by Breyer, J).

The bracketed language should not be given if the defendant is absent during any portion of the trial.

3.16. State of Mind--Proof by Circumstantial Evidence

The state of mind with which a person commits an act such as ["intentionally"] ["knowingly"] ["recklessly"] may be proved by circumstantial evidence. While witnesses may see and hear, and thus be able to give direct evidence of what a person does or fails to do, there can be no eye-witness account of the state of mind with which the acts are done or omitted. But what a person does or fails to do may or may not indicate the state of mind with which he/she does or refrains from doing an act.

Commentary

"While a defendant's state of mind can rarely be proved by direct evidence, 'the mind of an alleged offender may be read from his or her acts or conduct and the inferences fairly drawn from all of the circumstances.'" State v. Pudiquet, 82 Hawai`i 419, 425, 922 P.2d 1032, 1038 (App. 1996); State v. Leung, 79 Hawai`i 538, 544, 904 P.2d 552, 558 (App. 1995). "[S]ince intent can rarely be proved by direct evidence, proof by circumstantial evidence and reasonable inferences arising from circumstances surrounding the act is sufficient to establish the requisite intent." State v. Sadino, 64 Haw. 427, 430, 642 P.2d 534, 537 (1982); see also State v. Rushing, 62 Haw. 102, 612 P.2d 103 (1980); State v. Hernandez, 61 Haw 475, 605 P.2d 75 (1980); *State v. 3.17. Retention of Alternate Juror on Submission of Case to Jury

Mr./Ms. _____, your participation in this trial is not complete. It is still possible for you to be called on to replace one of the deliberating jurors. This means that, while you may return to your normal activities and need not report to court unless informed otherwise, you are still bound by my earlier instructions about your conduct relating to this case. Accordingly, you must not discuss this case with anyone, not even your friends, co-workers, family or household members. Do not allow anyone, including members of the news media, to discuss this case with you. If anyone asks you about this case, tell that person that you cannot discuss it. Do not talk to the defendant(s), the lawyers, the witnesses or anyone else connected with this case. You must not investigate the case in any way. This means that you must not visit any places mentioned during this trial, conduct experiments, consult any dictionaries, encyclopedias, web sites or other reference materials. Also, do not read, listen to, or watch anything about this case from any source, such as a television or radio broadcast, newspaper article or the internet. A jury's decision must be based only on the evidence received in this courtroom and the court's instructions on the law. If you receive any information about this case from any source outside of this trial, even unintentionally, do not share that information with anyone. If you do receive such information, or if anyone tries to discuss the case with you or influence you in any way, you must immediately inform the court. Do not have any contact with the deliberating jurors [or other alternate jurors]. Do not decide how you would vote if you were deliberating. Do not form or express an opinion about the issues in this case, unless you are substituted for one of the deliberating jurors.

My staff will contact you either to summon you back to court or to release you from further participation in this case. Again, thank you very much for your continuing service.

Notes

It is recommended that this instruction be given immediately after the first twelve jurors have left the courtroom to begin their deliberations. Addressing the alternate jurors alone will highlight the importance of their role and continuing obligations in the trial and may lessen the risk that a deliberating juror will abandon deliberations knowing that there are alternates available to replace him or her.

Before substituting an alternate juror during deliberations in a trial receiving extensive media coverage, the court may wish to ensure by colloquy that the alternate juror has not been exposed to material "of a nature which could substantially prejudice the defendant's right to a fair trial" and to take appropriate action in the event of such exposure. See State v. Williamson, 72 Haw. 97 (1991).

3.18. Substitution of Alternate Juror: During Deliberations

One of your fellow jurors has been excused and an alternate juror is replacing the excused juror. Do not consider this substitution for any purpose. Under the law, the alternate juror must participate fully in the deliberations that lead to any verdict. The prosecution and the defendant[s] have the right to a verdict reached only after full participation of the jurors whose votes determine that verdict. This right will only be assured if you begin your deliberations again, from the beginning. Therefore, you must set aside and disregard all past deliberations and begin your deliberations all over again. Each of you must disregard the earlier deliberations and decide this case as if those earlier deliberations had not taken place. Now, please return to the jury room and start your deliberations from the beginning.

3.19 Eyewitness Testimony

The burden of proof is on the prosecution with reference to every element of a crime charged, and this burden includes the burden of proving beyond a reasonable doubt the identity of the defendant as the person responsible for the crime charged.

You must decide whether an eyewitness gave accurate testimony regarding identification.

In evaluating identification testimony, you may consider the following factors:

The opportunity of the witness to observe the person involved in the alleged criminal act;

The stress, if any, to which the witness was subject at the time of the observation;

The witness's ability, following the observation, to provide a description of the person;

The extent to which the defendant fits or does not fit the description of the person previously given by the witness;

The cross-racial or ethnic nature of the identification;

The witness's capacity to make an identification;

Evidence relating to the witness's ability to identify other participants in the alleged criminal act;

Whether the witness was able to identify the person in a photographic or physical lineup;

The period of time between the alleged criminal act and the witness's identification;

Whether the witness had prior contacts with the person;

The extent to which the witness is either certain or uncertain of the identification and whether the witness's assertions concerning certainty or uncertainty are well-founded;

Whether the witness's identification is in fact the product of his/her own recollection; and

Any other evidence relating to the witness's ability to make an identification.

Notes

This instruction is based on the model instruction approved in State v. Cabagbag, 127 Hawai`i 302, 277 P.3d 1027 (2012). Cabagbag held that A(1) in criminal cases, the circuit courts must give the jury a specific eyewitness identification instruction whenever identification evidence is a central issue in the case, and it is requested by the defendant, [and] (2) a circuit court may, in the exercise of its discretion, give the instruction if it believes the instruction is otherwise warranted in a particular case ..."

The court may wish to delete from the instruction those listed factors that do not apply in a given case.

3.19A. Show-Up Identification

In this case, in addition to other eyewitness identification testimony, you have received evidence that the defendant was identified by a witness at a so-called "show-up" conducted by the police. While show-ups are permissible, they are inherently suggestive police procedures. In determining the reliability and accuracy of an identification made at a police show-up, you must consider the totality of the circumstances involved in the show-up, which may include the following:

[Whether the identification was the result of a suggestive procedure, including actions taken or words spoken by police or anyone else to the witness before, during, or after the identification process;]

[Whether the police either indicated to the witness that a suspect was present in the procedure or failed to warn the witness that the perpetrator may or may not be in the procedure;]

[Whether the defendant was required to wear distinctive clothing that the perpetrator allegedly wore, or was handcuffed or otherwise appeared to be in police custody;]

[Whether the witness was exposed to opinions, descriptions, or identifications made by other witnesses, or to photographs, news media, or to any other information that may have influenced the independence of the identification;]

[Whether other participants in the show-up were similar in appearance to the defendant;]

[Whether the witness's identification was made spontaneously and remained consistent thereafter;]

[and any other circumstance relating to the witness's ability to make an identification.]

TABLE OF INSTRUCTIONS[7]

4. CONSIDERATION OF PARTICULAR EVIDENCE

[7] The original instructions approved and published in Volume I in December, 1991 are not dated. New or amended instructions in Volumes I and II reflect the Supreme Court's approval date in parentheses.

4. CONSIDERATION OF PARTICULAR EVIDENCE

4.01 EVIDENCE ADMITTED FOR A LIMITED PURPOSE

Several times during the trial I told you that certain evidence was allowed into this trial for a particular and limited purpose. When you consider that evidence, you must limit your consideration to that purpose.

Commentary

In some situations where evidence is admissible for one purpose and inadmissible for another, the evidence may, upon request, be admitted for the admissible purpose subject to an instruction to the jury not to consider it for the inadmissible purpose. HRE 105, However, > [HRE 105] is not designed to provide automatic, uncritical admission in every such instance. . . . 'In situations . . . where the danger of the jury's misuse of the evidence for the incompetent purpose is great, and its value for the legitimate purpose is slight . . . the judge's power to exclude the evidence altogether would be recognized.'" McCormick [on Evidence] § 59 [(2d ed. 1972)].

State v. Timas, 82 Hawai`i 499, 513, 923 P.2d 916, 930 (App. 1996) (quoting Commentary to HRE 105). In Timas, the Intermediate Court of Appeals held that the lower court did not abuse its discretion when it implicitly decided that the danger of the jury's misuse of a defendant's hearsay testimony "for the incompetent purpose was more, and its value for the legitimate purpose was less," and declined to admit the testimony. 82 Hawai`i at 513, 913 P.2d at 930.

When evidence is admitted for a limited purpose, the court, upon request, "shall restrict the evidence to its proper scope and instruct the jury accordingly." See HRE 105. "In those cases where trial courts have allowed evidence of other crimes, bad acts, etc., to be admitted, the better practice has been found to be to instruct the jury as to the limited purpose for which the evidence was received." State v. Chong, 3 Haw. App. 246, 253, 648 P.2d 1112, 1117 (1982).

Generally, the trial judge may give a cautionary instruction during final jury instructions rather than immediately following receipt of the testimony, when the rights of the accused are otherwise adequately protected. State v. Perez, 64 Haw. 232, 638 P.2d 335 (1981). The Intermediate Court of Appeals has "strongly suggest[ed]" that the trial court, "when dealing with evidence of other crimes, wrongs or bad acts, give a cautionary instruction regarding the restrictive use of such evidence prior to the offer of the evidence and during the charge to the jury." State v. Chong, 3 Haw.App. at 254, 648 P.2d at 118 (emphasis added).

In Kaeo v. Davis, 68 Haw. 447, 719 P.2d 387 (1986), the Hawai`i Supreme Court reversed in a civil case because the trial court excluded relevant, albeit prejudicial, evidence. "Nor can we say its admission would have caused confusion of the issues," concluded the court, "for the jury could have been properly instructed that the reports were admitted for the limited purpose of showing notice." 68 Haw. at 457, (citing HRE 105).

In State v. Moore, 82 Hawai`i 202, 921 P.2d 122 (1996), the trial court admitted the complainant's statements to a police officer that "I told [my husband] I was leaving him" and "[h]e's distraught." At defense counsel's request, the statements were admitted with a limiting instruction that the statements were "limited solely for the purposes of explaining and describing the complainant's then existing mental, emotional or physical condition." 82 Hawai`i at 211 n.8, 921 P.2d at 131 n.8. On appeal, the supreme court held that these statements, even if arguably related to the defendant's state of mind at the time of the shooting, could not support consideration by the jury of an instruction on extreme mental or emotional disturbance manslaughter, as the evidence had been admitted for a limited purpose. 82 Hawai`i at 211, 921 P.2d at 131.

4.02. EVIDENCE APPLICABLE TO ONLY ONE DEFENDANT

Each defendant is entitled to have his/her case decided solely on the evidence that applies to him/her. Some of the evidence in this case was limited to one of the defendants and cannot be considered in the cases of the other. You must limit your consideration of that evidence to the defendant as to whom the evidence was admitted.

Commentary

This instruction is only for use in cases where evidence has been admitted that is applicable to only one defendant. See HRE 105 (when evidence admitted for a limited purpose the court upon request "shall restrict the evidence to its proper scope and instruct the jury accordingly"). An example of this might be a codefendant confession of the limited type still admissible under Bruton v. United States, 391 U.S. 123 (1968). See, e.g., State v. Torres, 70 Haw. 219, 223, 768 P.2d 230 (1989), citing Richardson v. Marsh, 481 U.S. 200, 211 (1987) ("admission of a nontestifying codefendant's confession with a proper limiting instruction" does not violate the confrontation clause if the statement is redacted to eliminate not only the co-defendant's name but any reference to the co-defendant's existence).

4.03. AVAILABILITY OF EXHIBITS DURING DELIBERATIONS

During the trial items were received into evidence as exhibits. These exhibits will be sent into the jury room with you when you begin to deliberate.

4.04 MUG SHOTS

The evidence has referred to a photograph of the defendant in the possession of the police. The government has access to photographs of people from different sources and for different purposes. The fact that the police had the defendant's photograph does not mean that he/she committed any offense.

Commentary

The committee recommends that this instruction is to be given only upon defendant's request.

See State v. Huihui , 62 Haw. 142, 612 P.2d 115 (1980) (introduction of words "police mug photographs" in prosecutor's questions to witness was error and trial court should have sustained objection and followed it with a prophylactic instruction); see also State v. Kutzen, 1 Haw.App. 406, 620 P.2d 258 (1980) (setting out three criteria to determine whether the admission of police photographs at trial is proper).

4.05 EXPERT WITNESSES

During the trial you heard the testimony of one or more witnesses who were described as experts.

Training and experience may make a person an expert in a particular field. The law allows that person to state an opinion about matters in that field. Merely because such a witness has expressed an opinion does not mean, however, that you must accept this opinion. It is up to you to decide whether to accept this testimony and how much weight to give it. You must also decide whether the witness's opinions were based on sound reasons, judgment, and information.

Commentary

HRE 602 provides a "witness may not testify to a matter unless evidence is introduced sufficient to support a finding that he [or she] has personal knowledge of the matter" unless the trial court finds the witness is an "expert witness" under HRE 702, 703, 704, 705, and 706.

HRE 702 permits opinion testimony by experts if "scientific, technical, or other specialized knowledge will assist the trier of fact" and the trial court first qualifies the witness "as an expert by knowledge, skill, experience, training, or education". See State v. Rinehart, 8 Haw.App. 638, 819 P.2d 1122 (1991); State v. Pinero, 70 Haw 509, 778 P.2d 704 (1989); but see the limitations on the general rule imposed by Pinero, and State v. Batangan, 71 Haw 552, 799 P.2d 48 (1990).

Generally, in order to assist the trier of fact to understand the evidence or determine a fact in issue, an expert must base his or her testimony upon a sound factual foundation; any inferences or opinions must be the product of an explicable and reliable system of analysis; and such opinions must add to the common understanding of the jury. State v. Fukusaku, 85 Hawai`i 462, 472-73, 946 P.2d 32, 42-43 (1997); State v. Maelega, 80 Hawai`i 172, 181, 907 P.2d, 758, 767 (1995); State

v. Montalbo, 73 Haw. 130, 138, 828 P.2d 1274 (1992); see also HRE 702.

In short, expert testimony must be (1) relevant and (2) reliable. Fukusaku, 85 Hawai`i at 473, 946 P.2d at 43; State v. Samonte, 83 Hawai`i 507, 533, 928 P.2d 1, 27 (1996); Maelega, 80 Hawai`i at 181, 907 P.2d at 767. In addition, the trial court must determine whether admitting such evidence will be more probative than prejudicial. Fukusaku, 85 Hawai`i at 473, 846 P.2d at 43; Maelega, 80 Hawai`i at 181, 907 P.2d at 767.

With respect to scientific evidence, in Daubert v. Merrell Dow Pharmaceuticals, Inc., 509 U.S. 579 (1993), the United States Supreme Court held that the trial court must ensure that any scientific testimony or evidence presented is reliable. Further, the need for a judicial determination of reliability is not limited to novel scientific procedures. See 590 U.S. at 592.

In Kumho Tire Company, Ltd. v. Carmichael , 119 S.Ct 1167 (1999), the United States Supreme Court held that the federal evidence rule on expert testimony "makes no relevant distinction between 'scientific knowledge' and 'technical' or 'other specialized' knowledge." A trial court's duty to ensure that only relevant and reliable expert testimony is admitted into evidence is not limited to "scientific" expert testimony but expends to testimony based on technical or specialized knowledge. Id. But see Fukusaku, 85 Hawai`i 462, 946 P.2d 32 (expert testimony based on "technical knowledge" does not call for the same searching inquiry into reliability that is required in the case of testimony based on scientific knowledge).

Daubert cited four factors to use in evaluating the reliability of the proffered expert testimony: whether the knowledge being presented has been tested, whether it has been subject to peer review and publication, the rate of error relevant to the methodology, and the degree of acceptance in the relevant community. Trial courts may consider these same factors when expert testimony depends on personal knowledge or experience. Kumho Tire, 119 S.Ct 1167. The Supreme Court added, however, that "we can neither rule out, nor rule in, for all cases and for all time the applicability of the factors mentioned in Daubert, nor can we now do so for subsets of cases categorized by category of expert or by kind of evidence. Too much depends upon the particular circumstances of the particular case at issue." Id. 119 S.Ct. 15 1175.

A determination by the trial court that a witness qualifies as an expert is binding upon the jury only as it relates to the admissibility of the testimony. See Territory v. Adelmeyer, 45 Haw. 144, 163, 363 P.2d 979, 989 (1961) ('[e]xperts' opinions vary and the competence, credibility and weight of their testimony is exclusively the province of the jury").

4.06 SEPARATE CONSIDERATIONS OF MULTIPLE COUNTS/DEFENDANTS

ALTERNATIVE A: MULTIPLE COUNTS, ONE DEFENDANT

The defendant is charged with more than one offense under separate counts in the indictment/complaint. Each count and the evidence that applies to that count is to be considered separately. The fact that you may find the defendant not guilty or guilty of one of the counts charged does not mean that you must reach the same verdict with respect to [any] [the] other count charged.

ALTERNATIVE B: MULTIPLE DEFENDANTS, ONE COUNT

Each defendant has been accused of committing the offense of (charge). You must give separate consideration to the evidence applicable to each defendant. Each defendant is entitled to your separate consideration. You must return a separate verdict for each defendant.

ALTERNATIVE C: MULTIPLE DEFENDANTS, MULTIPLE COUNTS

[Some counts in this case have been charged against some defendants and not against others.] You must give separate consideration to the evidence that applies to each individual defendant. You must consider separately each count charged against each individual defendant.

Commentary

If all defendants are charged on all counts, omit the bracketed language in Alternative C.

4.07 OUT-OF-COURT STATEMENT BY DEFENDANT

As the sole and exclusive judges of the facts and of the credibility of the witnesses, it is your exclusive right to determine whether and to what extent the Defendant's out-of-court statement to police is worthy of belief. In evaluating the reliability and trustworthiness of the out-of-court statement, you should consider all of the circumstances surrounding the making of the statement [, including the use of deception or coercion to obtain the out-of-court statement].

* [There has been conflicting testimony as to whether the Defendant made a statement outside of court. It is for you to decide whether or not the Defendant made the statement. In making this decision, you should consider all of the evidence about the statement, including the circumstances under which the Defendant may have made it.]

Commentary

State v. Robinson, 82 Hawai`i 304, 922 P.2d 358 (1996); State v. Bowe, 77 Haw. 51, 881 P.2d 538 (1994); State v. Kelekolio, 74 Haw. 479, 849 P.2d 58 (1993).

This instruction is appropriate when the Defendant is disputing the reliability or trustworthiness of an out-of-court statement.

*The bracketed paragraph alone may be submitted to the jury in the situation where the Defendant denies having made the out-of-court statement.

Commentary

See HRS § 701-109(4) and (5). According to State v. Sneed, 68 Haw. 463, 464, 718 P.2d 280, 281 (1986), "[t]he doctrine evolved historically as an aid to the prosecution when there was a failure of proof of all of the elements necessary for conviction of the accusation." "From the defendant's point of view," however, "it provides the jury with an alternative to a guilty verdict on the greater offense." Id., 68 Haw. at 465, 718 P.2d at 281. "[T]he prosecution as well as defendant may request an instruction on a lesser included offense if there is a rational basis in the evidence for a verdict acquitting the defendant of the offense charged and convicting him of the lesser included offense." State v. Kinnane, 79 Hawai`i 46, 897 P.2d 973 (1995); Sneed, 68 Haw. at 465, 718 P.2d at 282; see also State v. Williams, 6 Haw.App. 17, 708 P.2d 834 (1985) (it is reversible error not to give a lesser included offense instruction to which a defendant is entitled upon timely request therefor).

According to HRS § 701-109(5), "[t]he court is not obligated to charge the jury with respect to an included offense unless there is a rational basis in the evidence for a verdict acquitting the defendant of the offense charged and convicting him of the included offense." State v. Smith, 91 Hawai'i 450, 984 P.2d 1276 (1999). In State v. Ferreira, 8 Haw.App. 1, 791 P.2d 407, 409 (1990), the Intermediate Court of Appeals interpreted this language to require "the giving of included offense instructions over both the prosecution's and the defendant's objections." See also State v. Nakachi, 7 Haw.App. 28, 742 P.2d 388 (1987) (court upheld lesser included offense instruction given over the objection of the defendant).

The trial judge must bring all included offense instructions that are supported by the evidence to the attention of the parties. The trial judge must then give each such instruction to the jury unless (1) the prosecution does not request that included instructions be given and (2) the defendant specifically objects to the included offense instructions for tactical reasons. If the prosecution does not make a request and the defendant makes a tactical objection, the trial judge must then exercise his or her discretion as to whether the included offense instructions should be given. State v. Kupau, 76 Hawai`i 387, 879 P.2d 492 (1994).

The trial judge's discretion should be guided by the nature of the evidence presented during the trial, as well as the extent to which the defendant appears to understand the risks involved. For that purpose the trial judge must enter into a colloquy, on the record, directly with the defendant to insure that the defendant understands the effect and potential consequences of waiving the right to have the jury instructed regarding included offenses. State v. Kinnane, 79 Hawai`i 46, 897 P.2d 973. State v. Ito, 85 Hawai`i 44, 936 P.2d 1292 (App. 1997).

A court must follow the same procedures where a defendant withdraws an included offense instruction for which there is a rational basis in the evidence, as those required where a defendant objects to an included offense instruction. State v. Ito, 85 Hawai`i 44, 936 P.2d 1292 (App. 1997).

In State v. Pinero, 70 Haw. 509, 524, 778 P.2d 704, 714 (1989), the court ruled that "[i]f a lesser-included offense instruction is given, it is customary to tell the jury to consider first the greater offense, and to move on to consideration of the lesser offense only if they have some reasonable doubt as to guilt of the greater offense." See also State v. Horn, 8 Haw.App. 167, 796 P.2d 503 (1990) and State v. Reyes, 5 Haw.App. 651, 706 P.2d 1326 (1985). The jury need not unanimously reject the greater charge in order to consider the lesser included offense, and an instruction requiring this procedure is reversible error. State v. Ferreira, 8 Haw.App. 1, 791 P.2d 407(1990).

If there is no rational basis in the evidence for a verdict acquitting the defendant of the offense charged and convicting him of the included offense, the trial court should not tender a lesser included offense instruction. State v. Moore, 82 Hawai`i 202, 921 P.2d 122 (1996); see also Sneed, 68 Haw. 463, 718 P.2d 280; Williams, 6 Haw.App. 17, 708 P.2d 834; State v. Smith, 91 Hawai'i 450, 984 P.2d 1276 (1999). The test is not the "any support in the evidence no matter how weak, inconclusive or unsatisfactory" standard established for defense instructions in State v. O'Daniel, 62 Haw. 518, 616 P.2d 1383 (1980), but rather the "rational basis" test provided in HRS § 701-109(5). Sneed, 68 Haw. at 464, 718 P.2d at 281; see also Nakachi, 7 Haw.App. at 31, 742 P.2d at 391 ("the issue we face is the same as we would be facing if Nakachi were appealing the denial of [a] post trial motion for judgment of acquittal on the included offense").

Absent a waiver of the statute of limitations, a trial court is not required to read a jury instruction for a time-barred lesser included offense because there is no rational basis to furnish a jury instruction on the lesser included offense. See, e.g., State v. Timoteo, 87 Hawai`i 108, 952 P.2d 865 (1997) (when defendant requested the jury instruction on simple trespass, he effectively waived the statute of limitations and agreed that the jury could convict him of simple trespass, rather than burglary 1°); State v. Torres, 85 Hawai`i 417, 945 P.2d 849 (App. 1997) (there was no rational basis to instruct jury on the time-barred lesser included offense because no lesser was requested or brought to the attention of the parties and therefore no waiver of the statute of limitations was elicited or made).

It is not error to refuse to instruct a jury on a lesser included offense if the offense is not a lesser included offense of the offense charged as defined by HRS § 701-109(4). State v. Pukahi, 70 Haw. 456, 776 P.2d 392 (1989); see also Kinnane, 79 Hawai`i 46, 897 P.2d 973; State v. Sugimoto, 62 Haw. 259, 614 P.2d 386 (1980); State v. Doi, 6 Haw.App. 115, 711 P.2d 736 (1985).

When a defendant is convicted of an offense and a "lesser" included offense, the court simply dismisses the "lesser" included offense. Tomomitsu v. State, No. 21545, slip op., n.5 (App. Jan. 12, 2000)

The following cases are appellate court decisions indicating whether a particular offense is an included offense of another offense. Refer to the greater offense to determine whether an appellate court has ruled upon the question of whether a particular offense is included in a greater offense.

CHAPTER 707

MURDER

Murder 2°: Murder in the second degree is not a lesser of murder in the first degree, as murder in the first degree requires proof Defendant "intended to murder both victims as part of the same plan," while murder in the second degree is based on Defendant acting with "separate, unrelated states of mind to cause the death of each victim." State v. Briones, 74 Haw. 442, 848 P.2d 966 (1993).

Manslaughter: manslaughter as defined by HRS § 707-702(1)(a) "unquestionably" is a lesser included offense of murder since one cannot commit murder without also having committed manslaughter. State v. Pinero, 70 Haw. 509, 778 P.2d 704 (1989); Whiting v. State, 88 Haw. 356 966 P.2d 1082 (1998).

Attempted Robbery: Because attempted murder and attempted robbery have different statutory elements and mens rea requirements, one is not a lesser included offense of the other. State v. Mendonca , 68 Haw. 280, 711 P.2d 731 (1985); see also State v. Ah Choy, 70 Haw. 618, 780 P.2d 1097 (1989).

Reckless Endangering 2°: Reckless endangering in the second degree is a lesser included offense of attempted murder. State v. Feliciano , 62 Haw. 637, 618 P.2d 306 (1980); State v. Samonte, 83 Haw. 507, 928 P.2d 1 (1996).

MANSLAUGHTER

Negligent Homicide: Supreme court rejects "over-literal" reading of HRS § 701-109 4(a) and (c) and holds that negligent homicide is a lesser included offense of manslaughter. State v. Smythe, 72 Haw. 217, 811 P.2d 1100 (1991).

Assault 2°: Assault in the second degree is merely one of the lesser included offenses of attempted manslaughter. State v. Horn, 8 Haw.App. 167, 796 P.2d 503 (1990).

ASSAULT 1°

Attempted Assault 1°: Attempted assault in the first degree is an included offense of assault in the first degree, and thus, a "deficiency" in the indictment does not preclude retrial on attempted assault in the first degree. State v. Malufau, 80 Hawai`i 126, 906 P.2d 612 (1995).

Assault 2° and 3°: Assault in the second degree and third degree are lesser included offenses of assault in the first degree. State v. Malufau, 80 Hawai`i 126, 906 P.2d 612 (1995).

ASSAULT 2°

Assault 3°: Assault in the second degree under HRS § 707- 712(1)(a) necessarily includes the lesser offense of assault in the third degree under HRS § 707-712. State v. Ito, 85 Hawai`i 44, 936 P.2d 1292 (App. 1997); State v. Kupau, 76 Hawai`i 387, 879 P.2d 492 (1994).

Assault 3°: Assault in the third degree is not a lesser included offense of assault in the second degree, § 707- 711(c) because of the requirement that the offense be committed against a correctional worker. State v. Tupuola, 68 Haw. 276, 711 P.2d 1289 (1985).

ASSAULT 3°

Harassment: Harassment is not a lesser included offense of assault in the third degree. State v. Kupau, 63 Haw. 1, 620 P.2d 250 (1980).

ASSAULT AGAINST A POLICE OFFICER

Assault 3°: Assault in the third degree is a lesser included offense of assault against a police officer. State v. Elliott, 77 Hawai`i 309, 884 P.2d 372 (1994).

TERRORISTIC THREATENING 1°

Terroristic Threatening 2°: "Unquestionably," terroristic threatening in the second degree can be an offense included within terroristic threatening in the first degree. State v. Nakachi, 7 Haw.App. 28, 742 P.2d 388 (1987).

Harassment: Harassment is not a lesser included offense of terroristic threatening in the first degree. State v. Burdett, 70 Haw. 85, 762 P.2d 164 (1988).

SEXUAL ASSAULT 2°

Sexual Assault 4°: Sexual assault in the fourth degree and attempted sexual assault in the fourth degree are included offenses of attempted sexual assault in the second degree. State v. Kinnane, 79 Hawai`i 46, 897 P.2d 973 (1995).

Indecent Exposure: Indecent exposure is an included offense of attempted second degree sodomy. State v. Smith, 68 Haw. 304, 712 P.2d 496 (1986).

SEXUAL ASSAULT 3°

Sexual Assault 4°: Sexual assault in the fourth degree under HRS § 707-733(1)(a) is a lesser included offense of sexual assault in the third degree under HRS § 707-732(1)(e), as the only difference in the required proof is the latter offense requires "strong compulsion" while the former requires only "compulsion." State v. Caprio , 85 Hawai`i 92, 937 P.2d 933 (App. 1997).

Sexual Assault 4°: Sexual assault in the fourth degree as defined by HRS § 707-733(1)(a) is not a lesser included offense of sexual assault in the third degree, HRS § 707- 732(1)(b), because sexual assault in the fourth degree requires proof of an additional fact - compulsion - and it does not involve a less serious injury or less culpable state of mind. State v. Buch, 83 Hawai`i, 308, 926 P.2d 599 (1996).

ATTEMPTED EXTORTION 2°

Terroristic Threatening 2°: Terroristic threatening in the second degree is not a lesser included offense of attempted extortion in the second degree. State v. Pukahi, 70 Haw. 456, 776 P.2d 392 (1989).

CHAPTER 708

BURGLARY

Theft: Theft is not a lesser included offense of burglary in the first degree. State v. Alvey, 2 Haw.App. 579, 637 P.2d 780 (1981).

Trespass: Criminal trespass in the first degree is a lesser included offense of burglary in the first degree. State v. Williams, 6 Haw.App. 17, 708 P.2d 834 (1985).

ROBBERY 1°

Robbery 2°: The difference between robbery in the first degree and robbery in the second degree is the absence of a dangerous instrument in the latter. State v. Halemanu, 3 Haw.App. 300, 650 P.2d 587 (1982). State v. Arlt , 9 Haw.App. 263, 833 P.2d 902 (1992) (robbery in the second degree is a lesser of robbery in the first degree, HRS § 708-840(1)(b)(i)).

Assault 3°: Assault in the third degree is not an included offense of robbery in the first degree because robbery requires a finding that force was used, whereas assault in the third degree requires a finding of infliction of bodily injury. State v. Doi, 6 Haw.App. 115, 711 P.2d 736 (1985). State v. Arlt, 9

Haw.App. 263, 833 P.2d 902 (1992) (assault in the third degree is not a lesser included offense of robbery in the first degree).

Theft and Attempted Theft: Theft and attempted theft, regardless of degree, are included offenses of robbery. State v. Vinge, 81 Hawai`i 309, 916 P.2d 1210 (1996). See also Tomomitsu v. State, No. 21545, slip op., n.5 (App. Jan. 12, 2000). Robbery is simply an aggravated form of theft. Where, on the facts, a defendant may not be convicted of theft, a fortiori he may not be convicted of robbery. State v. Brighter, 62 Haw. 25, 608 P.2d 855 (1980).

Receiving Stolen Property: Receiving stolen property is not a lesser included offense of robbery in the first degree. State v. Sugimoto, 62 Haw. 259, 614 P.2d 386 (1980).

Burglary 1°: Burglary in the first degree is not an included offense of robbery in the first degree, as it is possible to commit robbery without committing burglary. State v. Vinge, 81 Hawai`i 309, 916 P.2d 1210 (1996).

FRAUDULENT USE OF CREDIT CARD

Theft 2°: Theft in the second degree is not a lesser included offense of fraudulent use of a credit card. State v. Freeman, 70 Haw. 434, 774 P.2d 888 (1989).

CHAPTER 710

INTIMIDATING A WITNESS

Terroristic Threatening 1°: Terroristic Threatening is not a lesser included offense of Intimidating a Witness under HRS § 701-109(a) & (c) because of the different mens rea requirements of the two offenses, their different treatment in the legislative scheme, and the end results of the crimes are distinct. State v. Alston , 75 Haw. 517, 865 P.2d 157 (1994).

CHAPTER 711

DISORDERLY CONDUCT

Harassment: Harassment is not a lesser included offense of disorderly conduct. State v. Woicek, 63 Haw. 548, 632 P.2d 654 (1981).

CHAPTER 712

PROMOTING DANGEROUS DRUG 1°

Promoting Dangerous Drug 2°: Promoting dangerous drug in the second degree, HRS § 712-1242(1)(b)(i), is a lesser included offense of promoting dangerous drug in the first degree, HRS § 712-1241(1)(a)(i). State v. Wallace, 80 Hawai`i 382, 910 P.2d 695 (1996).

Promoting Dangerous Drug 3°: Promoting dangerous drug in the third degree, HRS § 712-1243(1), is a lesser included offense of promoting dangerous drug in the first degree, HRS § 712-1241(1)(a)(i). State v. Wallace, 80 Hawai`i 382, 910 P.2d 695 (1996).

PROMOTING DETRIMENTAL DRUG 1°

Promoting Detrimental Drug 2°: Although HRS § 712-1248(l)(d) (distributing marijuana in any amount) is a lesser included offense of HRS § 712-1247(1)(f) (distributing 1 oz. or more of a substance containing marijuana), it was not a lesser included of the offense actually charged, HRS § 712-1247 (1)(h) (selling or bartering marijuana). State v. Rullman, 78 Hawai`i 488, 896 P.2d 944 (App. 1995).

PROMOTING PRISON CONTRABAND 1°

Promoting Prison Contraband 2°: The offense in HRS § 710- 1023 (promoting prison contraband in the second degree) is a lesser included offense of that in HRS §710-1022 (promoting prison contraband in the first degree) when the charge is based on in-prison possession of marijuana. State v. Hatori, 92 Hawai'i 217, 990 P.2d 115 (App.1999).

CHAPTER 134

FIREARMS

Prohibited Ownership or Possession of Firearm or Ammunition: There are no lesser included offenses of HRS § 134-7(b) and therefore the cases may not be remanded for retrial. State v. Sanchez, 82 Hawai`i 517, 923 P.2d 934 (1996).

TRAFFIC

DUTY UPON STRIKING ATTENDED VEHICLE OR PROPERTY

Unattended Property: The offense of violating HRS § 291C15, which involves the duties with respect to collisions with unattended property, is an included offense of HRS § 291C-13 and -14, which involves the duties with respect to collisions with attended property. State v. Gartrell, 9 Haw.App. 156, 828 P.2d 298 (1992).

DRIVING WHILE LICENSE IS SUSPENDED

Driving Without a License: Since driving without a license is not a lesser included offense of driving while license suspended, the amended complaint charged an additional or different charge from the original complaint and was thus improper. State v. Matautia, 81 Hawai`i 76, 912 P.2d 573 (App. 1996).

5.03B INCLUDED OFFENSE WHEN GREATER OFFENSE IS ALTERNATIVELY CHARGED IN A SINGLE COUNT: GENERIC

If and only if you find the Defendant, (defendant's name), not guilty of both of the alternatives of (charged offense) in Count (count number), or you are unable to reach a unanimous verdict as to both of the alternatives, or you find the Defendant not guilty of one of the alternatives and are unable to reach a unanimous verdict as to the other alternative, then you must consider whether the Defendant is guilty or not guilty of the included offense of (included offense).

HAWJIC 5.03B (Added 8/26/11)

5.03C INCLUDED OFFENSE WHEN GREATER OFFENSE IS ALTERNATIVELY CHARGED IN SEPARATE COUNTS: GENERIC

If and only if you find the Defendant, (defendant's name), not guilty of both of the alternatives of (charged offense) in Counts (count numbers), or you are unable to reach a unanimous verdict as to Counts (count numbers), or you find the Defendant not guilty of one of the alternatives in Counts (count numbers) and are unable to reach a unanimous verdict as to the other alternative, then you must consider whether the Defendant is guilty or not guilty of the included offense of (included offense).

HAWJIC 5.03C (Added 8/26/11)

5.04 MERGER – CONTINUING AND UNINTERRUPTED COURSE OF CONDUCT: H.R.S. § 701-109(1)(e)

If and only if you find the Defendant guilty of both (name of offense) in Count (count number) and (name of offense) in Count (count number), then you must answer the following questions on a special interrogatory that will be provided to you:

(1) Did the prosecution prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the Defendant did not commit (name of offense) in Count (count number) and (name of offense) in Count (count number) as part of a continuing and uninterrupted course of conduct?

(2) Did the prosecution prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the Defendant committed (name of offense) in Count (count number) and (name of offense) in Count (count number) with separate and distinct intents, rather than acting with one intention, one general impulse, and one plan to commit both offenses?

Your answers to these questions must be unanimous.

Notes

This instruction addresses only the form of merger contemplated by HRS § 701 109(1)(e) and the cases construing it. Generally, offenses will merge pursuant to § 701-109(1)(e) whenever "(1) there is but one intention, one general impulse, and one plan, (2) the ... offenses are part and parcel of a continuing and uninterrupted course of conduct, and (3) the law does not provide that specific periods of conduct constitute separate offenses." State v. Hoey, 77 Hawai'i 17, 38 (1994) (citations omitted). The instruction incorporates only the factual determinations required by Hoey. For merger to occur, both questions posed by the instruction must be answered in the negative.

All factual issues involved in the merger determination must be decided by the trier of fact. Hoey, 77 Hawai'i at 27 n. 9. Where § 701-109(1)(e) applies, the failure to give a merger instruction is plain error. State v. Matias, 102 Hawai'i 300, 306 (2003).

5.04A MERGER – CONTINUING AND UNINTERRUPTED COURSE OF CONDUCT: SPECIAL INTERROGATORY

If and only if you find the Defendant guilty of both (name of offense) in Count (count number) and (name of offense) in Count (count number), then you must answer the following questions. Your answers must be unanimous.

Question 1. Did the prosecution prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the Defendant did not commit (name of offense) in Count (count number) and (name of offense) in Count (count number) as part of a continuing and uninterrupted course of conduct?

_____ Yes _____ No

Question 2. Did the prosecution prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the Defendant committed (name of offense) in Count (count number) and (name of offense) in Count (count number) with separate and distinct intents, rather than acting with one intention, one general impulse, and one plan to commit both offenses)?

_____ Yes _____ No

5.05. Murder in the Second Degree--By Omission--Generic: H.R.S. §§ 707-701.5 and 702-203(2)

[In Count (count number) of the Indictment/Complaint, the] [The] Defendant, (defendant's name), is charged with the offense of Murder in the Second Degree.

A person commits the offense of Murder in the Second Degree if he/she causes the death of another person by intentionally or knowingly failing to (specify the duty), a duty imposed by law upon a (specify the relationship that creates the duty), intending or knowing that the failure to perform that duty would cause the death of the other person.

There are four material elements of the offense of Murder in the Second Degree, each of which the prosecution must prove beyond a reasonable doubt.

These four elements are:

1. That the Defendant was (specify factual finding(s) necessary to raise a legal duty); and

2. That, on or about (date) in the [City and] County of (name of county), the Defendant intentionally or knowingly failed to (specify the duty), a duty imposed by law upon a (specify the relationship that creates the duty); and

3. That the Defendant failed to perform that duty intending or knowing that his/her failure would cause the death of the other person; and

4. That the Defendant's failure to perform that duty caused the death of the other person.

For definition of states of mind, see instructions:
6.02 - "intentionally"
6.03 - "knowingly"

The Committee discussed whether element two of the instruction could be satisfied by merely showing a voluntary omission. But see H.R.S. § 702-200(1).

5.05A. Murder in the Second Degree--Murder Alleged by Commission and Omission in One Count--Generic: Parent/Minor Child (With Included Offense and Defense): H.R.S. §§ 707-701.5 and 702-203(2) [Renumbered as 9.07B]

5.06A. ALTERNATIVE FORMS OF ASSAULT IN THE SECOND DEGREE IN THE SAME COUNT (SUBSTANTIAL BODILY INJURY AND DANGEROUS INSTRUMENT): H.R.S. § 707-711(1)(a), (b), (d)

[In Count (count number) of the Indictment/Complaint/ Information, the] [The] Defendant, (defendant's name), is charged with the offense of Assault in the Second Degree.

This offense can be committed in either of two ways: Assault in the Second Degree (Substantial Bodily Injury) or Assault in the Second Degree (Dangerous Instrument).

As to the first alternative, a person commits the offense of Assault in the Second Degree (Substantial Bodily Injury) if he/she intentionally, knowingly, or recklessly causes substantial bodily injury to another person.

There are two material elements of the offense of Assault in the Second Degree (Substantial Bodily Injury), each of which the prosecution must prove beyond a reasonable doubt.

These two elements are:

1. That, on or about (date) in the [City and] County of (name of county), the Defendant caused substantial bodily injury to another person; and

2. That the Defendant did so intentionally, knowingly, or recklessly.

As to the second alternative, a person commits the offense of Assault in the Second Degree (Dangerous Instrument) if he/she intentionally or knowingly causes bodily injury to another person with a dangerous instrument.

There are three material elements of the offense of Assault in the Second Degree (Dangerous Instrument), each of which the prosecution must prove beyond a reasonable doubt.

These three elements are:

1. That, on or about (date) in the [City and] County of (name of county), the Defendant caused bodily injury to another person; and

2. That the Defendant did so with a dangerous instrument; and

3. That the Defendant acted intentionally or knowingly as to elements 1 and 2.

You are to consider each alternative of Assault in the Second Degree separately. The fact you may find that one of the alternatives has or has not been proved beyond a reasonable doubt does not mean that you must reach the same decision with respect to the other alternative. In order to find that the offense of Assault in the Second Degree has been proved, you must unanimously agree that the same alternative or both of the alternatives have been proved beyond a reasonable doubt. Proof beyond a reasonable doubt of one or both of the alternatives will result in the conviction of only one offense of Assault in the Second Degree.

5.06B ALTERNATIVE FORMS OF ASSAULT IN THE SECOND DEGREE IN SEPARATE COUNTS (SUBSTANTIAL BODILY INJURY AND DANGEROUS INSTRUMENT): H.R.S. § 707-711(1)(a), (b), (d)

[The] Defendant, (defendant's name), is charged in two separate counts with a single offense of Assault in the Second Degree. This offense can be proven by the prosecution in either of two ways. These alternatives have been designated in the Indictment/Complaint/Information as Count (count number), Assault in the Second Degree (Substantial Bodily Injury), and Count (count number), Assault in the Second Degree (Dangerous Instrument).

As to the first alternative charged in Count (count number), a person commits the offense of Assault in the Second Degree (Substantial Bodily Injury) if he/she intentionally, knowingly, or recklessly causes substantial bodily injury to another person.

There are two material elements of the offense of Assault in the Second Degree (Substantial Bodily Injury), each of which the prosecution must prove beyond a reasonable doubt.

These two elements are:

1. That, on or about (date) in the [City and] County of (name of county), the Defendant caused substantial bodily injury to another person; and

2. That the Defendant did so intentionally, knowingly, or recklessly.

As to the second alternative charged in Count (count number), a person commits the offense of Assault in the Second Degree (Dangerous Instrument) if he/she intentionally or knowingly causes bodily injury to another person with a dangerous instrument.

There are three material elements of the offense of Assault in the Second Degree (Dangerous Instrument), each of which the prosecution must prove beyond a reasonable doubt.

These three elements are:

1. That, on or about (date) in the [City and] County of (name of county), the Defendant caused bodily injury to another person; and

2. That the Defendant did so with a dangerous instrument; and

3. That the Defendant acted intentionally or knowingly as to elements 1 and 2.

You are to consider each alternative of Assault in the Second Degree separately. The fact you may find that one of the counts has or has not been proved beyond a reasonable doubt does not mean that you must reach the same decision with respect to the other count. In order to find that the offense of Assault in the Second Degree has been proved, you must unanimously agree that the same count or both of the counts have been proved beyond a reasonable doubt. Proof beyond a reasonable doubt of one or both of the counts will result in the conviction of only one offense of Assault in the Second Degree.

5.07. Count Removed From Jury Consideration: Generic

The charge of (specify offense) in Count (count number) has been removed from your consideration and is no longer before you for decision.

Do not concern yourself with this development and do not speculate about it.

The removal of Count (count number) must not influence your consideration as to whether the Defendant is not guilty or guilty of [any of] the remaining count(s).

Notes

This instruction is appropriate when a count has been removed from jury consideration prior to the commencement of deliberations.

TABLE OF INSTRUCTIONS[9]

6. RESPONSIBILITY

[9] The original instructions approved and published in Volume I in December, 1991 are not dated. New or amended instructions in Volumes I and II reflect the Supreme Court's approval date in parentheses.

6.01 ACCOMPLICE

A defendant charged with committing an offense may be guilty because he/she is an accomplice of another person in the commission of the offense. The prosecution must prove accomplice liability beyond a reasonable doubt.

A person is an accomplice of another in the commission of an offense if:

1. With the intent to promote or facilitate the commission of the offense, he/she

a. solicits the other person to commit it; or

b. aids or agrees or attempts to aid the other person in the planning or commission of the offense; [or]

[c. having a legal duty to prevent the commission of the offense, fails to make a reasonable effort to do so;] [or]

[2. His/Her conduct is expressly declared by law to establish his/her complicity.]

Mere presence at the scene of an offense or knowledge that an offense is being committed, without more, does not make a person an accomplice to the offense. However, if a person plans or participates in the commission of an offense with the intent to promote or facilitate the offense, he/she is an accomplice to the commission of the offense.

"Intent to promote or facilitate" means to have the conscious objective of bringing about the commission of (charged offense).

Commentary

HRS §§ 702-221 through 702-226 describe "liability for conduct of another" or accomplice liability. If an indictment charges a defendant as a principal, it is not error to instruct the jury that under the facts of a particular case, the defendant may be guilty as an accomplice. State v. Apao, 59 Haw. 625, 644, 586 P.2d 250, 262 (1978); see also State v. Fukusaku, 85 Hawai`i 462, 946 P.2d 32 (1997) (one who is charged as a principal can be convicted as an accomplice without accomplice allegations being made in the indictment); State v. Sequin, 9 Haw.App. 551, 851 P.2d 926 (1993) (a person can violate HRS § 134-6, place to keep firearms, either as a principal or as an accomplice). The Commentary to HRS § 702- 221 states that "[d]istinctions between principals and accessories have been dispensed with and a defendant may be convicted directly of an offense committed by another for whose conduct he is accountable." Apao, 59 Haw. at 644, 586 P.2d at 262; State v. Churchill, 4 Haw.App. 276, 283, 664 P.2d 757, 762 (1983).

In State v. Soares, 72 Haw. 278, 815 P.2d 428 (1991), the court set aside an accomplice conviction because the accomplice instruction did not contain a mens rea element thereby relieving the prosecution of its burden of proving that defendants acted with the requisite intent. To be guilty as an accomplice, a person must act with the intent of promoting or facilitating the commission of the crime. Id. For example, "with regard to accomplice liability for second degree murder, it is not necessary for the State to prove that the defendant 'intentionally or knowingly' caused the death of another. Rather, under HRS § 702-222, the accomplice liability statute, the State is required to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that with regard to his or her state of mind, the defendant had the intent to 'promote or facilitate' the commission of second degree murder." State v. Brantley, 84 Hawai`i 112, 121, 929 P.2d 1362, 1371 (App. 1996). The definition of "intent to promote or facilitate" given in this instruction is taken from the opinion in State v. Basham, 132 Hawai'i 97, 109, 319 P.3d 1105, 1117 (2014).

An accomplice instruction which advises the jury that such testimony should be viewed with caution or suspicion is not required in every case where the accomplice substantially aids the prosecution's proof. State v. Okumura, 78 Hawai`i 383, 894 P.2d 80 (1995) (overruling State v. Chang, 46 Haw. 22, 374 P.2d 5 (1962)). A court in its discretion may give such an instruction, considering whether the jury's attention was adequately drawn to the possible motives that the accomplice witness may have had to testify falsely. Okumura, 78 Hawai`i 383, 894 P.2d 80. See HAWJIC 6.01A.

The theory of accomplice liability applies when use or possession of firearm is an element of the offense or is a separate offense, even though the defendant did not engage in the requisite conduct. Garringer v. State, 80 Hawai`i 327, 332, 909 P.2d 1133 (1996). However, HRS § 706-660.1(1) precludes the imposition of enhanced sentencing with respect to a defendant's conviction of robbery where the defendant did not personally possess, threaten to use, or use a firearm while engaged in the commission of that felony. Garringer, 80 Hawai`i at 333-34, 909 P.2d at 1148-49. The circuit court should instruct the jury, by special verdict interrogatories, to make any and all findings relevant to the imposition of an enhanced sentence under HRS § 706-660.1. Garringer, 80 Hawai`i at 335, 909 P.2d at 1150. See HAWJIC 6.01C.

6.01A CAUTION AS TO ACCOMPLICE

The testimony of an alleged accomplice should be examined and weighed by you with greater care and caution than the testimony of ordinary witnesses. You should decide whether the witness's testimony has been affected by the witness's interest in the outcome of the case, or by prejudice against the defendant, or by the benefits that the witness stands to receive because of his/her testimony, or by the witness's fear of retaliation from the government.

Commentary

This instruction is not mandatory whenever an accomplice instruction is given. Rather, "in some cases in which the testimony of an accomplice substantially aids the prosecution's proof, a trial court may act properly within its discretion if it refuses or otherwise fails to give an accomplice witness instruction." State v. Okumura, 78 Hawai`i 383, 408, 894 P.2d 80, 105 (1995).

The purpose of an accomplice instruction is to assure that the jury realizes that an admitted accomplice's testimony may be affected by the hope of a favor or conversely by the fear of reprisal from the government and considers this factor in weighing such person's testimony. United States v. Beasley, 519 F.2d 233, 243 (5th Cir. 1975), vacated on other grounds, 425 U.S. 956 (1976).

"In deciding whether to give an accomplice witness instruction . . . the trial court must consider the need for such an instruction in light of the evidence presented regarding the witness's possible motives to fabricate, particularly the cross-examination of the accomplice witness, as well as the opening statements and arguments made by counsel, and weigh that against the disparaging effect that the giving of an accomplice witness instruction could have." Okumura, 78 Hawai`i at 408, 894 P.2d at 105. "Other relevant considerations should also be considered by the trial court." Id. For example, the Hawai`i Supreme Court in Okumura quoted a California case, as follows:

> When one of several defendants takes the stand to confess his own guilt and incriminates his codefendants, the accomplice instruction should be given. If, however, each of several defendants testifies in his own defense and none is called as a witness for or against the others, the instructions are not appropriate. Even where one defendant denies participation and incriminates another, the instruction should not be given.

78 Hawai`i at 408 n.21, 894 P.2d at 105 n.21 (quoting People v. Fowler, 196 Cal.App.3d 79, 86, 241 Cal.Rptr. 571, 575 (1987) (quoting People v. Sawyer, 256 Cal.App.2d 66, 73, 63 Cal.Rptr. 749, 753 (1967))).

"Instructions that simply tell the jury to be suspicious of an accomplice's testimony do not ensure that jurors will properly consider the factors that could be influencing the testimony." Okumura, 78 Hawai`i at 408 n.20, 894 P.2d at 105 n.20. "Indeed, if an instruction that does not delineate those factors is given, jurors might discredit a truthful accomplice witness simply because of the instruction, even though the jurors may not have thought that the witness's testimony was affected by the hope of a favor or by the fear of reprisal from the government." Id. "Therefore, if accomplice witness instructions are to be given in any particular case, . . . the trial court, with the assistance of counsel, . . . [should] craft accomplice witness instructions that do more than simply tell the jury to be suspicious of the accomplice's testimony. Id.

6.02. STATE OF MIND -- INTENTIONALLY

A person acts intentionally with respect to his conduct when it is his conscious object to engage in such conduct.

A person acts intentionally with respect to attendant circumstances when he is aware of the existence of such circumstances or believes or hopes that they exist.

A person acts intentionally with respect to a result of his conduct when it is his conscious object to cause such a result.

Commentary

See HRS § 702-206(1). Where the evidence of crime was such that it could only have been done intentionally, the use of the surplus words "or knowingly" in a jury instruction was not error. State v. Reiger, 64 Haw. 510, 644 P.2d 959 (1982) (attempted murder).

"The basic distinction between a person who acts purposely (intentionally) and one who acts knowingly is that the former actor desires to engage in given conduct (which happens to amount to a crime) or desires by his conduct to cause a prohibited harmful result, while the latter actor is merely aware that he is engaging in given conduct (which happens to amount to a crime) or is aware that it is practically certain that his conduct will cause a prohibited harmful result." State v. Pinero, 70 Haw. 509, 522 n.7, 778 P.2d 704 (1989) (emphasis in original).

6.03. STATE OF MIND -- KNOWINGLY

A person acts knowingly with respect to his conduct when he is aware that his conduct is of that nature.

A person acts knowingly with respect to attendant circumstances when he is aware that such circumstances exist.

A person acts knowingly with respect to a result of his conduct when he is aware that it is practically certain that his conduct will cause such a result.

Commentary

See HRS § 702-206(2).

"The basic distinction between a person who acts purposely (intentionally) and one who acts knowingly is that the former actor desires to engage in given conduct (which happens to amount to a crime) or desires by his conduct to cause a prohibited harmful result, while the latter actor is merely aware that he is engaging in given conduct (which happens to amount to a crime) or is aware that it is practically certain that his conduct will cause a prohibited harmful result." State v. Pinero, 70 Haw. 509, 522 n.7, 778 P.2d 704 (1989) (emphasis in original).

6.04. STATE OF MIND -- RECKLESSLY

A person acts recklessly with respect to his conduct when he consciously disregards a substantial and unjustifiable risk that the person's conduct is of the specified nature.

A person acts recklessly with respect to attendant circumstances when he consciously disregards a substantial and unjustifiable risk that such circumstances exist.

A person acts recklessly with respect to a result of his conduct when he consciously disregards a substantial and unjustifiable risk that his conduct will cause such a result.

A risk is substantial and unjustifiable if, considering the nature and purpose of the person's conduct and the circumstances known to him, the disregard of the risk involves a gross deviation from the standard of conduct that a law abiding person would observe in the same situation.

Commentary

See HRS 702-206(3).

"The difference between the terms recklessly and negligently, as usually defined, is one of kind, rather than degree." State v. Pinero, 70 Haw. 509, 522 n.7, 778 P.2d 704 (1989). "Each actor creates a risk of harm." Id. (emphasis in original). "The reckless actor is aware of the risk and disregards it; the negligent actor is not aware of the risk but should have been aware of it." Id. (emphasis in original).

6.05. STATE OF MIND -- NEGLIGENTLY

A person acts negligently with respect to his conduct when he should be aware of a substantial and unjustifiable risk taken that the person's conduct is of the specified nature.

A person acts negligently with respect to attendant circumstances when he should be aware of a substantial and unjustifiable risk that such circumstances exist.

A person acts negligently with respect to a result of his conduct when he should be aware of a substantial and unjustifiable risk that his conduct will cause such a result.

A risk is substantial and unjustifiable if the person's failure to perceive it, considering the nature and purpose of his conduct and the circumstances known to him, involves a gross deviation from the standard of care that a law-abiding person would observe in the same situation.

Commentary

See 702-206(4).

"The difference between the terms recklessly and negligently, as usually defined, is one of kind, rather than degree." State v. Pinero, 70 Haw. 509, 522 n.7, 778 P.2d 704 (1989). "Each actor creates a risk of harm." Id. (emphasis in original). "The reckless actor is aware of the risk and disregards it; the negligent actor is not aware of the risk but should have been aware of it." Id. (emphasis in original).

6.06. POSSESSION

A person is in possession of an object if the person knowingly procured or received the thing possessed or was aware of his/her control of it for a sufficient period to have terminated his/her possession.

The law recognizes two kinds of possession: actual possession and constructive possession.

A person who, although not in actual possession, knowingly has both the power and the intention, at a given time, to exercise dominion or control over a thing for a sufficient period to terminate his/her possession of it, either directly or through another person or persons, is then in constructive possession of it. The fact that a person is near an object or is present or associated with a person who controls an object, without more, is not sufficient to support a finding of possession.

[The law recognizes also that possession may be sole or joint. If one person alone has actual or constructive possession of a thing, possession is sole. If two or more persons share actual or constructive possession of a thing, possession is joint.]

The element of possession has been proved if you find beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant had actual or constructive possession, [either solely or jointly with others.]

Commentary

Possession is a voluntary act only if the defendant knowingly procured or received the thing possessed or if the defendant was aware of the defendant's control of it for a sufficient period to have been able to terminate the defendant's possession. HRS § 702-202. State v. Jenkins , No. 22071, slip op. (Apr. 6, 2000) (overruling State v. Mundell). See State v. Auwae, 89 Hawai`i 59, 968 P.2d 1070 (App. 1998); State v. Lloyd, 61 Haw. 505, 514 n. 7, 606 P.2d 913, 919 (1980).

Thus, under HRS § 702-202, an individual may be found to have possessed a thing only if he/she did so knowingly or intentionally. However, the knowing requisite applies only for the possession of the physical object itself. State v. Jenkins, supra. The particular qualities or properties of the object that make it a crime to possess the object are governed by the state of mind specified in the offense. When the offense lacks a scienter requirement, possession as to the particular qualities of an object that make possession of it a crime may be satisfied by a finding of recklessness. HRS § 702-204.

Therefore, possession must be analyzed as a two-prong analysis: (1) possession of an object itself is satisfied where the person acts knowingly; and (2) the attendant circumstances -- the particular qualities of the object that make it illegal to posses it -- are satisfied by the specific state of mind stated in the offense or by a reckless state of mind when the offense lacks a scienter requirement. State v. Jenkins, supra (overruling State v. Mundell, 8 Haw.App. 610, 822 P.2d 23 (1991) and State v. Auwae, 89 Hawai`i 59 (App. 1998) to the extent incompatible with the Jenkins analysis.)

The term "control" is subsumed in the definition of "possession" and the same two-pronged analysis would apply. State v. Jenkins, supra. While " carrying" and "possessing" are not synonymous (e.g. the place to keep offense, HRS § 134-6, employs "carry" in terms of carrying on the person and carrying in a vehicle), "carrying" implies personal agency and some degree of possession. Thus, the knowing requirement of HRS § 702-202 is triggered, and the two-pronged analysis applies.

In State v. Mundell, 8 Haw.App. 610, 822 P.2d 23 (1991), the defendant argued that drug offenses require him to have actual possession of contraband on his person and that constructive possession is not sufficient to support the charge. "[T]he legislature intended to impose penal sanctions," ruled the Mundell court, "for constructive as well as actual possession of contraband items." 8 Haw.App. at 618-619, 822 P.2d 27-28. To support a finding of constructive possession the evidence must show "a sufficient nexus between the accused and the drug to permit an inference that the accused has both the power and the intent to exercise dominion and control over the drug." 8 Haw.App. at 622. "Mere proximity to the [object], mere presence, or mere association with the person who does control the [object] is insufficient to support a finding of possession." Id; see also State v. Opupele, 88 Hawai`i 433, 967 P.2d 265 (1998).

HRS § 712-1251 (possession in a motor vehicle) states, "the presence of a dangerous drug, harmful drug, or detrimental drug in a motor vehicle, other than a public omnibus, is prima facie evidence of knowing possession thereof by each and every person in the vehicle at the time the drug is found." State v. Brighter, 61 Haw. 99, 595 P.2d 1072 (1979) (absent a clarifying statement that HRS § 712-1251 creates a prima facia inference as to dealership quantities, and not a certainty, an instruction based on HRS § 712-1251 improperly shifted the burden of proof of possession from the prosecution to the defendant); State v. Pimental, 61 Haw. 308, 603 P.2d 141 (1979); State v. Fabio, 1 Haw.App. 544, 622 P.2d 619 (1981).

In State v. Reed, 77 Hawai`i 72, 88, 881 P.2d 1218, 1234 (1994), the Hawai`i Supreme Court held that despite the fact the prohibited drug was delivered in three separate bindles on the day of the incident, nothing in the statute requires that the defendant "possess at any one time" 1/8 ounce or more of the substance or that the substance be delivered all at once in a single container. The defendant had agreed to give, and actually delivered a substance weighing more than 1/8 ounce in the aggregate, and actual delivery is not required for distribution. Id.

Possession of a microscopic amount of a drug in combination with other factors indicating an inability to use or sell the narcotic may constitute a de minimis infraction, although "traffic in narcotics can hardly be said to be a de minimis offense." State v. Reed, 77 Hawai`i 72, 85, 881 P.2d 1218, 1231 (1994); see also State v. Schofill, 63 Haw. 77, 84, 621 P.2d 364, 370 (1980); State v. Vance, 61 Haw. 291, 307, 602 P.2d 933, 944 (1979). However, dismissal of a prosecution pursuant to HRS § 702-236 is within the discretion of the court, and is not a defense. State v. Reed, 77 Hawai`i 72, 85, 881 P.2d 1218, 1231 (1994).

The Hawai`i appellate courts have not previously addressed the defense of possession for the sole purpose of disposing of contraband or reporting it to police. State v. Opupele, 88 Hawai`i 433, 967 P.2d 265 (1998). While the Opupele decision noted that "courts in other jurisdictions have recognized this as a defense to a criminal prosecution," the supreme court found that under the facts present in the Opupele case it was unnecessary to decide whether this defense should be recognized. Id. at 439.

6.07 STATE OF MIND REQUIRED

A person is not guilty of an offense unless the State proves beyond a reasonable doubt that the person acted with the required state(s) of mind, as these instructions specify, with respect to each element of the offense. The instruction for [the] [each] offense charged specifies the state(s) of mind required to be proved.

Notes

See H.R.S. §§ 704-204, 702-205.

Modification of this instruction is required for those "relatively few instances" when absolute or strict liability applies to an element of an offense. See Commentary on H.R.S. § 702-204.

TABLE OF INSTRUCTIONS[10]

7. SPECIFIC DEFENSES

[10] The original instructions approved and published in Volume I in December 1991 are not dated. New or amended instructions in Volumes I and II reflect the Supreme Court's approval date in parentheses.

7. SPECIFIC DEFENSES

INTRODUCTORY COMMENT

A defendant "is entitled to an instruction on every defense or theory of defense having any support in the evidence . . . no matter how weak, inconclusive or unsatisfactory the evidence may be." State v. Robinson, 82 Hawai`i 304, 922 P.2d 358 (1996); State v. O'Daniel, 62 Haw. 518, 527, 616 P.2d 1383, 1390 (1980) (emphasis in original); see also State v. Pinero, 70 Haw. 509, 778 P.2d 704 (1989); State v. Lira, 70 Haw. 23, 759 P.2d 869 (1988); State v. Estrada, 69 Haw. 204, 738 P.2d 812 (1987); State v. Russo, 69 Haw. 72, 734 P.2d 156 (1987); State v. Cordeira, 68 Haw. 207, 707 P.2d 373 (1985); State v. Unea, 60 Haw. 504, 591 P.2d 615 (1979); State v. Riveira, 59 Haw. 148, 577 P.2d 793 (1978); State v. Warner, 58 Haw. 492, 573 P.2d 959 (1977); State v. Dumlao, 6 Haw.App. 173, 715 P.2d 822 (1977); State v. Santiago, 53 Haw. 254, 492 P.2d 657 (1971); State v. Irvin, 53 Haw. 119, 488 P.2d 327 (1971); State v. Chang, 46 Haw. 22, 347 P.2d 5 (1962); Territory v. Alcantara, 24 Haw. 197 (1918).

The court should review the evidence "in a light most favorable to [the defendant] in determining whether or not the instruction should be given." Lira, 70 Haw. at 30, 759 P.2d at 873; O'Daniel, 62 Haw. at 527, 616 P.2d at 1390-91.

But "where evidentiary support for the asserted defense, or any of its essential components, is clearly lacking, it would not be error for the trial court either to refuse to charge on the issue or to instruct the jury not to consider it." Lira, 70 Haw. 23, 759 P.2d 869; Russo, 69 Haw. at 76, 734 P.2d at 158; State v. Manloloyo, 61 Haw. 193, 600 P.2d 1139 (1979); State v. Horn, 58 Haw. 252, 566 P.2d 1378 (1977).

The Hawai`i Penal Code "places an initial burden on the defendant to come forward with some credible evidence of facts constituting the defense, unless, of course, those facts are supplied by the prosecution's witnesses." Commentary to HRS § 701- 115 (1985); see also State v. Gabrillo, 10 Haw.App. 448, 877 P.2d 891 (1994). If affirmative defenses are not involved and the defendant introduces evidence of a defense or the evidence is provided by the government's witnesses, the defendant becomes "entitled to an acquittal if the trier of fact finds that the evidence, when considered in the light of any contrary prosecution evidence, raises a reasonable doubt as to the defendant's guilt." HRS § 701-115(2)(a) (1985); Gabrillo, 10 Haw.App. 448, 877 P.2d 891.

A defendant is entitled to have the jury instructed with inconsistent theories of defense if there is evidence supporting the theories. See Lira, 70 Haw. at 29, 759 P.2d at 873 ("[a] seeming inconsistency of defenses thus did not preclude an instruction on consent"); State v. Pavao, 81 Hawai`i 142, 913 P.2d 553 (App. 1996) (defendant entitled to defense of others instruction even if he was also asserting that he never struck complainant); see also Santiago, 53 Haw. 254, 492 P.2d 657; Irvin, 53 Haw. 119, 488 P.2d 327.

If the evidence supports a defense, the trial court's denial of an improperly worded defense instruction, or an instruction that is inaccurate in some particular, does not relieve the trial court from the burden of instructing the jury on every defense or theory of defense having support in the evidence. Riveira, 59 Haw. 148, 577 P.2d 793.

Where a jury has been given instructions on a defense other than an affirmative defense, but has not been instructed that the prosecution bears the burden of proof beyond a reasonable doubt to negative that defense, substantial rights of the defendant may be affected and plain error may be noticed. Raines v. State , 79 Hawai`i 219, 900 P.2d 1286 (1995) (overruling State v. McNulty, 60 Haw. 259, 588 P.2d 438 (1978)).

7.01A. Self-Defense When The Use of "Deadly Force" Is At Issue.

Self-defense is a defense to the charge(s) of (specify charge and its included offenses). Self-defense involves consideration of two issues. First, you must determine whether the defendant did or did not use "deadly force." Second, you must determine whether the force used was justified. The burden is on the prosecution to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the force used by the defendant was not justified. If the prosecution does not meet its burden, then you must find the defendant not guilty.

The first issue is: Did the defendant use "deadly force?"

"Deadly Force" means force which the defendant uses with the intent of causing, or which he/she knows to create a substantial risk of causing, death or serious bodily injury.

"Force" means any bodily impact, restraint, or confinement, or the threat thereof.

[Serious bodily injury means bodily injury which creates a substantial risk of death or which causes serious permanent disfigurement, or protracted loss or impairment of the function of any bodily member or organ.]

[Intentionally firing a firearm in the direction of another person or in the direction which the person is believed to be constitutes deadly force.]

HAWJIC 7.01A (Added 4/4/11)

[A threat to cause death or serious bodily injury, by the production of a weapon or otherwise, so long as the actor's intent is limited to creating an apprehension that he/she will use deadly force if necessary, does not constitute deadly force.]

If you determine that the defendant used "deadly force," then you are to proceed to the section in this instruction entitled "Deadly Force Used." If you determine that the defendant did not use "deadly force," then you are to proceed to the section in this instruction entitled "Deadly Force Not Used." You must then follow the law in the applicable section to determine the second issue, which is whether the force used by the defendant was justified.

"Deadly Force" Used

The use of deadly force upon or toward another person is justified if the defendant reasonably believes that deadly force is immediately necessary to protect himself/herself on the present occasion against [death] [serious bodily injury] [kidnapping] [rape] [forcible sodomy]. The reasonableness of the defendant's belief that the use of protective deadly force was immediately necessary shall be determined from the viewpoint of a reasonable person in the defendant's position under the circumstances of which the defendant was aware or as the defendant reasonably believed them to be when the deadly force was used.

[The use of deadly force is not justifiable if the defendant, with the intent of causing death or serious bodily injury, provoked the use of force against himself/herself in the same encounter.]

[The use of deadly force is not justifiable if the defendant knows that he/she can avoid the necessity of using such force with complete safety by retreating, but the defendant is not required to retreat from his/her own dwelling unless he/she was the initial aggressor. "Dwelling" means any building or structure, though movable or temporary, or a portion thereof, which is for the time being a home or place of lodging.]

[The use of deadly force is not justifiable if the defendant knows that he/she can avoid the necessity of using such force with complete safety by retreating, but the defendant is not required to retreat from his/her place of work unless he/she was the initial aggressor or is assailed in his/her place of work by another person whose place of work the defendant knows it to be.]

HAWJIC 7.01A (Added 4/4/11)

[The use of deadly force is not justifiable if the defendant knows that he can avoid the necessity of using such force with complete safety by [surrendering possession of a thing to a person asserting a claim of right thereto] [complying with a demand that he abstain from any action which he has no duty to take], but when the defendant [is a public officer justified in using force in the performance of his/her duties, or is a person justified in using force in assistance of that public officer] [is a person justified in making an arrest or preventing an escape], the defendant is not obliged to desist from efforts to [perform the duty] [effect the arrest or prevent the escape], because of resistance or threatened resistance by or on behalf of the person against whom the action is directed.]

"Deadly Force" Not Used

The use of force upon or toward another person is justified if the defendant reasonably believes that force is immediately necessary to protect himself/herself on the present occasion against the use of unlawful force by the other person. The reasonableness of the defendant's belief that the use of protective force was immediately necessary shall be determined from the viewpoint of a reasonable person in the defendant's position under the circumstances of which the defendant was aware or as the defendant reasonably believed them to be. The defendant may estimate the necessity for the use of force under the circumstances as he/she reasonably believes them to be when the force is used, without [retreating] [surrendering possession] [doing any other act that he/she has no legal duty to do] [abstaining from any lawful action].

[The use of force is not justifiable to resist an arrest which the defendant knows is being made by a law enforcement officer, even if the arrest is unlawful, but is justifiable if the officer threatens to use or uses unlawful force.]

[The use of force is not justifiable to resist force used by the occupier or possessor of property or by another person on his/her behalf, where the defendant knows that the person using the force is doing so under a claim of right to protect the property, but is justifiable if the defendant [is a public officer acting in the performance of his duties or a person lawfully assisting the officer therein] [is a person making or assisting in a lawful arrest] [reasonably believes that force is necessary to protect himself/herself against death or serious bodily injury.]

[The use of confinement as force is justifiable only if the defendant takes all reasonable measures to terminate the confinement as soon as he/she knows that he/she safely can, unless the person confined has been arrested on a charge of crime.]

HAWJIC 7.01A (Added 4/4/11)

"Force" means any bodily impact, restraint, or confinement, or the threat thereof.

"Unlawful force" means force which is used without the consent of the person against whom it is directed and the use of which would constitute an unjustifiable use of deadly force or force. A person cannot consent to the infliction of death, serious bodily injury, or substantial bodily injury.

"Serious bodily injury" means bodily injury which creates a substantial risk of death or which causes serious permanent disfigurement, or protracted loss or impairment of the function of any bodily member or organ.

"Substantial bodily injury" means bodily injury which causes: [A major avulsion, laceration, or penetration of the skin]; [a burn of at least second degree severity]; [a bone fracture]; [a serious concussion]; [or a tearing, rupture, or corrosive damage to the esophagus, viscera, or other internal organs].

"Bodily injury" means physical pain, illness, or any impairment of physical condition.

[Self-defense is not available for the offense(s) of (specify any offense in which the requisite state of mind is either recklessness or negligence) if the prosecution proves that:

(1) the defendant was reckless in believing that he/she was justified in using deadly force or force against the other person; or

(2) the defendant was reckless in acquiring or failing to acquire any knowledge or belief which was material to the justifiability of his/her use of deadly force or force against the other person.]

HAWJIC 7.01A (Added 4/4/11)

7.01B. Self-Defense When Only Force Is At Issue.

Self-defense is a defense to the charge(s) of (specify charge and its included offenses). The burden is on the prosecution to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the force used by the defendant was not justified. If the prosecution does not meet its burden, then you must find the defendant not guilty.

The use of force upon or toward another person is justified if the defendant reasonably believes that force is immediately necessary to protect himself/herself on the present occasion against the use of unlawful force by the other person. The reasonableness of the defendant's belief that the use of protective force was immediately necessary shall be determined from the viewpoint of a reasonable person in the defendant's position under the circumstances of which the defendant was aware or as the defendant reasonably believed them to be. The defendant may estimate the necessity for the use of force under the circumstances as he/she reasonably believes them to be when the force is used, without [retreating] [surrendering possession] [doing any other act that he/she has no legal duty to do] [abstaining from any lawful action].

[The use of force is not justifiable to resist an arrest which the defendant knows is being made by a law enforcement officer, even if the arrest is unlawful, but is justifiable if the officer threatens to use or uses unlawful force.]

[The use of force is not justifiable to resist force used by the occupier or possessor of property or by another person on his/her behalf, where the defendant knows that the person using the force is doing so under a claim of right to protect the property, but is justifiable if the defendant [is a public officer acting in the performance of his duties or a person lawfully assisting the officer therein] [is a person making or assisting in a lawful arrest] [reasonably believes that force is necessary to protect himself/herself against death or serious bodily injury.]

[The use of confinement as force is justifiable only if the defendant takes all reasonable measures to terminate the confinement as soon as he/she knows that he/she safely can, unless the person confined has been arrested on a charge of crime.]

"Force" means any bodily impact, restraint, or confinement, or the threat thereof.

"Unlawful force" means force which is used without the consent of the person against whom it is directed and the use of which would constitute an unjustifiable use of force. A person cannot consent to the infliction of death, serious bodily injury, or substantial bodily injury.

"Serious bodily injury" means bodily injury which creates a substantial risk of death or which causes serious permanent disfigurement, or protracted loss or impairment of the function of any bodily member or organ.

"Substantial bodily injury" means bodily injury which causes: [A major avulsion, laceration, or penetration of the skin]; [a burn of at least second degree severity]; [a bone fracture]; [a serious concussion]; [or a tearing, rupture, or corrosive damage to the esophagus, viscera, or other internal organs].

"Bodily injury" means physical pain, illness, or any impairment of physical condition.

[Self-defense is not available for the offense(s) of (specify any offense in which the requisite state of mind is either recklessness or negligence) if the prosecution proves that:

(1) the defendant was reckless in believing that he/she was justified in using force against the other person; or

(2) the defendant was reckless in acquiring or failing to acquire any knowledge or belief which was material to the justifiability of his/her use of force against the other person.]

Commentary

H.R.S. § 703-304 provides for "use of force in self-protection." H.R.S.§ 703-300 defines "believes," "force," "unlawful force" and "deadly force."

This instruction is applicable to all self-defense cases, including an offense involving a reckless state of mind, State v. Van Dyke, 101 Hawai'i 377, 69 P.3d 88 (2003), although the bracketed language may or may not apply depending upon the facts. H.R.S. § 703-304 provides for additional circumstances where the use of force or deadly force is not justifiable, and describes a duty to retreat depending upon the degree of force used. The standard instruction does not cover these additional considerations, and the standard instruction should be modified as appropriate. See State v. Napoleon, 2 Haw.App. 369, 633 P.2d 547 (1981) (the use of deadly force in striking the victim and breaking his arm with a baseball bat was not justified where the defendant knew he could avoid the necessity of using such force with complete safety by retreating.)

A defendant is entitled to an instruction on self-defense if there is any evidence before the jury bearing on that issue, no matter how weak, unsatisfactory or inconclusive it might appear to the court. State v. Unea, 60 Haw. 504, 591 P.2d 615 (1979); State v. Riveira, 59 Haw. 148, 577 P.2d 793 (1978); State v. Santiago, 53 Haw. 254, 492 P.2d 657 (1971). The instruction should be given even if it is inconsistent with an alternate theory of defense, such as accident, Santiago, 53 Haw. 254, 492 P.2d 657, or that the defendant never struck the complainant, State v. Pavao, 81 Hawai'i 142, 913 P.2d 553 (App. 1996).

H.R.S. §§ 701-115 and 702-205 make clear that self defense is an ordinary defense, and once the issue is raised, the prosecution has the burden to negative self-defense beyond a reasonable doubt. State v. Lubong, 77 Hawai'i 429, 886 P.2d 766 (App. 1994). The court must instruct the jury that the burden of disproving self-defense is on the prosecution. Raines v. State, 79 Hawai'i 219, 900 P.2d 1286 (1995); see also State v. Inoue, 3 Haw.App. 217, 646 P.2d 983 (1982) (the defendant in any criminal case is entitled to have the jury properly instructed with respect to the burden of proof). Plain error may be noticed where a court fails to instruct the jury that the government has the burden of disproving self-defense beyond a reasonable doubt. Raines, 79 Hawai'i 219, 900 P. 2d 1286 (overruling State v. McNulty, 60 Haw. 259, 588 P.2d 438 (1978), which had held that the defendant must request such a burden instruction at trial or the court's failure to give it is not reversible error). In State v. Carson, 1 Haw.App. 214, 617 P.2d 573 (1980), the Intermediate Court of Appeals found plain error affecting substantial rights when the trial court, at the defendant's request, affirmatively instructed that the defendant had the burden of proving self-defense by a preponderance of the evidence.

The use of force upon another person is not justifiable when the actor does not reasonably believe that such force is immediately necessary for the purpose of protecting himself against the use of unlawful force by the other person. State v. Sanchez, 2 Haw.App. 577, 636 P.2d 1365 (1981). If self-defense is raised in a homicide prosecution, evidence of the decedent's violent or aggressive character is admissible either to demonstrate the reasonableness of the defendant's apprehension of immediate danger or to show that the decedent was the aggressor. State v. Lui, 61 Haw. 328, 603 P.2d 151 (1979); State v. Estrada, 69 Haw. 204, 738 P.2d 812 (1987).

There is no offense of attempted reckless manslaughter. State v. Holbron, 80 Hawai'i 27, 904 P.2d 912 (1995) (overruling State v. Tagaro, 7 Haw.App. 291, 296, 757 P.2d 1175 (1987), where the Intermediate Court of Appeals held it was plain error for the court to not instruct the jury upon the included offense of attempted reckless manslaughter).

The standard of judging the reasonableness of a defendant's belief for the need to use deadly force is determined from the point of view of a reasonable person in the defendant's position under the circumstances as the defendant believed them to be. Estrada, 69 Haw. 204, 738 P.2d 812. The jury must consider the circumstances as the defendant subjectively believed them to be at the time the defendant defended himself or herself, and an instruction focusing the jury on "defendant's position under the circumstances shown in the evidence" was misleading and erroneous. State v. Pemberton, 71 Haw. 466, 477-78, 796 P.2d 80, 85 (1990). See also State v. Straub, 9 Haw.App. 435, 843 P.2d 1389 (1993) (the situation must be viewed from the defendant's point of view when defendant was forced to choose a course of action).

The facts of consequence to the determination of self-defense all concern the actor's state of mind: (1) whether the actor reasonably believed that deadly force was necessary, and (2) whether the actor reasonably believed that he or she was threatened with one of the specified harms. State v. Kupihea, 80 Hawai'i 307, 909 P.2d 1122 (1996). Compare Lubong, 77 Hawai'i 429, 886 P.2d 766 (to assess a defendant's self-protection defense requires a subjective determination of whether the defendant had the requisite belief that deadly force was necessary to avert death, serious bodily injury, kidnaping, rape, or forcible sodomy, and if the State fails to disprove that subjective belief, it then requires an objective determination of whether a reasonable person in the same situation as the defendant would have believed that deadly force was necessary for self-protection).

The use of force to resist the unlawful use of force by a police officer during an arrest may, in certain circumstances, require additional instruction, particularly on the issue of what constitutes "unlawful force" within the context of an arrest. See, e.g., H.R.S. §§ 703-307 (use of force in law enforcement) and 803-7 (use of force in effectuating an arrest); see also Territory v. Machado, 30 Haw. 487 (1928).

Reprinted herein is H.R.S. Commentary on § 703-310.

[The Proposed Draft of the Penal Code employed a subjective standard for justification. As mentioned previously and in the Supplemental Commentary hereafter, the Legislature introduced an objective or "reasonable man" standard. The following commentary is based on the Proposed Draft. The Supplemental Commentary indicates that § 703-310 may be contrary to the Legislature's actual intent.]

Subsection (1) states that, where the actor is reckless or negligent in forming a belief about the existence of facts which would establish a justification for his conduct, he does not have a defense of justification for any crime as to which recklessness or negligence suffices to establish culpability. This rule seems to be required in light of the Code's subjective standards of justification, which have led to the omission of the requirement that the actor's belief be reasonable.

Subsection (2) denies the defense of justification in cases which the actor negligently or recklessly injures or creates a risk of injury to innocent persons. In such cases the actor may be prosecuted for a crime involving negligence or recklessness as the case may be.

Reprinted herein is H.R.S. Supplemental Commentary on § 703-310.

As mentioned in the Supplemental Commentary on §§ 703-300 and 302, the Legislature introduced the "reasonable man standard" or objective standard in making a determination of whether a defense of justification is available. This being the case, it would appear that, where the defendant has been negligent in believing the use of force to be necessary, he loses the defense of justification for all related crimes, including those which require intent, knowledge, and recklessness, as well as negligence, to establish culpability. Thus, § 703-310, which was consistent with the principles of Chapter 703 as originally set forth in the Proposed Draft, now appears contrary to the Legislature's intent in this area.

7.03. DEFENSE TO THEFT

It is a defense to a charge of theft 1) that the defendant believed that he/she was entitled to the property or service involved under a claim of right, or 2) that the defendant believed that he/she was authorized by the owner or by law to obtain or exert control as he/she did. It does not matter if the defendant's belief was mistaken, as long as the defendant held the belief genuinely and in good faith at the time of the alleged offense. However, the interest which the defendant asserts under a claim of right 1) must be to the specific property or the specific service involved, and 2) must be a complete interest, not an interest shared with the alleged victim.

The prosecution has the burden of proving beyond a reasonable doubt that 1) the defendant was aware that the property or service belonged to another, 2) the defendant did not genuinely and in good faith believe he/she was entitled to the property or service under a claim of right, and 3) the defendant did not genuinely and in good faith believe that he/she was authorized by the owner or by law to obtain or exert control as he/she did.

Commentary

This instruction combines HRS §§ 702-218 and 708-834(1)(b).

HRS § 702-218 ("Ignorance or Mistake as a Defense") provides that "it is a defense that the accused engaged in the prohibited conduct under ignorance or mistake of fact" if "the ignorance or mistake negatives the state of mind" or "the law defining the offense" provides that "the state of mind established by such ignorance or mistake constitutes a defense."

HRS § 708-834(1)(b) provides that "[i]t is a defense to a prosecution for theft that the defendant . . . [b]elieved that he was entitled to the property or services under a claim of right or that he was authorized, by the owner or by law, to obtain and exert control as he did."

While unauthorized control of propelled vehicle (UCPV) is a form of theft, the legislature has chosen to treat UCPV differently from other varieties of theft and did not intend that HRS § 708-834 defenses to theft would apply to UCPV. State v. Palmeira, 10 Haw.App. 200, 862 P.2d 1073 (1993).

The HRS § 708-834 claim of right defense to theft does not apply in a prosecution for robbery. State v. McMillen, 83 Hawai`i 264, 925 P.2d 1088 (1996) (the legislature has expressed a policy discouraging assertion of self-help to recover property through the use of force).

7.04. INTOXICATION

Evidence of self-induced intoxication of the defendant may not be used to negative the state of mind sufficient to establish an element of the offense. However, evidence of self-induced intoxication of the defendant may be used to prove or negative conduct or to prove state of mind sufficient to establish an element of an offense.

"Intoxication" means a disturbance of mental or physical capacities resulting from the introduction of substances, including alcohol, into the body.

"Self-induced intoxication" means intoxication caused by substances, including alcohol, which the defendant knowingly introduces into his/her body, the tendency of which to cause intoxication he/she knows or ought to know.

Commentary

The intoxication defense statute, HRS § 702-230, was amended in 1986. HRS § 702-230, as amended, "prohibits a defendant who willingly becomes intoxicated and then commits a crime from using that self-induced intoxication as a defense. The use of such intoxication remains permissible for the limited purposes of proving or negating conduct or proving state of mind sufficient to establish an element of an offense." Supplemental Commentary to HRS § 702-230 (1986); see also State v. Freitas, 62 Haw. 17, 608 P.2d 408 (1980) (self-induced intoxication is not to be considered a substantial factor in determining legal responsibility, since mental disability excusing criminal responsibility must be the product of circumstances beyond the defendant's control).

In State v. Souza, 72 Haw. 246, 813 P.2d 1384 (1991), the defendant challenged the constitutionality of HRS § 702-230 (1986) and an instruction based on the statute. The statute -- and the instruction given -- were declared constitutional. See also State v. Birdsall, 88 Hawai`i 1, 960 P.2d 729 (1998) (reaffirming Souza decision that HRS § 702-230 is constitutional).

In State v. Tyrrell, 60 Haw. 17, 26 n.4, 586 P.2d 1028, 1034 n.4 (1978), the court ruled that "the better practice" under the then current statute was to refrain from using the term "defense" in instructing the jury with respect to intoxication.

In State v. Garringer, 80 Hawai`i 327, 909 P.2d 1142 (1996), the supreme court remanded the Rule 40 petition for a hearing on whether Defendant's counsel provided ineffective assistance by failing to obtain a psychiatric evaluation as to a possible trial defense of pathological intoxication based on mental illness induced or exacerbated by chronic use of "ice" or crystal methamphetamine.

7.05. CONSENT

In any prosecution, the complaining witness' consent to the conduct alleged or to the result thereof, is a defense if the consent negatives an element of the offense or precludes excuses the infliction of the harm [or evil] sought to be prevented by the law defining the offense.

[Consent is not a defense if:

(1) It is given by a person who is legally incompetent to authorize the conduct alleged; or

(2) It is given by a person who by reason of youth, mental disease, disorder, or defect, or intoxication is manifestly unable or known by the defendant to be unable to make a reasonable judgment as to the nature or harmfulness of the conduct alleged; or

(3) It is given by a person whose [improvident] consent is sought to be prevented by the law defining the offense; or

(4) It is induced by force, duress, or deception.]

Consent may be express or implied.

"Consent" means a voluntary agreement or concurrence.

The burden is upon the prosecution to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the complaining witness did not give express or implied consent to the conduct alleged or the result thereof. If the prosecution fails to meet its burden, then you must find the defendant not guilty.

HAWJIC 7.05 (Revised 5/5/17)

Commentary

At common law, consent was generally not a defense to a criminal prosecution. State v. Lira, 70 Haw. 23, 27, 759 P.2d 869, 872 (1988). HRS § 702-233, however, based on Model Penal Code § 2.11, provides that consent is a defense in a criminal prosecution "if the consent negatives an element of the offence or precludes the infliction of the harm or evil sought to be prevented by the law defining the offense." See also State v. Suka, 70 Haw. 472, 478, 777 P.2d 240, 243 (1989) ("if the consent negatives an element of the offense.") See HRS §§ 702-234 ("consent to bodily injury") and 702-235 ("ineffective consent").

A defendant may raise the defense of consent and the courts should so instruct the jury even though it is inconsistent with other defenses, such as denial that the conduct occurred. Lira, 70 Haw. 23, 759 P.2d 869 (1988). A defendant is entitled to a jury instruction on the defense of consent where there is any evidence of consent in a trial on sexual assault, however the consent instruction need not be included in the same instruction as the elements of sexual assault and can be given separately. State v. Horswill, 75 Haw. 152, 857 P.2d 579 (1993).

When a defendant requests an instruction on consent in a sex offense prosecution, and there is evidence of consent, the trial court must instruct the jury on the defense of consent notwithstanding the giving of instructions requiring the jury to find forcible compulsion. Suka, 70 Haw. 472, 777 P.2d 240. "Consent is a valid defense to the first degree sexual offenses since consent to the sexual conduct clearly negatives forcible compulsion." Id. at 478, 777 P.2d at 243. "Only the giving of a consent instruction will ensure that the defense of consent is not compromised." Id. However, consent is not a defense to statutory sexual assault (sexual penetration or contact with a person less than fourteen years old) since the complainant's consent or lack thereof is not an element of this form of the offense. State v. Cardus, 86 Hawai'i 426, 949 P.2d 1047 (App. 1997).

Consent must be informed consent. "Consent does not constitute a defense if . . . it is induced by force, duress or deception." HRS § 702-235(4). A teller's mistake in paying out too much money on cashing a check did not afford the defendant a consent defense. Territory v. Lee, 29 Haw. 30 (1926); see also State v. Oshiro, 5 Haw. App. 404, 696 P.2d 846 (1985) (the rape victim did not consent to the nitrous oxide administered by the defendant dentist). Consent also does not constitute a defense if it "is given by a person whose improvident consent is sought to be prevented by the law defining the offense." HRS § 702-235(3); Cardus, 86 Hawai'i 426, 949 P.2d 1047 (in those provisions of HRS §§ 707-730 and 707-733 where compulsion or strong compulsion is not an element of the offense, as in HRS § 707-731(1)(c), the lack of consent is not relevant to the harm sought to be prohibited by the statute, and thus an inmate's consent to sexual penetration is deemed "improvident" and "prevented" by law).

Consistent with the rationale that a youth or mentally defective person is incapable of giving consent, HRS § 702-235(2) provides that consent does not constitute a defense if "it is given by a person who by reason of youth, mental disease, or defect is manifestly unable or known by the defendant to be unable to make unreasonable judgment as to the nature or harmfulness of the conduct alleged. In re Doe, 81 Hawai'i 447, 918 P.2d 254 (App. 1996) (defendant could not be found guilty of HRS § 707-731(1)(b) unless it is proved beyond a reasonable doubt that (1) complainant was mentally defective, mentally incapacitated, or physically helpless, and (2) defendant was aware that complainant was such a person).

See State v. Adams, 10 Haw. App. 593, 605, 880 P.2d 226, 234 (1994) (consent may be express or implied).

7.06.AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE – GENERIC

The defendant has raised the affirmative defense of (specify the affirmative defense). Before you may consider (specify the affirmative defense), you must first determine whether the prosecution has proven all of the elements of (specify in the disjunctive charge(s) and any instructed included offense(s)) beyond a reasonable doubt. If you unanimously find that the prosecution has not proven all of the elements of (specify in the disjunctive charge(s) and any instructed included offense(s)) beyond a reasonable doubt, then you must find the defendant not guilty of that offense(s) without considering the affirmative defense. If you unanimously find that the prosecution has proven all of the elements of (specify in the disjunctive charge(s) and any instructed included offense(s)) beyond a reasonable doubt, then you must consider the affirmative defense of (specify the affirmative defense).

(Specify the affirmative defense) is an affirmative defense to the charge(s) of (specify in the disjunctive charge(s) and any instructed included offense(s)). (Provide a general statement of the affirmative defense).

(Specify the affirmative defense) has (specify number) elements. These (specify number) elements are: (particularize the affirmative defense into its elements).

HAWJIC 7.06 (6/29/00)

The defendant must prove an affirmative defense by a preponderance of the evidence. This means that the defendant must prove that it is more likely than not, or more probable than not, that each element of (specify the affirmative defense) occurred. In determining whether the defendant has proven an affirmative defense by a preponderance of the evidence, you must consider all of the evidence that has been presented to you regardless of who presented it.

If you unanimously find that the defendant has proven the elements of the affirmative defense by a preponderance of the evidence, then you must find the defendant not guilty of (specify in the disjunctive charge(s) and any instructed included offense(s)). If you unanimously find that the defendant has not proven the elements of the affirmative defense by a preponderance of the evidence, then you must find the defendant guilty of (specify charge(s) or any instructed offense(s)).*

If you are unable to reach a unanimous agreement as to whether the affirmative defense has been proved or not been proved, then a verdict may not be returned on (specify in the disjunctive charge(s) and any instructed included offense(s)).

* Modification of this sentence is required if any defense in addition to the affirmative defense is submitted to the jury.

HAWJIC 7.06 (6/29/00)

Commentary

While HRS § 702-205 provides that the prosecution must negative ordinary defenses "beyond a reasonable doubt," HRS § 701- 115(2)(b) provides that "[i]f the defense is an affirmative defense, the defendant is entitled to an acquittal if the trier of fact finds that the evidence, when considered in light of any contrary prosecution evidence, proves by a preponderance of the evidence the specified fact or facts which negative penal liability." See State v. Anderson, 58 Haw. 479, 484, 572 P.2d 159, 162 (1977) ("[t]he legislature clearly intended to provide for affirmative defenses by enacting Section 701-115, and we do not construe Section 702-205 in a manner that would nullify the provisions of Section 701-115").

HRS § 701-115(3) provides that "[a] defense is an affirmative defense if (a) [i]t is specifically so designated by the Code or another statute; or (b) [i]f the Code or another statute plainly requires the defendant to prove the defense by a preponderance of the evidence."

Affirmative defenses "specifically so designated" include duress (HRS § 702-231), insanity (HRS § 704-402), entrapment (HRS § 702-237), military orders (HRS § 702-232), choice of evils -- escape (HRS § 703-302) and mistake of law (HRS § 702-220). The alibi defense, i.e., evidence that the defendant was not present at the time of the crime, is not an affirmative defense. State v. Gabrillo, 10 Haw.App. 448, 877 P.2d 891 (1994).

The constitutionality of affirmative defenses was upheld in State v. Kelsey, 58 Haw. 234, 566 P.2d 1370 (1977) ("there is no constitutional due process violation"); see also Anderson, 58 Haw. at 482, 572 P.2d at 161 ("does not in any way lessen the requisite number of the elements to be proven by the state or the degree of the quantum of proof"). The form of the generic affirmative defense instruction is derived from State v. Miyashiro, 90 Hawai'i 489, 979 P.2d 85 (1999).

7.07. INSANITY

The defendant has raised the affirmative defense of physical or mental disease, disorder or defect excluding criminal responsibility. Before you may consider this affirmative defense, you must first determine whether the prosecution has proven all of the elements of (specify in the disjunctive charge(s) and any instructed included offense(s)) beyond a reasonable doubt. If you unanimously find that the prosecution has not proven all of the elements of (specify in the disjunctive charge(s) and any instructed included offense(s)) beyond a reasonable doubt, then you must find the defendant not guilty of that offense(s) without considering the affirmative defense. If you unanimously find that the prosecution has proven all of the elements of (specify in the disjunctive charge(s) and any instructed included offense(s)) beyond a reasonable doubt, then you must consider the affirmative defense.

It is an affirmative defense to (specify in the disjunctive charge(s) and any instructed included offense(s)) that, at the time of the offense, the defendant was not criminally responsible for his/her conduct.

The defendant is not criminally responsible for his/her conduct if, at the time of the charged offense(s) and as a result of a physical or mental disease, disorder or defect, the defendant lacked substantial capacity either to appreciate the wrongfulness of his/her conduct or to conform his/her conduct to the requirements of the law.

A person "lacks substantial capacity" either to appreciate the wrongfulness of his/her conduct or to conform his/her conduct to the requirements of the law if his/her capacity to do so has been extremely limited by physical or mental disease, disorder or defect. The phrase "lack of substantial capacity" does not mean a total lack of capacity. It means capacity which has been impaired to such a degree that only an extremely limited amount remains. [The term "physical or mental disease, disorder or defect" does not include an abnormality manifested only by repeated criminal or otherwise antisocial conduct.]

The affirmative defense of physical or mental disease, disorder or defect excluding criminal responsibility has two elements.

These two elements are:

1. That at the time of the charged offense, the defendant was suffering from a physical or mental disease, disorder, or defect; and

2. That as a result of such physical or mental disease, disorder, or defect, he/she lacked substantial capacity either to appreciate the wrongfulness of his/her conduct or to conform his/her conduct to the requirements of the law.

HAWJIC 7.07 (6/29/00)

The defendant must prove an affirmative defense by a preponderance of the evidence. This means that the defendant must prove that it is more likely than not, or more probable than not, that each element existed. In determining whether the defendant has proven the affirmative defense by a preponderance of the evidence, you must consider all of the evidence that has been presented to you regardless of who presented it.

If you unanimously find that the defendant has proven both elements of the affirmative defense by a preponderance of the evidence, then you must find the defendant not guilty of (specify in the disjunctive charge(s) and any instructed included offense(s)). If you unanimously find that the defendant has not proven both elements of the affirmative defense by a preponderance of the evidence, then you must find the defendant guilty of (specify in the disjunctive charge(s) and any instructed included offense(s)).*

If you are unable to reach a unanimous agreement as to whether the affirmative defense has been proved or not been proved, then a verdict may not be returned on (specify in the disjunctive charge(s) and any instructed included offense(s)).

[If the defendant is acquitted on the ground of physical or mental disease, disorder or defect excluding responsibility, the court shall make an order as follows:

(a) The court shall order him/her committed to the custody of the Director of Health to be placed in an appropriate institution for custody, care, and treatment if the court finds that he/she presents a risk of danger to himself/herself or others and that he/she is not a proper subject for conditional release; or

HAWJIC 7.07 (6/29/00)

*Modification of this sentence is required if any defense in addition to insanity is submitted to the jury.

Commentary

HRS § 704-400 provides, "[a] person is not responsible . . . for conduct if at the time of the conduct as a result of physical or mental disease, disorder or defect he lacks substantial capacity either to appreciate the wrongfulness of his conduct or to conform his conduct to the requirements of law." HRS § 704-402(1) (1982) makes insanity "an affirmative defense."

Until 1982, insanity was an ordinary defense in Hawai`i, and pursuant to HRS § 702-205, the prosecution had to disprove insanity beyond a reasonable doubt. See State v. Rodrigues, 67 Haw. 70, 72, 679 P.2d 615, 617 (1984) ("then the State has the burden of proving a defendant's sanity beyond a reasonable doubt"); State v. Nuetzel, 61 Haw. 531, 606 P.2d 920 (1980) ("appellant's raising the defense of insanity under HRS § 704-400(1) required the prosecution to prove the additional element of appellant's sanity"); State v. Valentine, 1 Haw.App. 1, 2, 612 P.2d 117, 118 (1980) ("the State had the burden of proving appellant's sanity beyond a reasonable doubt"); State v. Moeller, 50 Haw. 110, 121, 433 P.2d 136, 143 (1967) ("the State is required to establish the sanity of the defendant beyond a reasonable doubt").

In 1982, insanity became an affirmative defense. See State v. Nizam, 7 Haw.App. 402, 407 n.4, 771 P.2d 899, 904 n.4 (1989) ("Section 704-402 (1985) delineates the affirmative defense of physical or mental disease, disorder or defect excluding responsibility"). A defendant must now prove mental incapacity by a preponderance of the evidence. See HRS § 701-115(2)(b).

In defining legal insanity to the jury, trial courts are not restricted to merely repeating the terms of the insanity statute. Nuetzel, 61 Haw. 531, 606 P.2d 920. Instruction on legal insanity should be flexible, with wide discretion vested in the trial court to clarify the statutory definition. Id. In Nuetzel, the court upheld an insanity instruction defining "lack of substantial capacity" as "capacity which has been impaired to such a degree that only an extremely limited amount remains." Id. at 550-51, 606 P.2d at 930. But an instruction defining "insanity" as "such a diseased and deranged condition of the mental faculties of a person as to render him incapable of knowing the nature and quality of the act he is committing and incapable of knowing the difference between right and wrong" was prejudicial error. Moeller, 50 Haw. at 113, 433 P.2d at 139 (emphasis in original).

HRS § 704-402(2) provides that when an insanity defense is submitted to a jury, "the court shall, if requested by the defendant, instruct the jury as to the consequences to the defendant of an acquittal" on grounds of insanity. "The purpose of allowing such an instruction is purely informational" because "there is the possibility that they will fear that such an acquittal will necessarily lead to the defendant's release." State v. Amorin, 58 Haw. 623, 627-28, 574 P.2d 895, 898 (1978). The jury, however, "should not be influenced by the extraneous consideration of the consequence of a finding of insanity wholly unconnected and apart from the evidence." Id. at 628, 574 P.2d at 898-99. Prior to the 1972 enactment of the Hawai`i Penal Code, the trial court was not required to instruct the jury as to the consequences of a verdict of not guilty by reason of insanity, whether the defendant requested it or not. Moeller, 50 Haw. 110, 433 P.2d 136.

7.08. ENTRAPMENT – METHODS OF PERSUASION

The defendant has raised the affirmative defense of entrapment. Before you may consider entrapment, you must first determine whether the prosecution has proven all of the elements of (specify in the disjunctive charge(s) and any instructed included offense(s)) beyond a reasonable doubt. If you unanimously find that the prosecution has not proven all of the elements of (specify in the disjunctive charge(s) and any instructed included offense(s)) beyond a reasonable doubt, then you must find the defendant not guilty of that offense(s) without considering entrapment. If you unanimously find that the prosecution has proven all of the elements of (specify in the disjunctive charge(s) and any instructed included offense(s)) beyond a reasonable doubt, then you must consider entrapment.

Entrapment is an affirmative defense to the charge(s) of (specify charge(s) and any instructed included offense(s)). A person is entrapped if he/she engaged in the prohibited conduct or caused the prohibited result because he/she was induced or encouraged to do so by a law enforcement officer [or by a person acting in cooperation with a law enforcement officer] who, for the purpose of obtaining evidence of the commission of an offense, employed methods of persuasion or inducement which created a substantial risk that the offense would be committed by persons other than those who are ready to commit it.

HAWJIC 7.08 (6/29/00)

Entrapment has two elements.

These two elements are:

1. That the defendant engaged in the prohibited conduct or caused the prohibited result because he/she was induced or encouraged to do so by a law enforcement officer [or by a person acting in cooperation with a law enforcement officer]; and

2. That the law enforcement officer [or a person acting in cooperation with a law enforcement officer] did, for the purpose of obtaining evidence of the commission of an offense, employ methods of persuasion or inducement which created a substantial risk that the offense would be committed by persons other than those who are ready to commit it.

The defendant must prove entrapment by a preponderance of the evidence. This means that the defendant must prove that it is more likely than not, or more probable than not, that each element occurred. In determining whether the defendant has proven entrapment by a preponderance of the evidence, you must consider all of the evidence that has been presented to you regardless of who presented it.

If you unanimously find that the defendant has proven both elements of entrapment by a preponderance of the evidence, then you must find the defendant not guilty of (specify in the disjunctive charge(s) and any instructed included offense(s)).

If you unanimously find that the defendant has not proven both elements of entrapment by a preponderance of the evidence, then you must find the defendant guilty of (specify in the disjunctive charge(s) and any instructed included offense(s)).*

If you are unable to reach a unanimous agreement as to whether entrapment has been proved or not been proved, then a verdict may not be returned on (specify in the disjunctive charge(s) and any instructed included offense(s)).

[Whether or not the defendant may have known a person or persons involved in the drug culture does not establish that he/she was not or could not be entrapped.]

[An offer to buy narcotics, in and of itself, is not a method which creates a substantial risk that the offense would be committed by persons other than those ready to commit it.]

*Modification of this sentence is required if any defense in addition to entrapment is submitted to the jury.

Commentary

See HRS § 702-237. Subsection 702-237(a) addresses entrapment by "false representations designed to induce the belief that such conduct or result was not prohibited," and subsection 702-237(b) addresses entrapment by "methods of persuasion or inducement which created a substantial risk that the offense would be committed by persons other than those who are ready to commit it. The first subsection is covered by HAWJIC 7.09 and the second is covered by HAWJIC 7.08.

Prior Hawai`i law made entrapment an ordinary defense, but in 1972 Hawai`i adopted Model Penal Code § 2.13, which shifted the burden to the defendant and made entrapment an affirmative defense. See State v. Anderson, 58 Haw. 479, 572 P.2d 159 (1977); Commentary to HRS § 702-237. This change requiring the defendant to prove entrapment by a preponderance of the evidence did not violate due process. Anderson, 58 Haw. 479, 572 P.2d 159; State v. Kelsey, 58 Haw. 234, 566 P.2d 1370 (1977). When an accused can show, by a preponderance of the evidence, that he was induced or encouraged into committing the conduct proscribed, he is entitled to an acquittal on the charge. State v. Nakamura, 65 Haw. 74, 648 P.2d 183 (1982).

While entrapment may be raised by a pre-trial motion to dismiss, unless the evidence is undisputed and so clear it presents a legal question as a matter of law, entrapment is a jury question. State v. Agrabante, 73 Haw. 179, 830 P.2d 492 (1992) (reverse buy operation did not constitute entrapment as a matter of law but jury may be instructed on the defense if evidence of government inducement); State v. Powell, 68 Haw. 635, 726 P.2d 266 (1986) (drunk decoy operation was entrapment as a matter of law); State v. Provard, 63 Haw. 536, 631 P.2d 181 (1981) (conflict in evidence whether police conduct constituted entrapment and therefore issue was for jury to resolve); Kelsey, 58 Haw. 234, 566 P.2d 1370 (evidence disputed as to conduct pertaining to entrapment question and thus issue was for jury to resolve).

According to HRS § 702-237(2), "[t]he defense afforded by this section is unavailable when causing or threatening injury is an element of the offense charged and the prosecution is based on conduct causing or threatening such injury to a person other than the person perpetrating the entrapment."

Hawai`i follows the "objective" view of entrapment, and the trier of fact must focus on the conduct of law enforcement rather than the defendant's predisposition to commit the offense charged. State v. Reed, 77 Hawai`i 72, 881 P.2d 1218 (1994); Agrabante, 73 Haw. 179, 830 P.2d 492; Powell, 68 Haw. 635, 726 P.2d 266; Nakamura, 65 Haw. 74, 648 P.2d 183; Provard, 63 Haw. 536, 631 P.2d 181; Anderson, 58 Haw. 479, 572 P.2d 159.

When the evidence does not support a finding that police conduct would have the probable effect on a reasonable person of inducing her to engage in prohibited activity, a claim of entrapment is not established. State v. Tookes, 67 Haw. 608, 699 P.2d 983 (1985). On the other hand, when an officer told the defendant that, "[e]ven probation officers smoke marijuana," a substantial question existed as to whether the conduct of the officer entrapped the defendant. State v. Erickson, 60 Haw. 8, 10, 586 P.2d 1022, 1023 (1978).

The doctrine of entrapment does not extend to acts of inducement on the part of a private citizen who is not a law enforcement officer or a person acting in cooperation with a law enforcement officer. Agrabante, 73 Haw. 179, 830 P.2d 492 (rejecting theory of derivative or vicarious entrapment).

7.09. ENTRAPMENT – FALSE REPRESENTATIONS

The defendant has raised the affirmative defense of entrapment. Before you may consider entrapment, you must first determine whether the prosecution has proven all of the elements of (specify in the disjunctive charge(s) and any instructed included offense(s)) beyond a reasonable doubt. If you unanimously find that the prosecution has not proven all of the elements of (specify in the disjunctive charge(s) and any instructed included offense(s)) beyond a reasonable doubt, then you must find the defendant not guilty of that offense(s) without considering entrapment. If you unanimously find that the prosecution has proven all of the elements of (specify in the disjunctive charge(s) and any instructed included offense(s)) beyond a reasonable doubt, then you must consider entrapment.

Entrapment is an affirmative defense to the charge(s) of (specify in the disjunctive charge(s) and any instructed included offense(s)). A person is entrapped if he/she engaged in the prohibited conduct or caused the prohibited result because he/she was induced or encouraged to do so by a law enforcement officer [or by a person acting in cooperation with a law enforcement officer] who, for the purpose of obtaining evidence of the commission of an offense, knowingly made false representations designed to induce the belief that such conduct or result was not prohibited.

Entrapment has two elements.

These two elements are:

1. That the defendant engaged in the prohibited conduct or caused the prohibited result because he/she was induced or encouraged to do so by a law enforcement officer [or by a person acting in cooperation with a law enforcement officer]; and

2. That the law enforcement officer [or a person acting in cooperation with a law enforcement officer] did, for the purpose of obtaining evidence of the commission of an offense, knowingly make false representations designed to induce the belief that such conduct or result was not prohibited.

The defendant must prove an affirmative defense by a preponderance of the evidence. This means that the defendant must prove that it is more likely than not, or more probable than not, that each element of entrapment occurred. In determining whether the defendant has proven entrapment by a preponderance of the evidence, you must consider all of the evidence that has been presented to you regardless of who presented it.

If you unanimously find that the defendant has proven both elements of entrapment by a preponderance of the evidence, then you must find the defendant not guilty of (specify in the disjunctive charge(s) and any instructed included offense(s)). If you unanimously find that the defendant has not proven both elements of entrapment by a preponderance of the evidence, then you must find the defendant guilty of (specify in the disjunctive charge(s) and any instructed included offense(s)).*

If you are unable to reach a unanimous agreement as to whether entrapment has been proved or not been proved, then a verdict may not be returned on (specify in the disjunctive charge(s) and any instructed included offense(s)).

[Whether or not the defendant may have known a person or persons involved in the drug culture does not establish that he/she was not or could not be entrapped.]

7.10. DURESS

The defendant has raised the affirmative defense of duress. Before you may consider duress, you must first determine whether the prosecution has proven all of the elements of (specify in the disjunctive charge(s) and any instructed included offense(s)) beyond a reasonable doubt. If you unanimously find that the prosecution has not proven all of the elements of (specify in the disjunctive charge(s) and any instructed included offense(s)) beyond a reasonable doubt, then you must find the defendant not guilty of that offense(s) without considering duress. If you unanimously find that the prosecution has proven all of the elements of (specify in the disjunctive charge(s) and any instructed included offense(s)) beyond a reasonable doubt, then you must consider duress.

Duress is an affirmative defense to the charge(s) of (specify in the disjunctive charge(s) and any instructed included offense(s)).

Duress has (specify number) elements.

These (specify number) elements are:

1. The defendant engaged in the conduct or caused the result alleged in the Indictment/Complaint because the defendant was coerced to do so by the threat to use or use of unlawful force against the defendant's person [or another person];

2. The unlawful force used or threatened to be used was the type that a person of reasonable firmness in the defendant's situation would have been unable to resist;

3. The defendant did not recklessly place himself/herself in the situation in which it was probable that the defendant would be subjected to duress;

[__. When negligence suffices to establish the required state of mind for the offense charged, the defendant did not negligently place himself/herself into a situation in which it was probable that the defendant would be subjected to duress;]

[__. When the defendant acted on the command of a spouse, the defendant still must prove by a preponderance of the evidence the previous elements.]

"Force" means any bodily impact, restraint, or confinement, or threat to do the same.

"Unlawful force" means force that is used without the consent of the person against whom it is directed and the use of which would constitute an unjustifiable use of force [or deadly force].

The defendant must prove an affirmative defense by a preponderance of the evidence. This means that the defendant must prove that it is more likely than not, or more probable than not, that each element of duress occurred. In determining whether the defendant has proven duress by a preponderance of the evidence, you must consider all of the evidence that has been presented to you regardless of who presented it.

If you unanimously find that the defendant has proven the elements of the duress defense by a preponderance of the evidence, then you must find the defendant not guilty of (specify in the disjunctive charge(s) and any instructed included offense(s)). If you unanimously find that the defendant has not proven the elements of duress by a preponderance of the evidence, then you must find the defendant guilty of (specify charge(s) or any instructed offense(s)).*

If you are unable to reach a unanimous agreement as to whether duress has been proved or not been proved, then a verdict may not be returned on (specify in the disjunctive charge(s) and any instructed included offense(s)).

*Modification of this sentence is required if any defense in addition to duress is submitted to the jury.

Commentary

HRS § 702-231 provides for an affirmative defense of "duress" where "defendant engaged in the conduct or caused the result alleged because he was coerced to do so by the use of, or a threat to use, unlawful force against his person or the person of another, which a person of reasonable firmness in his situation would have been unable to resist."

In 1979, HRS § 702-231 was amended to make duress an affirmative defense, requiring a defendant to prove "the facts constituting such defense, unless such facts are supplied by the testimony of the prosecuting witness or circumstance in such testimony, and of proving such facts by a preponderance of the evidence pursuant to Section 701-115." See HRS § 702-231(5); State v. Corpuz, 3 Haw.App. 206, 646 P.2d 976 (1982).

HAWJIC 7.10 (6/29/00)

Since duress is an affirmative defense, the defendant has the burden of going forward with the evidence to prove facts constituting the defense and of proving such facts by a preponderance of the evidence. State v. Fukusaku, 85 Hawai`i 462, 946 P.2d 32 (1997) (trial court properly refused to give duress instruction where there was no evidence that any member of organized crime used unlawful force or threatened to use force against defendant).

7.11. CHOICE OF EVILS - ESCAPE

The defendant has raised the affirmative defense of "choice of evils." Before you may consider "choice of evils," you must first determine whether the prosecution has proven all of the elements of escape beyond a reasonable doubt. If you unanimously find that the prosecution has not proven all of the elements of escape beyond a reasonable doubt, then you must find the defendant not guilty of escape without considering "choice of evils." If you unanimously find that the prosecution has proven all of the elements of escape beyond a reasonable doubt, then you must consider "choice of evils." "Choice of evils" is an affirmative defense to the charge of escape.

"Choice of evils" has five elements.

These five elements are:

1. The defendant received a threat, express or implied, of death, substantial bodily injury, or forcible sexual attack and the threatened harm was imminent;
2. A complaint to the proper prison authorities was either impossible under the circumstances or there exists a history of futile complaints;
3. Under the circumstances, there was no time or opportunity to resort to the courts;
4. No force or violence was used against prison personnel or other innocent persons; and

5. The defendant promptly reported to the proper authorities when the defendant had attained a position of safety from the immediate threat.

The defendant must prove an affirmative defense by a preponderance of the evidence. This means that the defendant must prove that it is more likely than not, or more probable than not, that each element of "choice of evils" occurred. In determining whether the defendant has proven "choice of evils" by a preponderance of the evidence, you must consider all of the evidence that has been presented to you regardless of who presented it.

If you unanimously find that the defendant has proven the five elements of the "choice of evils" defense by a preponderance of the evidence, then you must find the defendant not guilty of escape. If you unanimously find that the defendant has not proven the five elements of "choice of evils" by a preponderance of the evidence, then you must find the defendant guilty of escape.*

If you are unable to reach a unanimous agreement as to whether "choice of evils" has been proved or not been proved, then a verdict may not be returned on escape.

*Modification of this sentence is required if any defense in addition to "choice of evils" is submitted to the jury.

HAWJIC 7.11 (6/29/00)

7.12. CHOICE OF EVILS -- NECESSITY

It is a defense to the offense charged that the defendant's conduct was legally justified. The law recognizes the "choice of evils" defense, also referred to as the "necessity" defense.

The "choice of evils" defense justifies the defendant's conduct if the defendant reasonably believes such conduct is necessary to avoid an imminent harm or evil to [himself/herself] [another person]. The conduct is justifiable if the harm or evil sought to be avoided by such conduct is greater than that sought to be prevented by the law defining the offense charged.

If the prosecution has not proved beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant's conduct was not legally justified by the "choice of evils" defense, then you must find the defendant not guilty of (offense). If the prosecution has done so, then you must find that the "choice of evils" defense does not apply.

[If you find that the defendant was reckless or negligent in bringing about the situation requiring a choice of harms or evils or in appraising the necessity for his/her conduct, the justification afforded by this defense is unavailable as a defense to the offense of (any offense for which the requisite state of mind is either recklessly or negligently).]

Notes

H.R.S. §703-302

HAWJIC 7.12 (12/19/03)

For other restrictions on the "choice of evils" defense, see H.R.S. §703-302(b) and (c):

(b) Neither the Code nor other law defining the offense provides exceptions or defenses dealing with the specific situation involved; and

(c) A legislative purpose to exclude the justification claimed does not otherwise plainly appear.

For definition of states of mind, see instruction:

6.02--"intentionally"
6.03--"knowingly"
6.04--"recklessly"
6.05--"negligently"

For definition of terms defined by H.R.S. Chapter 703, see section:

703-300--"Believes" means reasonably believes.

7.13. IGNORANCE OR MISTAKE OF FACT

In any prosecution for an offense, it is a defense that the Defendant engaged in the prohibited conduct under ignorance or mistake of fact if the ignorance or mistake negates the state of mind required to establish an element of the offense.

[Thus, for example, a person is provided a defense to a charge based on an intentional or knowing state of mind, if the person is mistaken (either reasonably, negligently, or recklessly) as to a fact that negates the person's state of mind required to establish an element of the offense; however, a reckless mistake would not afford a defense to a charge based on a reckless state of mind.]

[Although ignorance or mistake would otherwise afford a defense to the offense charged, the defense is not available if the Defendant would be guilty of another offense had the situation been as the Defendant supposed. In such a case, the Defendant may be convicted of the offense of which the Defendant would be guilty had the situation been as the Defendant supposed.]

The burden is upon the prosecution to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the Defendant was not ignorant or mistaken as to a fact that negates the state of mind required to establish an element of the offense. If the prosecution fails to meet its burden, then you must find the Defendant not guilty.

HAWJIC 7.13 (6/29/00)

Commentary

See HRS §§ 702-218 and 702-219; Commentary to HRS § 702-218; State v. Cavness, 80 Hawai`i 460, 911 P.2d 95 (App. 1996); State v. Adams, 10 Haw.App. 593, 880 P.2d 226 (1994).

The bracketed paragraphs of the instruction may be given as determined appropriate by the court. The second paragraph of the instruction would need to be modified when a defendant is charged with a reckless state of mind. The third paragraph of the instruction would apply, for example, where a defendant charged with burglary had grounds to believe the structure was a store, although it was actually a dwelling. Similarly, the third paragraph would be applicable where a defendant charged with theft had a basis to believe the value of the item was such that it would constitute a different grade of the offense charged. See also HAWJIC 10.00A(2).

If there is any rational basis in the evidence to support the defense of mistake of fact, the court must give an instruction on that defense. State v. Cabrera, No. 21617 (Haw. Mar. 17, 1999). The ignorance or mistake of fact instruction is applicable where there is ignorance or a mistake as to a fact relevant to the state of mind required to establish an element of the offense. On the other hand, where there is ignorance or a mistake as to a fact relevant only to a defense, other principles may apply. See, e.g., bracketed language in HAWJIC 7.01 referring to a reckless belief in using self-protective force.

In Adams, the defendant testified he believed the complainant "was receptive to engaging in sexual activity with [him] and that during the acts of penetration [she] never protested or resisted." 10 Haw.App. at 598, 880 P.2d at 231. The Adams court held that the defendant was entitled to an instruction on mistake of fact "on his mistaken belief . . . that he had [complainant's] consent" and that "reasonable jurors" could so "construe" the facts. Id. at 607, 880 P.2d at 235.

In Cavness, the Intermediate Court of Appeals held that the defendant was entitled to introduce evidence of the basis of his belief that he had a right to be present on the premises to establish that defendant did not act intentionally, knowingly or recklessly without license, invitation or privilege in a trespass prosecution. Not allowing the defendant to establish the basis of his belief, and failing to decide if defendant acted recklessly, required a remand for new trial. Cavness, 80 Hawai`i 460, 911 P.2d 95.

In Cabrera, the defendant admitted at trial that he was aware that he was stealing the property of J.C. Penney, but maintained he had no knowledge, one way or the other, as to what the property's value was. That being the case, the Cabrera court held that under these circumstances, there was no element of the offense of second degree theft about which defendant could have been factually mistaken and, therefore, the defendant was not entitled to a jury instruction regarding mistake of fact. Cabrera, No. 21617 (Haw. Mar. 17, 1999).

7.14. ALIBI

The Defendant has introduced evidence to show that he/she was not present at the time and place of the commission of the offense charged in [Count (count number) of] the Indictment/Complaint. The State has the burden of establishing beyond a reasonable doubt the Defendant's presence at that time and place.

If, after consideration of all the evidence in the case, you have a reasonable doubt as to whether the Defendant was present at the time the crime was committed, you must find the Defendant not guilty.

Commentary

This instruction is patterned after Ninth Circuit Manual of Model Jury Instructions Criminal 6.01 (1995).

The alibi defense, i.e., evidence that the defendant was not present at the time of the crime, is not an affirmative defense. State v. Gabrillo, 10 Haw.App. 448, 877 P.2d 891 (1994). This instruction is not appropriate in a case where the crime charged can be committed without proof that the defendant was present, such as in prosecutions where the government seeks a conviction on an accomplice or conspiracy theory.

Alibi notice is not required where the defendant was not challenging the identity of the "perpetrator" but instead was attempting to show the complainant was making false accusations by his impeaching of complainant's credibility regarding the time of day that the incident allegedly occurred. State v. Baron, 80 Hawai`i 107, 905 P.2d 613 (1995).

7.15 USE OF FORCE BY PERSONS WITH SPECIAL RESPONSIBILITY FOR CARE, DISCIPLINE, OR SAFETY OF OTHERS – MINORS AND INCOMPETENT PERSONS: H.R.S. § 703-309(1) and (3)

Justifiable use of force a person with special responsibility for care, discipline, or safety of others is a defense to the charge of (specify charge and its included offenses) when all of the following circumstances are present:

(1) The Defendant was a [parent of a minor] [guardian of a minor] [person similarly responsible to a parent or guardian for the general care and supervision of a minor] [person acting at the request of the parent, guardian, or other responsible person of a minor] [guardian of an incompetent person] [other person similarly responsible to a guardian for the general care and supervision of an incompetent person];

(2) The Defendant's use of force was employed with due regard to the age and size of the [minor] [incompetent person] and was reasonably related to the purpose of safeguarding or promoting the welfare of the [minor] [incompetent person], including [the prevention or punishment of misconduct of the minor] [the prevention of the incompetent person's misconduct] [the maintenance of reasonable discipline in a hospital or other institution responsible for the incompetent person's care and custody]; and

(3) The force used was not designed to cause, or known to create a risk of causing, substantial bodily injury, disfigurement, extreme pain or mental distress, or neurological damage.

The burden is on the prosecution to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the Defendant's use of force was not justified. If you unanimously find that the prosecution proved beyond a reasonable doubt that any one of these three circumstances did not exist, then the Defendant's use of force was not justified.

Where force is used for the purpose of punishing misconduct, "reasonably related" means that the use of force must be both reasonably proportional to the misconduct being punished and reasonably believed necessary to protect the welfare of the [minor] [incompetent person].

HAWJIC 7.15 (Added 2/28/06)

7.16. VOLUNTARY ACT OR VOLUNTARY OMISSION

In any prosecution* it is a defense that the conduct alleged in the charged offense does not include a voluntary act [or the voluntary omission to perform an act of which the Defendant is physically capable]. A "voluntary act" means a bodily movement performed consciously or habitually as the result of effort or determination of the Defendant.

The burden is upon the prosecution to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the Defendant's conduct as to the (specify offense) charge included a voluntary act [or the voluntary omission to perform an act of which the Defendant is physically capable]. If the prosecution fails to meet its burden, then you must find the Defendant not guilty of the charge.

Notes

* H.R.S. § 702-202 provides that possession is a voluntary act if the possessor knowingly procured or received the thing possessed or was aware of control of it for a sufficient period to have been able to terminate possession. Therefore, the voluntary act defense does not apply to a charged offense that involves proving possession as an element of the offense.

H.R.S. § 702-200(2) provides that were the voluntary act or voluntary omission defense is based on a physical or mental disease, disorder, or defect which precludes or impairs a voluntary act or a voluntary omission, the defense shall be treated exclusively according to Chapter 704, except that a defense based on intoxication which is pathological or not self-induced which precludes or impairs a voluntary act or a voluntary omission shall be treated exclusively according to Chapter 702.

HAWJIC 7.16 (Added 5/4/09)

Commentary

"The effect of [HRS § 702-200] is to require, as a minimum basis for the imposition of penal liability, conduct which includes a voluntary act or voluntary omission. In most penal cases the issue of whether the defendant's conduct includes a voluntary act or a voluntary omission will not be separately litigated. The voluntariness of relevant acts or omissions will be evident. The Code, by making the issue of involuntariness a defense, accordingly puts the ultimate burden on the defendant to inject that issue into the case. The burden, of course can be met by the prosecutor if he [or she] raises the issue. Once the question of voluntariness has been raised, the prosecution has the burden of proving that issue beyond a reasonable doubt." Commentary on H.R.S. § 702-200.

The Penal Code's formulation of voluntary act "is intended to exclude from the category of voluntary action such bodily movements as (a) reflex or convulsions, (b) bodily movements during unconsciousness and sleep, (c) conduct during hypnosis or resulting from hypnotic suggestion, and (d) any other bodily movement that is not a product of the effort and determination of the defendant, either conscious or habitual." Commentary on H.R.S. § 702-201.

Additionally, the formulation of H.R.S. § 702-200 "is intended to permit liability in those cases where liability is not predicated on a voluntary act or omission but on a course of conduct initiated by a voluntary act. Thus, an automobile driver who suddenly loses consciousness and kills a pedestrian would not have performed a voluntary act giving rise to liability. However, if the driver had disregarded a known risk that consciousness might be lost and had commenced or continued driving, that included a voluntary act might be sufficient to impose penal liability." Commentary on H.R.S. § 702-200.

7.17. PROCURING AGENT DEFENSE

It is a defense to the charge of (specify distribution or trafficking offense) that the Defendant acted as the procuring agent for the buyer. A procuring agent for the buyer is a person who acts only on behalf of the buyer and not as, or on behalf of, the seller.

A person who is a procuring agent for the buyer cannot be found guilty of distributing the unlawful drug because the act of "buying" falls outside the definition of "to distribute."

The burden is on the prosecution to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the Defendant was not acting only as the procuring agent for the buyer. If the prosecution does not meet its burden, then you must find the Defendant not guilty of the offense of (specify distribution or trafficking offense).

Notes

H.R.S. § 712-1240.

Commentary

Under the procuring agent defense, " 'one who acts merely as a procuring agent for the buyer is a principal in the purchase, not the sale, and, therefore, can be held liable only to the extent that the purchaser is held liable.' " State v. Davalos, 113 Hawai'i 385, 387, 153 P.3d 456, 458 (2007) (quoting State v. Balanza, 93 Hawai'i 279, 284, 1 P.3d 281, 286 (2000) (State v. Reed, 77 Hawai'i 72, 79, 881 P.2d 1218, 1225 (1994). A buyer or the agent of the buyer cannot be convicted of distributing a dangerous drug, HRS § 712-1242(1)(c), since " 'to buy' [or to offer to buy] clearly falls outside the meaning of

'to distribute' as that term is defined in HRS § 712-1240." State v. Aluli, 78 Hawai'i 317, 323, 893 P.2d 168, 174 (1995).

The question of whether a defendant was acting on the seller's behalf or on the purchaser's behalf rests on the specific facts of the case. Davalos, 113 Hawai'i at 392, 153 P.3d at 463. Generally these are questions of fact for the fact finder. Id.

The procuring agent defense is not an affirmative defense. Id. at 387 n. 6, 153 P.3d at 458 n.6. "Hence, like all non-affirmative defenses, the prosecution must disprove the defense beyond a reasonable doubt." Id.

7.18A. DEFENSE OF PROPERTY WHEN THE USE OF "DEADLY FORCE" IS AT ISSUE

The use of force in the defense of property is a defense to the charge(s) of (specify charge and its included offenses). The use of force in defense of property involves consideration of two issues. First, you must determine whether the defendant did or did not use "deadly force." Second, you must determine whether the force used was justified. The burden is on the prosecution to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the force used by the defendant was not justified. If the prosecution does not meet its burden, then you must find the defendant not guilty.

The first issue is: Did the defendant use "deadly force?"

"Deadly Force" means force which the defendant uses with the intent of causing, or which he/she knows to create a substantial risk of causing, death or serious bodily injury.

"Force" means any bodily impact, restraint, or confinement, or the threat thereof.

"Serious bodily injury" means bodily injury which creates a substantial risk of death or which causes serious permanent disfigurement, or protracted loss or impairment of the function of any bodily member or organ.

[Intentionally firing a firearm in the direction of another person or in the direction which the person is believed to be constitutes deadly force.]

[A threat to cause death or serious bodily injury, by the production of a weapon or otherwise, so long as the actor's intent is limited to creating an apprehension that he/she will use deadly force if necessary, does not constitute deadly force.]

If you determine that the defendant used "deadly force," then you are to proceed to the section in this instruction entitled "Deadly Force Used." If you determine that the defendant did not use "deadly force," then you are to proceed to the section in this instruction entitled "Deadly Force Not Used." You must then follow the law in the applicable section to determine the second issue, which is whether the force used by the defendant was justified.

HAWJIC 7.18A (Added 10/8/12)

Deadly Force Used

The use of deadly force upon or toward another person in defense of property is justified only if the defendant reasonably believes that such force is immediately necessary because:

[the person against whom the deadly force is used is attempting to dispossess the defendant of his/her dwelling other than under a claim of right to its possession] [the person against whom the deadly force is used is attempting to commit [felony property damage] [burglary] [robbery] [felony theft]* and:

[that person used or threatened deadly force [against the defendant] [in the defendant's presence]] [the use of force other than deadly force by the defendant to prevent [felony property damage][burglary][robbery][felony theft] would expose the defendant or another person in the defendant's presence to a substantial risk of serious bodily injury.]]

The reasonableness of the defendant's belief that the use of protective deadly force in defense of property was immediately necessary shall be determined from the viewpoint of a reasonable person in the defendant's position under the circumstances of which the defendant was aware or as the defendant reasonably believed them to be when the deadly force was used.

Deadly Force Not Used

The use of force upon or toward another person in defense of property is justified if the defendant reasonably believes that such force is immediately necessary:

[To prevent criminal trespass or burglary* in a building or upon real property in the defendant's possession, or in the possession of another person for whose protection the defendant acts]

[To prevent unlawful entry upon real property in the defendant's possession, or in the possession of another person for whose protection the defendant acts]
[To prevent theft, criminal mischief, or any trespassory taking of,* any tangible movable property in the defendant's possession, or in the possession of another person for whose protection the defendant acts.]

The reasonableness of the defendant's belief that the use of protective force in defense of property was immediately necessary shall be determined from the viewpoint of a reasonable person in the defendant's position under the circumstances of which the defendant was aware or as the defendant reasonably believed them to be when the force was used.

The defendant may use such force as he/she believes is necessary to protect the threatened property, provided that the defendant first requests that the person stop the interference with the property. However, the defendant need not make such a request if the defendant reasonably believes:

[Such a request would be useless]
[It would be dangerous to the defendant or another person to make the request]
[Substantial harm would be done to the physical condition of the property that is sought to be protected before the request could effectively be made.]

[The use of confinement as protective force is justifiable only if the defendant takes all reasonable measures to terminate the confinement as soon as he/she knows that he/she can do so with safety to the property, unless the person confined has been arrested on a charge of crime.]

For Offenses Where the Requisite State of Mind is Reckless or Negligent

[The use of force upon or toward another person in defense of property is not available for the offense(s) of (specify any offense in which the requisite state of mind is either recklessness or negligence) if the prosecution proves:

(1) The defendant was reckless in believing that he/she was justified in using deadly force or force in defense of property; or
(2) The defendant was reckless in acquiring or failing to acquire any knowledge or belief which was material to the justifiability of his/her use of deadly force or force in defense of property.]

Note

*The court should provide instructions on the elements of any applicable triggering felony offense.

7.18B. Defense of Property When The Use Of "Deadly Force" Is Not At Issue

The use of force in the defense of property is a defense to the charge(s) of (specify charge and its included offenses). The burden is on the prosecution to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the force used by the defendant was not justified. If the prosecution does not meet its burden, then you must find the defendant not guilty.

The use of force upon or toward another person in defense of property is justified if the defendant reasonably believes that such force is immediately necessary:

[To prevent criminal trespass or burglary* in a building or upon real property in the defendant's possession, or in the possession of another person for whose protection the defendant acts]
[To prevent unlawful entry upon real property in the defendant's possession, or in the possession of another person for whose protection the defendant acts]
[To prevent theft, criminal mischief, or any trespassory taking of,* any tangible movable property in the defendant's possession, or in the possession of another person for whose protection the defendant acts.]

"Force" means any bodily impact, restraint, or confinement, or the threat thereof.

The reasonableness of the defendant's belief that the use of protective force in defense of property was immediately necessary shall be determined from the viewpoint of a reasonable person in the defendant's position under the circumstances of which the defendant was aware or as the defendant reasonably believed them to be when the force was used.

The defendant may use such force as he/she believes is necessary to protect the threatened property, provided that the defendant first requests that the person stop the interference with the property. However, the defendant need not make such a request if the defendant reasonably believes:

[Such a request would be useless]
[It would be dangerous to the defendant or another person to make the request]

[Substantial harm would be done to the physical condition of the property that is sought to be protected before the request could effectively be made.]

[The use of confinement as protective force is justifiable only if the defendant takes all reasonable measures to terminate the confinement as soon as he/she knows that he/she can do so with safety to the property, unless the person confined has been arrested on a charge of crime.]

[The use of force upon or toward another person in defense of property is not available for the offense(s) of (specify any offense in which the requisite state of mind is either recklessness or negligence) if the prosecution proves:

(1) The defendant was reckless in believing that he/she was justified in using force in defense of property; or
(2) The defendant was reckless in acquiring or failing to acquire any knowledge or belief which was material to the justifiability of his/her use of force in defense of property.]

Note

*The court should provide instructions on the elements of any applicable triggering felony offense.

TABLE OF INSTRUCTIONS[11]

JURY DELIBERATIONS

[11] The original instructions approved and published in Volume I in December 1991 are not dated. New or amended instructions in Volumes I and II reflect the Supreme Court's approval date in parentheses.

8. JURY DELIBERATIONS

INTRODUCTORY COMMENT

The submission of written instructions to the jury during deliberations is a matter within the discretion of the trial court. State v. Lester, 64 Haw. 659, 649 P.2d 346 (1982); see also State v. Peters, 44 Haw. 1, 352 P.2d 329 (1959). Written copies of the given instructions may be provided to the jury without separation or markings to indicate who requested them, so long as (1) the copies have been previously examined by counsel and (2) counsel have expressly agreed that the copies are accurate transcriptions of the instructions that the trial court actually read to the jury. State v. Minn, 79 Hawai`i 461, 467 n.10, 903 P.2d 1282, 1289 (1995); Peters, 44 Haw. at 6, 352 P.2d at 332. See also Lester, 64 Haw. at 670, 649 P.2d at 354; State v. Pokini, 55 Haw. 640, 655, 526 P.2d 94, 107 (1974).

In Minn, the supreme court stated that it was common knowledge that the practice of providing written copies of the instructions is "routinely, albeit inconsistently, followed in the trial courts of this state, and we can think of no good reason why the practice should not be observed in all cases." 79 Hawai`i at 467 n.10, 903 P.2d at 1288 n.10.

Supplemental instructions in response to a jury communication must not confuse or leave an erroneous impression in the minds of the jurors on the applicable legal standard. State v. Feliciano, 62 Haw. 637, 618 P.2d 306 (1980).

It is not error for a trial judge to reread a portion of the original instructions during jury deliberations when such reading does not confuse or leave an erroneous impression in the jurors' minds. State v. Laurie, 56 Haw. 664, 548 P.2d 271 (1976). The "piecemeal" transmission of selected instructions has been condemned, however. State v. Estrada, 69 Haw. 204, 738 P.2d 812 (1987); Pokini, 55 Haw. 640, 526 P.2d 94.

Objections to the instructions or to any oral modifications of the instructions must be made before the jury retires to consider its verdict. HRPP 30(e); State v. Iaukea, 56 Haw. 343, 537 P.2d 724 (1975); State v. Chong, 3 Haw. App. 246, 253, 648 P.2d 1112, 1118 (1982); State v. Inoue, 3 Haw.App. 217, 646 P.2d 983 (1982) (previous objection to instruction as a whole was sufficient to preserve question of deletion of a sentence during reading of instruction).

Read Back of Testimony: The decision whether to allow a read back of testimony to a jury during deliberations is a matter within the sound discretion of the trial court. Minn, 79 Hawai`i at 465, 903 P.2d at 1286; Medeiros v. Udell, 34 Haw. 632, 638 (1938). "[A] 'read back' of a witness's testimony constitutes an abuse of discretion where such a read back results in prejudice to a party or an improper influence on the jury." Minn, 79 Hawai`i at 465, 903 P.2d at 1286; see Estrada, 69 Haw. at 229, 738 P.2d at 828. However, the supreme court has held that "an arbitrary denial of a jury's request for a 'read back' of a witness's testimony during deliberations constitutes an abuse of discretion." Minn, 79 Hawai`i at 465, 903 P.2d at 1286; see Estrada, 69 Haw. at 228-29, 738 P.2d at 828.

Similarly, "the decision to allow or refuse a jury's request to review a transcript of a witness's testimony is within the discretion of the trial court." Minn, 79 Hawai`i at 465, 903 P.2d at 1286. In Minn, the trial court denied the jury's request for a transcript of a witness's testimony because a transcript of the requested testimony may not have been helpful to the jury in determining the contested issue of value. 79 Hawai`i at 466, 903 P.2d at 1287. The supreme court found no abuse of discretion as the trial court could reasonably have concluded that the testimony would not have been helpful to the jury and therefore there was no arbitrary denial of the jury's request. Id.

Deadlocked Jury: Hawai`i has specifically rejected use of the Allen instruction. State v. Fajardo, 67 Haw. 593, 699 P.2d 20 (1985), rejecting Allen v. United States, 164 U.S. 492 (1896). Thus, an instruction urging each juror in a deadlocked jury who finds himself or herself in the minority to reconsider his or her views in light of the opinion of the majority is not tolerated and not approved in Hawai`i. Fajardo, 67 Haw. 593, 699 P.2d 20. It is error for the trial court to instruct the jury on the consequences of a hung jury. Id.; see also State v. Villeza, 72 Haw. 327, 817 P.2d 1054 (1991).

Declaration of Mistrial: "Where a mistrial is declared without the consent of the defendant and without manifest necessity, reprosecution will be barred by double jeopardy." Minn, 79 Hawai`i at 464, 903 P.2d at 1285; State v. Lam, 75 Haw. 195, 201, 857 P.2d 585, 589 (1993). "[A] mistrial ordered sua sponte because of a true inability of the jury to agree upon a verdict represents the 'classic example' of manifest necessity." Minn, 79 Hawai`i at 465, 903 P.2d at 1286; State v. Moriwake, 65 Haw. 47, 51, 647 P.2d 705, 710 (1982). "Even though a 'hung jury' constitutes a 'classic example' of manifest necessity, a trial court must first consider less severe options available and balance the accused's rights against the public interest." Minn, 79 Hawai`i at 465, 903 P.2d at 1286 (the trial court was held to have sufficiently considered alternatives less severe than a mistrial and thus the declaration of the mistrial over defense objection was supported by manifest necessity); Lam, 75 Haw. at 206, 857 P.2d at 591 (mistrial declaration in mid-trial was not supported by manifest necessity because less severe options were available that would have protected both the defendant's rights and the public interest).

8.01. PENALTY OR PUNISHMENT NOT TO BE DISCUSSED

You must not discuss or consider the subject of penalty or punishment in your deliberations of this case.

Commentary

See State v. Moellen, 50 Haw. 110, 433 P.2d 136 (1967) (jury does not determine punishment).

This instruction may need modification when the issue of guilt or punishment may be relevant to an issue, such as when testimony is provided pursuant to a plea agreement and the testifying witness has received a reduced penalty or punishment as inducement for his/her testimony, or when punishment may be relevant to the defense of entrapment.

8.02. UNANIMITY INSTRUCTION – GENERIC

The law allows the introduction of evidence for the purpose of showing that there is more than one [act] [omission] [item] upon which proof of an element of an offense may be based. In order for the prosecution to prove an element, all twelve jurors must unanimously agree that [the same act] [the same omission] [possession of the same item] has been proved beyond a reasonable doubt.

Commentary

HRPP 31(a) provides the "verdict shall be unanimous, unless otherwise stipulated to by the parties."

A trial court is obligated to exercise its broad discretion to obtain a verdict from a jury where the jury reports that it is unable to reach a verdict. State v. Minn, 79 Hawai'i 461, 467, 903 P.2d 1282, 1288 (1995), State v. Moriwake, 65 Haw. 47, 55, 647 P.2d 705, 712 (1982). In Minn, the trial court refused to instruct the jury regarding its duty to deliberate towards arriving at a unanimous verdict, ruling that sending in one instruction was "sort of arm twisting" and copies of instructions had not been requested by the jury. 79 Hawai'i at 467-68, 647 P.2d at 1288-89. On appeal, the supreme court concluded that the trial court reasonably concluded that reinstructing the jury during deliberation might have placed undue pressure on the jury and therefore the court did not abuse its discretion in refusing to reinstruct the jury. Id. at 468, 903 P.2d at 1289.

8.02A. UNANIMOUS VERDICT

A verdict must represent the considered judgment of each juror, and in order to reach a verdict, it is necessary that each juror agree thereto. In other words, your verdict must be unanimous.

Each of you must decide the case for yourself, but it is your duty to consult with one another and to deliberate with a view to reaching an agreement, if you can do so without violating your individual judgment. In the course of your deliberations, do not hesitate to re-examine your own views and change your opinion if convinced it is erroneous. But do not surrender your honest belief as to the weight or effect of evidence for the mere purpose of returning a verdict.

8.03. CONDUCT OF DELIBERATIONS

Upon retiring to the jury room, elect one of your members as foreperson to preside over your deliberations and be your spokesperson in court.

You may take such time as you feel is necessary for your deliberations. You may inform the court if you have any questions about or do not understand the court's instructions.

When you reach a verdict, the foreperson is to sign and date the verdict, appropriate forms for which will be given to you.

Until you are through with your consideration of this case or you are otherwise excused by the court, it is necessary from this time that you remain together as a body. A bailiff will be sworn to attend you and take care of any personal problems you may have and see to your comfort. If you need to communicate with the court, send a note through the bailiff. Please do not attempt to communicate with the court except in writing.

During the course of the trial, you have received all of the evidence you may consider to decide the case. You must not attempt to gather any information on your own which you think might be helpful. Do not engage in any outside reading on any matter having anything to do with this case. Do not refer to dictionaries or other outside sources. Do not visit any places mentioned in the case. Do not in any other way try to learn about the case outside the courtroom.

During your recesses from deliberations, when you are released to go home in the evening, you must not discuss this case with anyone or permit anyone to discuss this case with you. You must not read or listen to news accounts about this case, if there are any.

You must not discuss this case with any person other than your fellow jurors. You must not reveal to the court or to any other person how the jury stands, numerically or otherwise, until you have reached a unanimous verdict and it has been received by the court.

Commentary

See State v. Williamson, 72 Haw. 97, 807 P.2d 593 (1990) (improper for jury to refer to dictionary definition not part of the record).

8.04. FORM OF VERDICTS

You may bring in either one of the following verdicts:

1. Not guilty; or

2. Guilty as charged.

Your verdict must be unanimous.

After a verdict has been reached and your foreperson has signed and dated the verdict form, you will notify the bailiff, and court will be reconvened to receive the verdict.

Commentary

A verdict must be responsive to the evidence. In other words, the possible verdicts submitted to the jury are determined and limited by the evidence submitted during trial. State v. Shon, 47 Haw. 158, 385 P.2d 830 (1963).

When the defendant is charged with lesser and greater offenses that would merge into one offense if committed concurrently, the court should instruct the jury that if it so finds, it must return a verdict only on the greater offense. State v. Ah Choy, 70 Haw. 618, 780 P.2d 1097 (1989); see also State v. Briones, 71 Haw. 86, 784 P.2d 860 (1989); State v. Reyes, 5 Haw. App. 561, 706 P.2d 1326 (1985).

When an ambiguous or improper verdict is returned by the jury, the trial court may recommit the verdict to the jury with proper instructions, in order to obtain a complete and correct verdict before discharging the jury. State v. Manipon, 70 Haw. 175, 177, 765 P.2d 1091 (1989).

8.05 PARTIAL VERDICTS

You may at any time during your deliberations return a verdict[s] with respect to the [a] defendant [one or more counts] to which you can agree even though you may not be able to reach agreement as to all [defendants] [counts].

Commentary

This instruction is usually used if the jurors ask about, attempt to return or otherwise indicate that they may have reached a partial verdict. It may also be appropriate if the jury has deliberated for an extensive period of time.

HRPP Rule 31(b) provides, "[i]f there are 2 or more defendants, or 2 or more counts, the jury at any time during its deliberations may return a verdict or verdicts with respect to a defendant or defendants, or with respect to a count or counts, as to whom it has agreed; if the jury cannot with respect to all, the defendant or defendants, or count or counts, as to whom it does not agree may be tried again."

8.06 RETURN TO DELIBERATIONS AFTER POLLING

It has just become apparent that the decision in this case may not be unanimous, that one or more of you may not have agreed with that decision. Please return to the jury room, and continue your deliberations with a view to reaching a verdict, if you can do so without violating your individual judgment.

Commentary

HRPP 31(c) provides, "[i]f upon the poll there is not unanimous concurrence, or there is not concurrence by the number of jurors stipulated as being necessary for returning a verdict, the jury may be directed to retire for further deliberations or may be discharged." See also State v. Keaulana, 71 Haw. 81, 784 P.2d 328 (1989).

Further, once a juror indicates a contrary vote, the trial court has discretion whether to continue polling the rest of the jurors, or to stop immediately and order the jury to resume deliberations. Id. The advantage of stopping immediately and returning the jury to deliberations, however, is that the numerical division of the jury is not disclosed. See, e.g., Brasfield v. United States, 272 U.S. 448 (1926).

8.07A SPECIAL INTERROGATORY ON INTRINSIC AGGRAVATING CIRCUMSTANCE WHEN AN ACCOMPLICE INSTRUCTION IS GIVEN

Did the prosecution prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the Defendant actually [constructively] possessed, used, or threatened to use (specify type of firearm) during the commission of the (identify underlying crime)?

Your answer to this question must be unanimous.

Yes ____

No ____

Commentary

In Garringer v. State, 80 Hawai`i 327, 909 P.2d 1142 (1996), the Hawai`i Supreme Court held that HRS § 706-660.1 precludes imposition of enhanced sentencing where the defendant did not personally possess, threaten to use, or use a firearm while engaged in the commission of a felony. Thus, when an accomplice liability instruction is given upon the underlying offense, "the circuit court should instruct the jury, by special verdict interrogatories, to make any and all findings relevant to the imposition of enhanced sentences where the requisite aggravating circumstances are intrinsic to the commission of the crime charged." Garringer, 80 Hawai`i at 335, 909 P.2d at 1150.

The jury's answer to an interrogatory of this type, whether affirmative or negative, must be unanimous, See State v. Peralto, 95 Hawai`i 1, 18 P.3d 203 (2001); see also State v. Yamada, 99 Hawai`i 542, 57 P.3d 467 (2002).

These three elements are:

1. That, on or about (date) in the [City and] County of (name of county), the Defendant caused the death of a witness in a criminal prosecution;* and

*The statute, and therefore the instruction, do not state or require that the Defendant cause the death because the decedent is a witness in a criminal prosecution. However, this nexus appears to underlie the elevation of the conduct to Murder in the First Degree. If the court deems it appropriate the following language may be inserted into the first element of the instruction: "person because the person was a" before the word "witness". Cf. State v. Pinero, 75 Haw. 282, 859 P.2d 1369 (1993) (murder of a police officer requires proof that the accused engaged in the death causing conduct because of the officer's performance of official duties).

1. That on or about the (date) in the [City and] County of (name of county), the Defendant intentionally or knowingly engaged in conduct; and

2. That by engaging in that conduct, the Defendant intentionally or knowingly caused the death of another person.

9.07B. MURDER IN THE SECOND DEGREE -- MURDER ALLEGED BY COMMISSION AND OMISSION IN ONE COUNT - GENERIC: PARENT/MINOR CHILD (WITH INCLUDED OFFENSE AND DEFENSE) -- HRS §§ 707-701.5 and 702-203(2)

[In Count (count number) of the Indictment/Complaint, the] [The] Defendant, (defendant's name), is charged with the offense of Murder in the Second Degree.

This offense is being charged and can be proved by the prosecution in either of two ways. With respect to the first alternative, a person commits the offense of Murder in the Second Degree if he/she intentionally or knowingly causes the death of another person.

In the first alternative, there are two material elements of the offense of Murder in the Second Degree, each of which the prosecution must prove beyond a reasonable doubt.

These two elements are:

1. That, on or about (date) in the [City and] County of (name of county), the Defendant caused the death of another person; and

2. That the Defendant did so intentionally or knowingly.

With respect to the second alternative, a person commits the offense of Murder in the Second Degree if he/she causes the death of another person by intentionally or knowingly failing to obtain to the best of his/her ability reasonably necessary and available medical services for the other person, a duty imposed by law upon a parent, intending or knowing that the failure to obtain medical services would result in the death of the other person.

In the second alternative, there are four material elements of the offense of Murder in the Second Degree, each of which the prosecution must prove beyond a reasonable doubt.

These four elements are:

1. That, on or about (date) in the [City and] County of (name of county), the Defendant was the parent of a minor child; and

2. That the Defendant intentionally or knowingly failed to obtain to the best of his/her ability reasonably necessary and available medical services for the minor child, a duty imposed by law upon a parent; and

3. That the Defendant failed to perform that duty intending or knowing that the Defendant's failure would cause the death of the minor child; and

4. That the Defendant's failure to perform that duty caused the death of the minor child.

If and only if you unanimously find that all the elements of either or both alternatives of Murder in the Second Degree have been proven by the prosecution beyond a reasonable doubt, then you must consider whether, at the time the Defendant caused the death, he/she was under the influence of extreme mental or emotional disturbance for which there is a reasonable explanation. The reasonableness of the explanation shall be determined from the viewpoint of a person in the Defendant's situation under the circumstances of which the Defendant was aware or as the Defendant believed them to be.

Under either alternative, the prosecution must prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the Defendant was not, at the time that he/she caused the death of (decedent), under the influence of extreme mental or emotional disturbance for which there is a reasonable explanation. If you unanimously find that the prosecution has done so, then you must return a verdict of guilty of Murder in the Second Degree. If unanimously find that the prosecution has not done so, then you must return a verdict of guilty of Manslaughter based upon extreme mental or emotional disturbance.

If you are unable to reach a unanimous agreement as to whether the prosecution has proved, or failed to prove, that the Defendant was not under the influence of extreme mental or emotional disturbance, then your decision is not unanimous and a verdict may not be returned on this offense.

If and only if you find the Defendant not guilty of both alternatives of Murder in the Second Degree, or you are unable to reach a unanimous verdict as to this offense, then you must consider whether the Defendant is guilty or not guilty of the offense of Manslaughter based upon reckless conduct.

The offense of Manslaughter based upon reckless conduct can be proved by the prosecution in either of two ways. With respect to the first alternative, a person commits the offense of Manslaughter if he/she recklessly caused the death of another person.

In the first alternative, there are two material elements of Manslaughter based upon reckless conduct, each of which the prosecution must prove beyond a reasonable doubt.

These two elements are:

1. That, on or about (date) in the [City and] County of (name of county), the Defendant caused the death of another person; and

2. That the Defendant did so recklessly.

With respect to the second alternative, a person commits the offense of Manslaughter if he/she causes the death of another person by recklessly failing to obtain to the best of his/her ability reasonably necessary and available medical services for injuries to the other person, a duty imposed by law upon a parent, consciously disregarding a substantial and unjustifiable risk that failure to obtain medical services would result in the death of the other person.

In the second alternative, there are four material elements of the offense of Manslaughter based upon reckless conduct, each of which the prosecution must prove beyond a reasonable doubt.

These four elements are:

1. That, on or about (date) in the [City and] County of (name of county), the Defendant was the parent of a minor child; and

2. That the Defendant recklessly failed to obtain to the best of his/her ability reasonably necessary and available medical services for the minor child, a duty imposed by law upon a parent; and

3. That the Defendant failed to perform that duty consciously disregarding a substantial and unjustifiable risk that the Defendant's failure would cause the death of the minor child; and

4. That the Defendant's failure to perform that duty caused the death of the minor child.

If you unanimously find that all the elements of either or both alternatives of Manslaughter have been proved by the prosecution beyond a reasonable doubt, then you must return a verdict of guilty of Manslaughter based upon reckless conduct.

[In any prosecution for an offense it is a defense that the Defendant engaged in the prohibited conduct under ignorance or mistake of fact if the ignorance or mistake negatives the state of mind required to establish an element of the offense.

With respect to the charge of Murder in the Second Degree it is a defense that the Defendant believed it was not reasonably necessary to obtain medical care for the minor child. It does not matter if the Defendant's belief was mistaken, so long as the Defendant held the belief reasonably, recklessly or negligently at the time of the alleged offense. Thus, the prosecution has the burden of proving beyond a reasonable doubt that the Defendant was aware or believed or hoped that medical care for the minor child was reasonably necessary at the time of the alleged offense of Murder in the Second Degree. If the prosecution fails to meet its burden, then you must find the Defendant not guilty of Murder in the Second Degree.

With respect to the offense of Manslaughter based upon reckless conduct, it is not a defense that the Defendant was recklessly mistaken. However, a negligent mistake would afford a defense to this offense. A person acts negligently when he/she is not aware of the risk that medical care for his/her child is reasonably necessary, but the person should have been aware of that risk. Thus, the prosecution has the burden of proving beyond a reasonable doubt that the Defendant either knew or consciously disregarded a substantial and unjustifiable risk that medical care for the minor child was reasonably necessary at the time of the alleged offense of Manslaughter based upon reckless conduct.]

9.08. EXTREME MENTAL OR EMOTIONAL DISTURBANCE MANSLAUGHTER: H.R.S. § 707-702(2)

If and only if you unanimously find that all the elements of (specify murder charge) have been proven by the prosecution beyond a reasonable doubt [and you unanimously find that the defendant was not justified in using deadly force], then you must consider whether, at the time defendant caused the death, he/she was under the influence of extreme mental or emotional disturbance for which there is a reasonable explanation. The reasonableness of the explanation shall be determined from the viewpoint of a person in the defendant's situation under the circumstances of which the defendant was aware or as the defendant believed them to be.

The prosecution must prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant was not, at the time that he/she caused the death of (decedent), under the influence of extreme mental or emotional disturbance for which there is a reasonable explanation. If you unanimously find that the prosecution has done so, then you must return a verdict of guilty of (specify murder charge). If you unanimously find that the prosection has not done so, then you must return a verdict of guilty of Manslaughter based upon extreme mental or emotional disturbance.

If you are unable to reach a unanimous agreement as to whether the prosecution has proved, or failed to prove, that the defendant was not under the influence of extreme mental or emotional disturbance, then your decision is not unanimous and a verdict may not be returned on this offense.

9.08A. EXTREME MENTAL OR EMOTIONAL DISTURBANCE MANSLAUGHTER: H.R.S. § 707-702(2)

If and only if you unanimously find that all the elements of (specify murder or attempted murder charge) have been proven by the prosecution beyond a reasonable doubt [and you unanimously find that the defendant was not justified in using deadly force/force], then you must consider the affirmative defense of Extreme Mental or Emotional Disturbance.

Extreme Mental or Emotional Disturbance has two elements. These two elements are:

1. That the Defendant was, at the time he/she caused the death/attempted to cause the death of the other person, under the influence of extreme mental or emotional disturbance; and

2. There was a reasonable explanation for the extreme mental or emotional disturbance. The reasonableness of the explanation shall be determined from the viewpoint of a reasonable person in the circumstances as the Defendant believed them to be.

The Defendant must prove an affirmative defense by a preponderance of the evidence. This means that the Defendant must prove that it is more likely than not, or more probable than not, that each element of Extreme Mental or Emotional Disturbance occurred. In determining whether the Defendant has proven an affirmative defense by a preponderance of the evidence, you must consider all of the evidence that has been presented to you regardless of who presented it.

If you unanimously find that the Defendant has proven the elements of the affirmative defense by a preponderance of the evidence, then you must find the Defendant guilty of Manslaughter/Attempted Manslaughter based upon Extreme Mental or Emotional Disturbance. If you unanimously find that the Defendant has not proven the elements of the affirmative defense by a preponderance of the evidence, then you must find the Defendant guilty of (specify murder or attempted murder charge).

If you are unable to reach a unanimous agreement as to whether the affirmative defense has been proved or not been proved, then a verdict may not be returned on (specify murder or attempted murder charge).

Notes

Effective May 19, 2003, Extreme Mental or Emotional Disturbance became an affirmative defense.

10.00. Definitions of Terms Used in Chapter 10, Pattern Jury Instructions

"Another" means any other person and includes, where relevant, the United States, this State and any of its political subdivisions, and any other state and any of its political subdivisions. (The definition of this term is taken from HRS § 701-118)

"Building" includes any structure, and the term also includes any vehicle, railway car, aircraft, or watercraft used for lodging of persons therein; each unit of a building consisting of two or more units separately secured or occupied is a separate building.

"Cable television service" means one-way transmission of programming provided by, or generally considered comparable to programming provided by, a television broadcast station or other information made available by a cable operator to all subscribers generally.

"Cable television service device" means any mechanical or electronic instrument, apparatus, equipment or device which can be used to obtain cable television services without payment of applicable charges therefor. A "cable television service device" does not include any instrument, apparatus, equipment, device, facility or any component thereof furnished by a cable operator in the ordinary course of its business.

"Cardholder" means the person or organization named on the face of a credit card to whom or for whose benefit the credit card is issued by an issuer.

"Control over the property" means the exercise of dominion over the property and includes, but is not limited to, taking, carrying away, or possessing the property, or selling, conveying, or transferring title to or an interest in the property.

"Credit card" means any instrument or device, whether known as a credit card, credit plate, debit card, electronic benefits transfer card, or by any other name, issued with or without fee by an issuer for the use of the cardholder in obtaining money, goods, services, or anything else of value.

"Deception" occurs when a person knowingly:

(a) creates or confirms another's impression which is false and which the defendant does not believe to be true; or

(b) fails to correct a false impression which he previously has created or confirmed; or

(c) prevents another from acquiring information pertinent to the disposition of the property involved; or

d) sells or otherwise transfers or encumbers property, failing to disclose a lien, adverse claim, or other legal impediment to the enjoyment of the property, whether that impediment is or is not valid, or is or is not a matter of official record; or

(e) promises performance which he/she does not intend to perform or knows will not be performed, but a person's intention not to perform a promise shall not be inferred from the fact alone that he/she did not subsequently perform the promise.

The term "deception" does not, however, include falsity as to matters having no pecuniary significance, or puffing by statements unlikely to deceive ordinary persons in the group addressed. "Puffing" means an exaggerated commendation of wares or services in communications addressed to the public or to a class or group.

"Deprive" means:

(a) to withhold property or cause it to be withheld from a person permanently or for so extended a period or under such circumstance that a significant portion of its economic value, or of the use and benefit thereof, is lost to him; or

(b) to dispose of the property so as to make it unlikely that the owner will recover it; or

(c) to retain the property with intent to restore it to the owner only if the owner purchases or leases it back, or pays a reward or other compensation for its return; or

(d) to sell, give, pledge, or otherwise transfer any interest in the property; or

(e) to subject the property to the claim of a person other than the owner.

"Distributes" means to sell, transfer, give or deliver to another, or to leave, barter, or exchange with another, or to offer or agree to do the same.

"Dwelling" means a building which is used or usually used by a person for lodging.

"Enter or remain unlawfully" means to enter or remain in or upon premises when the person is not licensed, invited, or otherwise privileged to do so. A person who, regardless of the person's intent, enters or remains in or upon premises which are at the time open to the public does so with license and privilege unless the person defies a lawful order not to enter or remain, personally communicated to the person by the owner of the premises or some other authorized person. A license or privilege to enter or remain in a building which is only partly open to the public is not a license or privilege to enter or remain in that part of the building which is not open to the public.

"Expired credit card" means a credit card which is no longer valid because the term shown on the credit card has elapsed.

"Government" means the United States, or any state, county, municipality, or other political unit within territory belonging to the United States, or any department, agency, or subdivision of any of the foregoing, or any corporation or other association carrying out the functions of government, or any corporation or agency formed pursuant to interstate compact or international treaty. As used in this definition "state" includes any state, territory or possession of the United States, the District of Columbia, and the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico.

"Intent to defraud" means:

(a) an intent to use deception to injure another's interest which has value; or

(b) knowledge by the defendant that he is facilitating an injury to another's interest which has value.

"Issuer" means the business organization or financial institution which issues a credit card or its agent.

"Obtain" means when used in relation to property, to bring about a transfer of possession or other interest, whether to the obtainer or to another.

"Owner" means a person, other than the defendant, who has possession of or any other interest in, the property involved, even though that possession or interest is unlawful; however, a secured party is not an owner in relation to a defendant who is a debtor with respect to property in which the secured party has only a security interest.

"Person," "he," "him," "actor," and "defendant" include any natural person, including any natural person whose identity can be established by means of scientific analysis, including but not limited to scientific analysis of deoxyribonucleic acid and fingerprints, whether or not the natural person's name is known, and, where relevant, a corporation or an unincorporated association. (The definition of these terms is from HRS § 701-118)

"Premises" includes any building and any real property.

"Property" means any money, personal property, real property, thing in action, evidence of debt or contract, or article of value of any kind. Commodities of a public utility nature such as gas, electricity, steam, and water constitute property, but the supplying of such a commodity to premises from an outside source by means of wires, pipes, conduits, or other equipment shall be deemed a rendition of a service rather than a sale or delivery of property.

"Property of another" means property which any person, other than the defendant, has possession of or any other interest in, even though that possession or interest is unlawful.

"Receives" or "receiving" includes but is not limited to acquiring possession, control, or title, and taking a security interest in the property.

"Revoked credit card" means a credit card which is no longer valid because permission to use the credit card has been suspended or terminated by the issuer.

"Services" includes but is not limited to labor, professional services, transportation, telephone or other public services, accommodation in hotels, restaurants or elsewhere, admission to exhibitions, and the supplying of equipment for use.

10.00A(1). VALUE -- DEFINITION:
H.R.S. § 708-801(1), (2) and (3)

A. Property or Services

Value means the market value of the property or services at the time and place of the offense, or the replacement cost if the market value of the property or services cannot be determined. When the property (or services*) has value but that value cannot be ascertained, the value shall be deemed to be an amount not exceeding $100.

B. Written Instrument

The value of an instrument whether or not it has been issued or delivered constituting an evidence of debt, such as a check, traveler's check, draft, or promissory note, shall be deemed the amount due or collectible thereon or thereby, that figure ordinarily being the face amount of the indebtedness less any portion thereof which has been satisfied. The value of any other instrument that creates, releases, discharges or otherwise affects any valuable legal right, privilege, or obligation shall be deemed the greatest amount of economic loss which the owner of the instrument might reasonably suffer by virtue of the loss of the instrument. [When the property (or services*) has value but that value cannot be ascertained, the value shall be deemed to be an amount not exceeding $100.]

Notes

H.R.S. § 708-801(1),(2) and (3).

These value definitions are applicable whenever the value of property or services is determinative of the class or grade of an offense, or otherwise relevant to a prosecution.

For definition of terms defined by H.R.S. Chapter 708, see instructions:

If you find beyond a reasonable doubt that the value of the [property] [services] exceeded (specify relevant threshold amount), you may, but are not required to, infer that the Defendant [believed] [knew] the [property] [services] to be of that value. If you do so infer, you must nevertheless consider all the evidence in the case in determining whether the State has proven beyond a reasonable doubt that the Defendant [believed] [knew] the [property] [services] to be of that value.

It is a defense to (name of charged offense) that the Defendant believed the valuation of the [property] [services] to be (specify relevant threshold amount) or less.

B. If you find beyond a reasonable doubt that the value of the [property] [services] exceeded (specify relevant threshold amount), you may, but are not required to, infer that the Defendant acted in reckless disregard of the value. If you do so infer, you must nevertheless consider all the evidence in the case in determining whether the State has proven beyond a reasonable doubt that the Defendant acted in reckless disregard of the value.

It is a defense that the Defendant did not act intentionally or knowingly, or recklessly disregard a risk that the property was of the specified value.

The commentary on § 708-812.55 reads as follows:

> Act 187, Session Laws 2011, established the offense of unauthorized entry in a dwelling in the first degree, a class B felony, for the unauthorized entry in a dwelling if another person, at the time of entry, was lawfully present in the dwelling and the person was sixty-two years of age or older, was an incapacitated person, or had a developmental disability. The legislature found that home invasions are traumatic experiences for the victims and may be especially frightening for vulnerable elderly and disabled individuals present during the intrusion. The legislature intended that the presence of a person lawfully in the dwelling shall be a strict liability element and that it shall not be necessary to prove that a defendant knew or had any reason to know that the person lawfully in the dwelling was sixty-two years of age or older, incapacitated, or disabled. Conference Committee Report No. 32.

Consistent with the commentary and the majority opinion in State v. Buch, 83 Hawai'i 308, 926 P.2d 599 (1996), the states of mind specified in the definition of the offense are not made applicable to elements two and three. See also H.R.S. § 702-207.

(Applicable to offenses occurring from June 22, 2006 through July 4, 2011)

The Defendant has raised an affirmative defense to the offense of Unauthorized Entry in a Dwelling. Before you may consider the affirmative defense, you must first determine whether the prosecution has proved all of the elements of Unauthorized Entry in a Dwelling beyond a reasonable doubt. If you unanimously find that the prosecution has not proved all of the elements of that offense beyond a reasonable doubt, then you must find the Defendant not guilty of the offense without considering the affirmative defense. If you unanimously find that the prosecution has proved all of the elements of the offense beyond a reasonable doubt, then you must consider the affirmative defense.

There are three elements for to the affirmative defense, each of which the Defendant must prove.

These three elements are:

1. That there was a social gathering of invited guests at the dwelling the Defendant entered; and

2. That the Defendant intended to join the social gathering; and

3. That the Defendant did not intend to commit any unlawful act other than the unlawful entry.

The Defendant must prove an affirmative defense by a preponderance of the evidence. This means that the Defendant must prove that it is more likely than not, or more probable than not, that each element of the affirmative defense occurred. In determining whether the defendant has proved an affirmative defense by a preponderance of the evidence, you must consider all of the evidence that has been presented to you regardless of who presented it.

Your determination as to whether the Defendant has proved the affirmative defense must be unanimous and is to be indicated by answering "Yes" or "No" on a special interrogatory that will be provided to you.

If you are unable to reach a unanimous agreement as to whether the affirmative defense has been proved or not been proved, then a verdict may not be returned on the charge of Unauthorized Entry in a Dwelling.

2. That the Defendant intended to join the social gathering as an invited guest; and

3. That the Defendant did not intend to commit any unlawful act other than the unlawful entry.

The Defendant must prove an affirmative defense by a preponderance of the evidence. This means that the Defendant must prove that it is more likely than not, or more probable than not, that each element of the affirmative defense occurred. In determining whether the Defendant has proved an affirmative defense by a preponderance of the evidence, you must consider all of the evidence that has been presented to you regardless of who presented it.

Your determination as to whether the Defendant has proved the affirmative defense must be unanimous and is to be indicated by answering "Yes" or "No" on a special interrogatory that will be provided to you.

11.07. Abuse of Family or Household Members – Stipulation as to Prior Conviction Element and Limiting Instruction: H.R.S. § 709-906(7)

One of the elements of the offense of Abuse of Family or Household Members requires the prosecution to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that, on (insert date of charged offense) the Defendant (defendant's name) had two or more prior misdemeanor convictions, the last of which occurred within two years of that date. This element is referred to as the "prior conviction element" of the offense.

The defense and the prosecution have stipulated to this element, which means that both sides agree that the Defendant had two or more prior misdemeanor convictions, the last of which occurred within two years of (insert date of charged offense). Based on this stipulation, you must accept as proven beyond a reasonable doubt the "prior conviction element." You must not consider the stipulation for any other purpose. You must not speculate as to the nature of the prior convictions.

Notes

The court should consider giving this instruction immediately after the stipulation is read to the jury. During the court's complete instructions to the jury at the close of the case, the court should consider giving either this instruction or 4.01 ("Several times during the trial I told you that certain evidence was allowed into this trial for a particular and limited purpose. When you consider that evidence, you must limit your consideration to that purpose.").

See State v. Murray, 116 Hawai`i 3, 169 P.3d 955 (2007) ("failure to allow the defendant to use the stipulation procedure would not be considered harmless error"). Under Murray, if the defense requests the stipulation procedure: (1) the defendant should be allowed to stipulate to the fact of the required prior convictions; (2) the stipulation may be accepted only after engaging the defendant in an on-the-record colloquy to ensure a knowing and voluntary waiver of his/her right to have the "prior conviction element" proved beyond a reasonable doubt and decided by a jury; (3) the jury should be instructed that the defendant has stipulated to this particular element of the charged offense to make it plain that this element is considered proven beyond a reasonable doubt; (4) the instruction must be carefully crafted to omit any reference to the "name or nature" of the previous convictions; (5) the instruction should ensure that the prior convictions are not considered by the jury for any purpose other than conclusively establishing the "prior convictions element;" and (6) the court must preclude any mention of the name or nature of the prior convictions at any point during the trial, i.e., jury selection, opening statements, presentation of evidence, closing arguments, or instructions.

11.07A. Abuse of Family or Household Members – Stipulation as to Third Offense Within Two Years: H.R.S. § 709-906(7)

A court must rule that the false statement is a "materially false statement," as defined by 710-1000(9), see instruction 12.00, in order to obtain a perjury conviction.

The fifth element of the offense has been bracketed because while a state of mind would apply to elements three and four, element five need not be given to the jury by agreement of the parties.

For statutory defense and circumstances not constituting a defense, see instruction 12.18A.

A. Defense

It is a defense to a prosecution for perjury, if the Defendant retracted the falsification in the course of the same proceeding before discovery of the falsification became known to him/her.

"In the course of the same proceeding" includes separate hearings at separate stages of the same official or administrative proceeding but does not include any stage of the proceeding after the close of the evidence.

The burden is upon the prosecution to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the Defendant did not retract the falsification in the course of the same proceeding before discovery of the falsification became known to him/her. If the prosecution does not meet its burden, then you must find the Defendant not guilty.

B. Not a Defense

It is not a defense to a prosecution for perjury, if:

[1. The Defendant was not competent, for reasons other than lack of penal responsibility, to make the false statement alleged;]

[2. The statement was inadmissible under the law of evidence;]

[3. The oath was administered or taken in an irregular manner;]

[4. The person administering the oath lacked authority to do so, if the taking of the oath was required or authorized by law.]

You must not consider this stipulation for any other purpose.

Notes

This instruction and instruction 13.00A.5A should be given whenever the Defendant stipulates to the prior convictions that comprise the attendant circumstance element of the offense and the state of mind applicable to that element. The court should also consider giving variations of instructions 3.06 (stipulations) and 4.01 (evidence admitted for a limited purpose) immediately after the stipulation is read to the jury.

See State v. Murray, 116 Hawai`i 3, 169 P.3d 955 (2007) ("failure to allow the defendant to use the stipulation procedure would not be considered harmless error"). Under Murray, if the defense requests the stipulation procedure: (1) the defendant should be allowed to stipulate to the fact of the required prior convictions; (2) the stipulation may be accepted only after engaging the defendant in an on-the-record colloquy to ensure a knowing and voluntary waiver of his/her right to have the "prior conviction element" proved beyond a reasonable doubt and decided by a jury; (3) the jury should be instructed that the defendant has stipulated to this particular element of the charged offense to make it plain that this element is considered proved beyond a reasonable doubt; (4) the instruction must be carefully crafted to omit any reference to the "name or nature" of the previous convictions; (5) the instruction should ensure that the prior convictions are not considered by the jury for any purpose other than conclusively establishing the "prior convictions element;" and (6) the court must preclude any mention of the name or nature of the prior convictions at any point during the trial, i.e., jury selection, opening statements, presentation of evidence, closing arguments, or instructions.

Consistent with (4) and (6) of the Murray requirements enumerated above, in the body of this instruction (and

TABLE OF INSTRUCTIONS[21]

16. CHAPTER 291 -- TRAFFIC VIOLATIONS

[21] The original instructions approved and published in Volume I in December 1991 are not dated. New or amended instructions in Volumes I and II reflect the Supreme Court's approval date in parentheses.

16.00 DEFINITION OF TERMS USED IN CHAPTER 16, PATTERN JURY INSTRUCTIONS

"Alcohol" means the product of distillation of any fermented liquid, regardless of whether rectified, whatever may be the origin thereof, and includes ethyl alcohol, lower aliphatic alcohol, and phenol as well as synthetic ethyl alcohol, but not denatured or other alcohol that is considered not potable under the customs laws of the United States.

"Under the influence" means that a person:

(1) Is under the influence of alcohol in an amount sufficient to impair the person's normal mental faculties or ability to care for the person and guard against casualty;

(2) Is under the influence of any drug that impairs the person's ability to operate the vehicle in a careful and prudent manner;

(3) Has .08 or more grams of alcohol per 210 liters of the person's breath; or

(4) Has .08 or more grams of alcohol per 100 milliliters or cubic centimeters of the person's blood.

OR

A. ALTERNATIVES IN TWO COUNTS

The Defendant is charged with the offense of [Operating a Vehicle Under the Influence of an Intoxicant] [Habitually Operating a Vehicle Under the Influence of an Intoxicant]. This offense can be proved by the prosecution in either of two ways. These alternatives have been designated as Count (count number) and Count (count number). Proof of Count (count number), requires a showing that, at the time in question, the Defendant was under the influence of an intoxicant. Proof of Count (count number), requires a showing by chemical or other approved analysis that, at the time in question, the Defendant had .08 or more [grams of alcohol per 100 milliliters or cubic centimeters of blood] [grams of alcohol per 210 liters of breath]. Proof beyond a reasonable doubt of either alternative or both alternatives will result in the Defendant's conviction of only one offense of [Operating a Vehicle Under the Influence of an Intoxicant] [Habitually Operating a Vehicle Under the Influence of an Intoxicant].

B. ALTERNATIVES IN ONE COUNT

The Defendant is charged with the offense of Operating a Vehicle Under the Influence of an Intoxicant] [Habitually Operating a Vehicle Under the Influence of an Intoxicant]. This offense is being charged and can be proved by the prosecution in either of two ways. Proof of the first alternative requires a showing that, at the time in question, the Defendant was under the influence of an intoxicant. Proof of the second alternative requires a showing by chemical or other approved analysis that, at the time in question, the Defendant had .08 or more [grams of alcohol per 100 milliliters or cubic centimeters of blood] [grams of alcohol per 210 liters of breath]. Proof beyond a reasonable doubt of either alternative or both alternatives will result in the Defendant's conviction of only one offense of Operating a Vehicle Under the Influence of an Intoxicant] [Habitually Operating a Vehicle Under the Influence of an Intoxicant].

Notes

H.R.S. § 291E-61(a)(1),(3),(4).

H.R.S. § 291E-61.5(a)(1)and(2)(A),(C),(D).

Spock v. Admin. Director of the Courts, 96 Hawai'i 190, 193, 29P.3d 380, 383 (2001): "Driving Under the Influence of Intoxicating Liquor (H.R.S. § 291-4 (repealed 2/1/02)) may be proved under either such alternative grounds ('under the influence' or with a 'BAC level of .08 or more'). State v. Dow, 72 Haw. 56, 61-64, 806 P.2d 402, 405-06 (1991) (stating that subsections (a)(1) and (a)(2) of H.R.S. § 291-4 presented different methods of proving a single offense." Because Habitually Operating a Vehicle Under the Influence of an Intoxicant, H.R.S. 291E-61.5, similar to Operating a Vehicle Under the Influence of an Intoxicant (formerly "Driving Under the Influence of Intoxicating Liquor"), contains alternative means under subsections (a)(2)(A), (a)(2)(C), and (a)(2)(D), this instruction would appear to be similarly appropriate.

State v. Lemalu, 72 Haw. 130, 137-38, 809 P.2d 442, 446 (1991). Where defendant is charged in two counts with the two separate methods of proving the offense of Driving Under the Influence of Intoxicating Liquor (H.R.S. § 291-4 (repealed 2/1/02)) (and with no other offenses), the court should not submit the first sentence of Instruction 4.06: Alternative A. The Lemalu concept applicable to Operating a Vehicle Under the Influence of an Intoxicant (formerly "Driving Under the Influence of Intoxicating Liquor") would appear similarly to apply to Habitually Operating a Vehicle Under the Influence of an Intoxicant, H.R.S. 291E-61.5, where the two alternative methods are charged in two counts.

16.02 OPERATING A VEHICLE UNDER THE INFLUENCE OF AN INTOXICANT—ALCOHOL IMPAIRMENT: H.R.S. § 291E-61(a)(1)

[In Count (count number) of the Indictment/Complaint, the] [The] Defendant, (defendant's name), is charged with the offense of Operating a Vehicle Under the Influence of an Intoxicant.

A person commits the offense of Operating a Vehicle Under the Influence of an Intoxicant if the person operates or assumes actual physical control of a vehicle with .08 or more grams of alcohol per 210 liters of breath.

There are two material elements of the offense of Operating a Vehicle Under the Influence of an Intoxicant, each of which the prosecution must prove beyond a reasonable doubt.

These two elements are:

OR

HABITUALLY OPERATING A VEHICLE UNDER THE INFLUENCE OF AN INTOXICANT - MARGIN OF ERROR

If you find there is a tolerance for error in the alcohol test conducted upon the Defendant, then, in order to find the Defendant guilty under [Count (count number) of the Indictment/Complaint] [the second alternative of Count (count number) of the Indictment/Complaint], the prosecution must prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the results of the [breath] [blood] test conducted upon the Defendant reduced by its tolerance for error, equaled or exceeded .08 or more grams of alcohol [per 100 milliliters or cubic centimeters of blood] [per 210 liters of breath].

INFERENCE FROM .08 LEVEL: H.R.S. § 291E-3

In [Count (count number) of the Indictment/Complaint,] if you find beyond a reasonable doubt that the Defendant, (defendant's name), had [.08 or more grams of alcohol per 100 milliliters or cubic centimeters of blood] [.08 or more grams of alcohol per 210 liters of breath] [the presence of one or more drugs in an amount sufficient to impair his/her ability to operate a vehicle in a careful and prudent manner] within three hours after the time of the alleged violation as shown by chemical analysis or other approved analytical techniques of the defendant's blood or breath, you may, but are not required to, infer that the Defendant was under the influence of intoxicating liquor at the time the Defendant operated or assumed actual physical control of a vehicle. If you do so infer, you must nevertheless consider all the evidence in the case in determining whether the State has proven beyond a reasonable doubt that the Defendant had [.08 or more grams of alcohol per 100 millimeters or cubic centimeters of blood] [.08 or more grams of alcohol per 210 liters of breath] [the presence of one or more drugs in an amount sufficient to impair his/her ability to operate a vehicle in a careful and prudent manner] at the time Defendant operated or assumed actual physical control of a vehicle.

There are four material elements of the offense of Habitually Operating a Vehicle under the Influence of an Intoxicant, each of which the prosecution must prove beyond a reasonable doubt.

These four elements are:

2. That Defendant, at that time, operated or assumed actual physical control of a vehicle; and

3. That Defendant, at that time, was under the influence of alcohol in an amount sufficient to impair Defendant's normal mental faculties or ability to care for Defendant and guard against casualty; and

4. That Defendant acted intentionally, knowingly, or recklessly as to each of the foregoing elements.

"Habitual operator of a vehicle while under the influence of an intoxicant" means a person who has been convicted three or more times within ten years of the instant offense, for offenses of operating a vehicle under the influence of an intoxicant.

"Convicted three or more times for offenses of operating a vehicle under the influence" means that, at the time of the behavior for which the person is charged with Habitually Operating a Vehicle under the Influence of an Intoxicant, the person had three or more times within ten years of the instant offense:

(2) A judgment on a verdict or a finding of guilty, or a plea of guilty or nolo contendere, for an offense that is comparable to [Habitually Operating a Vehicle under the Influence of an Intoxicant] [Driving under the Influence of Intoxicating Liquor] [Habitually Driving under the Influence of Intoxicating Liquor or Drugs] [Driving Under the Influence of Drugs] [Operating a Vehicle Under the Influence of an Intoxicant] [Negligent Homicide in the First Degree]; or

(3) An adjudication of a minor for a law or probation violation that, if committed by an adult, would constitute a violation of [Habitually Operating a Vehicle under the Influence of an Intoxicant] [Driving under the Influence of Intoxicating Liquor] [Habitually Driving under the Influence of Intoxicating Liquor or Drugs] [Driving Under the Influence of Drugs] [Operating a Vehicle Under the Influence of an Intoxicant] [Negligent Homicide in the First Degree]; that, at the time of the instant offense, had not been expunged by pardon, reversed, or set aside. All convictions that have been expunged by pardon, reversed, or set aside prior to the instant offense shall not be deemed prior convictions for the purposes of proving the person's status as a habitual operator of a vehicle while under the influence of an intoxicant.

17.01 UNLAWFUL USE OF OR POSSESSION WITH INTENT TO USE DRUG PARAPHERNALIA H.R.S. § 329-43.5(a)

[In Count (count number) of the Indictment/Complaint, the] [The] Defendant, (defendant's name), is charged with the offense of Unlawful [Use of] [Possession with Intent to Use] Drug Paraphernalia.

A person commits the offense of Unlawful [Use of] [Possession with Intent to Use] Drug Paraphernalia if he/she [uses an object with the intent] [possesses an object with the intent to use it] to [plant] [propagate] [cultivate] [grow] [harvest] [manufacture] [compound] [convert] [produce] [process] [prepare] [test] [analyze] [pack] [repack] [store] [contain] [conceal] [inject] [ingest] [inhale] [introduce into a human body] a controlled substance.

There are two material elements of the offense of Unlawful [Use of] [Possession with Intent to Use] Drug Paraphernalia, each of which the prosecution must prove beyond a reasonable doubt.

These two elements are:

1. That, on or about (date) in the [City and] County of (name of county), the Defendant [used an object with the intent] [possessed an object with the intent to use it] to [plant] [propagate] [cultivate] [grow] [harvest] [manufacture] [compound] [convert] [produce] [process] [prepare] [test] [analyze] [pack] [repack] [store] [contain] [conceal] [inject] [ingest] [inhale] [introduce into a human body] a controlled substance; and

2. That the object was drug paraphernalia.

'Drug paraphernalia' means all equipment, products, and materials of any kind which are used, primarily intended for use, or primarily designed for use, in planting, propagating, cultivating, growing, harvesting, manufacturing, compounding, converting, producing, processing, preparing, testing, analyzing, packaging, repackaging, storing, containing, concealing, injecting, ingesting, inhaling, or otherwise introducing into the human body a controlled substance. It includes, but is not limited to:

[Kits used, primarily intended for use, or primarily designed for use in planting, propagating, cultivating, growing, or harvesting of any species of plant which is a controlled substance or from which a prohibited controlled substance can be derived;

Kits used, primarily intended for use, or primarily designed for use in manufacturing, compounding, converting, producing, processing, or preparing prohibited controlled substances;

Isomerization devices used, primarily intended for use, or primarily designed for use in increasing the potency of any species of plant which is a prohibited controlled substance;

Testing equipment used, primarily intended for use, or primarily designed for use in identifying, or in analyzing the strength, effectiveness, or purity of prohibited controlled substances;

Scales and balances used, primarily intended for use, or primarily designed for use in weighing or measuring prohibited controlled substances;

Diluents and adulterants; such as quinine hydrochloride, mannitol, mannite, dextrose, and lactose, used, primarily intended for use, or primarily designed for use in cutting prohibited controlled substances;

Separation gins and sifters used, primarily intended for use, or primarily designed for use in removing twigs and seeds from, or in otherwise cleaning or refining, prohibited marijuana;

Blenders, bowls containers, spoons, and mixing devices used, primarily intended for use, or primarily designed for use in compounding prohibited controlled substances;

Capsules, balloons, envelopes, and other containers used, primarily intended for use, or primarily designed for use in packaging small quantities of prohibited controlled substances;

Containers and other objects used, primarily intended for use, or primarily designed for use in storing or concealing prohibited controlled substances;

Hypodermic syringes, needles, and other objects used, primarily intended for use, or primarily designed for use in parenterally injecting prohibited controlled substances into the human body;

Objects used, primarily intended for use, or primarily designed for use in ingesting, inhaling, or otherwise introducing prohibited marijuana, cocaine, hashish, hashish oil, or methamphetamine into the human body, such as:

(A) Metal, wooden, acrylic, glass, stone, plastic, or ceramic pipes with or without screens, permanent screens, hashish heads, or punctured metal bowls;

(B) Water pipes;

(C) Carburetion tubes and devices;

(D) Smoking and carburetion masks;

(E) Roach clips: meaning objects used to hold burning materials, such as marijuana cigarettes, that have become too small or too short to be held in the hand;

(F) Miniature cocaine spoons, and cocaine vials;

(G) Chamber pipes;

(H) Carburetor pipes;

(I) Electric pipes;

(J) Air-driven pipes;

(K) Chillums;

(L) Bongs; and

(M) Ice pipes or chillers.]

In determining whether an object is drug paraphernalia, you should consider, in addition to all other logically relevant factors, the following:

(1) Statements by an owner or by anyone in control of the object concerning its use;

(2) Prior convictions, if any, of an owner, or of anyone in control of the object, under any state or federal law relating to any controlled substance;

(3) The proximity of the object, in time and space, to a direct violation of any state law relating to any controlled substance;

(4) The proximity of the object to controlled substances;

(5) The existence of any residue of controlled substances on the object;

(6) Direct or circumstantial evidence of the intent of an owner, or of anyone in control of the object, to deliver it to any person whom the owner or person in control knows, or should reasonably know, intends to use the object to introduce into the human body a controlled substance; the innocence of an owner, or of anyone in control of the object, as to any state law relating to any controlled substance shall not prevent a finding that the object is intended for use or designed for use as drug paraphernalia;

(7) Instructions, oral or written, provided with the object concerning its use;

(8) Descriptive materials accompanying the object which explain or depict its use;

(9) National and local advertising concerning its use;

(10) The manner in which the object is displayed for sale;

(11) Whether the owner, or anyone in control of the object, is a legitimate supplier of like or related items to the community, such as a licensed distributor or dealer of tobacco products;

(12) Direct or circumstantial evidence of the ratio of sales of the object or objects to the total sales of the business enterprise;

(13) The existence and scope of legitimate uses for the object in the community; and

(14) Expert testimony concerning its use.

In order for the object to be drug paraphernalia, the prosecution must prove that the defendant intended that the object be used with a controlled substance. Although the prosecution need not demonstrate the presence of any of the 14 factors to prove the defendant's intent, the presence or absence of any of the specific factors along with all other logically relevant factors may be used to infer the defendant's intent or the lack of such intent. Without the defendant's intent to use the object with a controlled substance, none of the specific examples or factors listed above can transform the object into drug paraphernalia.

18.02 DEFENSE TO COMPUTER FRAUD IN THE FIRST DEGREE: H.R.S. 708-891(2)

The burden is on the prosecution to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that [the object of the fraud consisted of more than the use of the computer] [the object of the fraud consisted of the use of the computer and the value of such use was more than $300 in a one-year period].

Commentary

When an exception, if proved, would negate a defendant's penal liability, it constitutes a defense. State v. Nobriga, 10 Haw. App. 353, 873 P.2d 110 (1994). The State has the initial burden of negativing statutory exceptions to an offense only if the exceptions are incorporated into the definition of the offense, otherwise, the defendant has the initial burden of bringing himself clearly within the exception by presenting facts constituting the defense. Only if the defendant has fulfilled his burden would any obligation arise on the State's part to disprove the defense beyond a reasonable doubt. Id.

At the conclusion of that hearing, the jury will be asked to determine facts relevant to the court's sentencing decision.

Notes

The decision whether to give this instruction is left to the court's discretion.

The defense may present evidence but is not required to do so. If the defense presents evidence, the prosecution will have the opportunity to present rebuttal evidence. Following the presentation of evidence, the court will read its jury instructions to you. The prosecution and defense will then have an opportunity to give closing arguments.

After closing arguments, you will begin your deliberations to answer certain questions which will be provided to you on special interrogatory forms. In answering these questions, you are to consider evidence that is presented to you during this hearing [, in addition to evidence that was presented to you during the trial in this case].

For the purpose of this hearing, the law requires that the prosecution prove certain facts beyond a reasonable doubt.

What is a reasonable doubt?

It is a doubt in your mind about the facts at issue in this hearing which arises from the evidence presented or from the lack of evidence and which is based upon reason and common sense.

Each of you must decide, individually, whether there is or is not such a doubt in your mind after careful and impartial consideration of the evidence.

Be mindful, however, that a doubt which has no basis in the evidence presented, or the lack of evidence, or reasonable inferences therefrom, or a doubt which is based upon imagination, suspicion or mere speculation or guesswork is not a reasonable doubt.

What is proof beyond a reasonable doubt?

If, after consideration of the evidence and the law, you have a reasonable doubt regarding a fact at issue in this hearing, then the prosecution has not proved that fact beyond a reasonable doubt and it is your duty to answer "No" to the relevant question in the interrogatory form which will be provided to you.

If, after consideration of the evidence and the law, you do not have a reasonable doubt regarding a fact at issue in this hearing, then the prosecution has proved that fact beyond a reasonable doubt and it is your duty to answer "Yes" to the relevant question in the interrogatory form.

19.2.3. Consider Only the Evidence

You must consider only the evidence which has been presented to you in this hearing and such inferences therefrom as may be justified by reason and common sense.

The prosecution's allegations are a mere formality, and they are not to be considered as evidence against the defendant. You must not be influenced at all because the prosecution has made these allegations.

This hearing is governed by rules. When an attorney believes that the rules require it, it is his or her duty to raise an objection. It is within the province of the trial judge to rule on such objections.

During the course of this hearing you have heard counsel make objections. You must not consider objections raised by counsel in your deliberations.

Statements or remarks made by counsel are not evidence. You should consider their arguments to you, but you are not bound by their recollections or interpretations of the evidence. You must also disregard any remark I may have made, unless the remark was an instruction to you.

If I have said or done anything which has suggested to you that I am inclined to favor the claims or positions of any party, or if any expression or statement of mine has seemed to indicate an opinion relating to which witnesses are, or are not, worthy of belief or what facts are or are not established or what inferences should be drawn therefrom, I instruct you to disregard it.

You must not be influenced by pity for the defendant or by passion or prejudice against the defendant. Both the prosecution and the defendant have a right to demand, and they do demand and expect, that you will conscientiously and dispassionately consider and weigh all of the evidence and follow these instructions, and that you will reach a just decision.

HAWJIC 19.2.3 (Added 01/03/13)

19.2.4. Disregard Stricken Evidence

You must disregard entirely any matter which the court has ordered stricken.

HAWJIC 19.2.4 (Added 01/03/13)

19.2.5. Judicial Notice

You may but are not required to accept, as conclusively proved, any fact or event which the court has judicially noticed.

HAWJIC 19.2.5 (Added 01/03/13)

19.2.6. Stipulations

You must accept, as conclusively proved, any fact to which the parties have stipulated.

HAWJIC 19.2.6 (Added 01/03/13)

19.2.7. Direct and Circumstantial Evidence

In addition to facts which [counsel have stipulated to be true] [the court has taken judicial notice of], there are two types of evidence -- direct evidence, such as the testimony of witnesses who assert actual knowledge of a fact, and circumstantial evidence, which permits a reasonable inference of the existence of another fact.

Facts may be proved by direct or circumstantial evidence, or by a combination of both direct evidence and circumstantial evidence.

HAWJIC 19.2.7 (Added 01/03/13)

19.2.8. Weight of the Evidence

While you must consider all of the evidence in determining the facts in this case, this does not mean that you are bound to give every bit of evidence the same weight. You are the sole and exclusive judges of the effect and value of the evidence and of the credibility of the witnesses.

HAWJIC 19.2.8 (Added 01/03/13)

19.2.9. Credibility and Weight of Testimony

It is your exclusive right to determine whether and to what extent a witness should be believed and to give weight to his or her testimony accordingly. In evaluating the weight and credibility of a witness's testimony, you may consider the witness's appearance and demeanor; the witness's manner of testifying; the witness's intelligence; the witness's candor or frankness, or lack thereof; the witness's interest, if any, in the result of this case; the witness's relation, if any, to a party; the witness's temper, feeling, or bias, if any has been shown; the witness's means and opportunity of acquiring information; the probability or improbability of the witness's testimony; the extent to which the witness is supported or contradicted by other evidence; the extent to which the witness has made contradictory statements, whether in this hearing or at other times; and all other circumstances surrounding the witness and bearing upon his or her credibility.

Inconsistencies or discrepancies in the testimony of a witness, or between the testimony of different witnesses, may or may not cause you to discredit such testimony. In weighing the effect of inconsistencies or discrepancies, whether they occur within one witness's testimony or as between different witnesses, consider whether they concern matters of importance or only matters of unimportant detail, and whether they result from innocent error or deliberate falsehood.

19.2.10. Rejecting Testimony

If you find that a witness has deliberately testified falsely to any important fact or deliberately exaggerated or suppressed any important fact, then you may reject the testimony of that witness except for those parts which you nevertheless believe to be true.

19.2.11. Number of Witnesses

You are not bound to decide a fact one way or another just because more witnesses testify on one side than the other. It is testimony that has a convincing force upon you that counts, and the testimony of even a single witness, if believed, can be sufficient to prove a fact.

HAWJIC 19.2.11 (Added 01/03/13)

19.2.12. Prosecution Not Required to Call All Witnesses

The prosecution is not required to call as witnesses all persons who may have been present at any of the events disclosed by the evidence or who may appear to have some knowledge of these events, or to produce all objects or documents mentioned or suggested by the evidence.

HAWJIC 19.2.12 (Added 01/03/13)

19.2.13. Defendant Not Required to Call Any Witnesses

The defendant has no duty or obligation to call any witnesses or produce any evidence.

HAWJIC 19.2.13 (Added 01/03/13)

19.2.14. Defendant Not Required to Testify

The defendant has no duty or obligation to testify, and you must not draw any inference unfavorable to the defendant because he/she did not testify in this hearing, or consider this in any way in your deliberations.

HAWJIC 19.2.14 (Added 01/03/13)

19.2.15. Defendant as a Witness

The defendant in this case has testified. When a defendant testifies, his/her credibility is to be tested in the same manner as any other witness.

HAWJIC 19.2.15 (Added 01/03/13)

19.2.16. Evidence Admitted for a Limited Purpose

During the hearing I told you that certain evidence was admitted for a particular and limited purpose. When you consider that evidence, you must limit your consideration to that purpose.

HAWJIC 19.2.16 (Added 01/03/13)

19.2.17. Availability of Exhibits

During Deliberations During the hearing items were received into evidence as exhibits. These exhibits will be sent into the jury room with you when you begin to deliberate.

HAWJIC 19.2.17 (Added 01/03/13)

19.2.18. Expert Witnesses

During the hearing you heard the testimony of one or more witnesses who were described as experts. Training and experience may make a person an expert in a particular field. The law allows that person to state an opinion about matters in that field. Merely because such a witness has expressed an opinion does not mean, however, that you must accept this opinion. It is up to you to decide whether to accept this testimony and how much weight to give it. You must also decide whether the witness's opinions were based on sound reasons, judgment, and information.

4. JURY DELIBERATIONS

19.4.1. Unanimous Decision

The decisions of the jury regarding the facts at issue in this hearing must represent the considered judgment of each juror, and in order to return the decisions, it is necessary that each juror agree thereto. In other words, your decisions must be unanimous.

Each of you must decide the case for yourself, but it is your duty to consult with one another and to deliberate with a view to reaching an agreement, if you can do so without violating your individual judgment. In the course of your deliberations, do not hesitate to re-examine your own views and change your opinion if convinced it is erroneous. But do not surrender your honest belief as to the weight or effect of evidence for the mere purpose of returning a decision on the facts at issue in this hearing.

19.4.2. Unanimity Instruction – Generic

The law allows the introduction of evidence for the purpose of showing that there is more than one [act] [omission] [item] upon which proof of a fact may be based. In order for the prosecution to prove a fact, all twelve jurors must unanimously agree that [the same act] [the same omission] [possession of the same item] has been proved beyond a reasonable doubt.

HAWJIC 19.4.2 (Added 01/03/13)
